NEW ARGENTINE PRESIDENT ISSUES DECREE DISSOLVING
PERON-BACKED CONGRESSGEN. LONARDI'S GOVERNMENT ACTS TO KEEP COUNTRY CALM

It Pledges to Restore Freedoms — General to Fly to Buenos Aires Tomorrow for Installation.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 22
(AP) — Provisional President Eduardo Lonardi issued a decree today dissolving the Argentine Congress.

All 34 members of the Senate were members of the Peronista party. There were eight members of the opposition Radical party in the lower house, out of a membership of 166.

Gen. Lonardi's new government went on the radio with a concentrated campaign intended to calm the troubled nation.
It urged rebuilding of the split country through "peace and work... in the pious light of forgetfulness."

Jail doors opened for men imprisoned by the overthrown Peronista regime, schools, stores and banks reopened, the name of deposed President Juan D.
Peron and his late wife, Eva Peron, were rapidly being erased from the national scene, and members of the Peron brownshirt organization including the leader, Guillermo Pat-ricio Kelly, were reported to have been arrested.

A decree issued from Gen.
Lonardi's temporary headquarters at Cordoba cancelled the names of President Peron and Eva Peron as the names given to two new provinces. President Peron province again will be known as Chaco and Eva Peron as Pampa. Both formerly were territories.

Lonardi, 59-year-old commander of the brief revolt which ended Peron's 10 years of dictatorship, was scheduled to fly to Buenos Aires from Cordoba tomorrow to be installed formally as provisional President.

The installation originally had been set for today but an official announcement said
"joyful celebrations" in Cordoba delayed Lonardi's departure.

Neither Victors Nor Defeated.
The appeal for peace came from Cordoba's radio, "Voice of Liberty," which said, "It is better not to talk of the past, our slogan is 'there are neither victors nor defeated.'"

Referring to ousted President
Peron, the broadcast lashed out at the "insane egotism of a man who did not control his ambition and tried to throw down what was dearest to the Argentine people."

The radio said the revolution was born in Cordoba, provincial capital 400 miles northwest of Buenos Aires, "to defend the constitution, the freedom of men, the freedom of the press and the freedom of worship."

The peace agreement concluded yesterday provided for Lonardi and other rebel leaders to take over from the junta of pro-Peron generals which

ADENAUER SAYS RECOGNITION OF EAST ZONE WILL BE 'UNFRIENDLY'

Bonn Chancellor Warns West, Neutrals—Replies to Russian Grant of Sovereignty to Red Reich.

BONN, Sept. 22 (AP)—Chancellor Adenauer declared today that West Germany would regard it as "an unfriendly act" if any nation in the future recognizes the Communist government of East Germany.

The Bonn government also sent notes to the United States, Britain and France asking them to define anew their attitude to the Soviet zone government and the four-power status of Berlin.

Adenauer was stressing, in a parliamentary speech, his government's adamant refusal to recognize the legitimacy of the Soviet zone.

He said it had the support of no more than 10 per cent of the 8 million East Germans. The freely elected Bonn government is alone qualified to speak for all Germans, he declared.

Reply to Russia. This was his reply to the Soviet grant of sovereignty to their occupation zone in negotiations this week with Communist Premier Grotewohl in Moscow.

Adenauer's warning against recognizing the Communist zone was plainly directed to Western nations and neutrals. The east zone is already recognized by the Soviet Union, its satellites and Red China.

Further recognition of the Red rulers of the east zone would only deepen the division of Germany, Adenauer explained.

The note handed to the Big Three ambassadors in Bonn this morning drew attention to the Soviet grant of sovereignty to East Germany. It sought reassurance that:

1. The Western powers had not altered their attitude to East Germany.

2. That they still maintained that Berlin—110 miles behind the Iron Curtain—had a special position under four-power occupation.

The note drew special attention to the Soviet declaration that the east zone was given control of traffic to Berlin.

Adenauer said, this appeared to be a violation of the 1949 Big Four agreement ending the Soviet blockade of Berlin. That agreement guaranteed unhindered access to Berlin.

Adenauer was reporting to the Bundestag (lower house) on his negotiations with Russian leaders in Moscow which led to an agreement to establish diplomatic relations between Bonn and Moscow. The government is asking Parliament to approve this agreement. An overwhelming favorable vote is certain.

After Adenauer's declaration, general debate began.

Review of Negotiations. In his 40-minute review of the Moscow negotiations, Adenauer asked approval of diplomatic relations with Russia because:

1. Russia was a victor power without whose co-operation the restoration of German unity would be impossible.

2. Without relations with the Soviets it would be impossible for Bonn to make its views known in Moscow.

3. Diplomatic relations with Russia did not mean any change in the foreign policy of West Germany.

Amid applause from his supporters Adenauer declared that under all circumstances West Germany would hold firm to its ties with the West.

Adenauer said he had wrung from the Soviet leaders, in "very long" and difficult negotiations, an admission that Russia was obliged, along with the Western powers, to work toward restoration of German unity.

He said he could not persuade the Russians to declare their readiness for quick reunion.

Adequate Now. He expressed belief that was sufficient for the time being, in view of next month's Geneva conference of the Big Four foreign ministers, where German reunification is to be discussed.

He emphasized that his government regards Polish and Russian rule of former German territory in the east as provisional. He said Germany's borders cannot be settled until the freely elected national German government concludes a peace treaty with the former enemies of World War II.

Adenauer concluded his statement with an appeal to the Bundestag to approve diplomatic relations with Moscow. The vote will take place tomorrow.

All parties announced last night they will vote "yes" for the exchange of ambassadors. The opposition Socialists made plain, however, they are not scrapping their opposition to Adenauer's rearmament program and West Germany's membership in the Atlantic alliance.

INDIAN CABINET OK'S BAR ON FOREIGN PAPER EDITIONS

NEW DELHI, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Ministry of Information said today the Indian cabinet has approved a press commission recommendation barring the publication in India of editions of foreign newspapers.

Officials said the action was taken as a result of a request from the New York Times to publish an Asian airmail edition in India, preferably in Calcutta.

The government had had the application under consideration several months. The bar, it was understood, resulted in part from the active opposition of Indian newspaper publishers to the proposal.

Michigan Congressman's Presence Cited—Segregation in the Courtroom.

By TOM YARBROUGH A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SUMNER, Miss., Sept. 22 — Without any cash being laid on the line, the "betting" was 10-to-1 today that the two white men on trial for killing 14-year-old Emmett Louis Till, a Negro boy from Chicago, will be acquitted or given sentences of the lightest sort.

The reason generally given for this advance judgment of the case is "outside interference"—an interest from without Mississippi that has resulted in the presence here of such persons as Representative Charles Diggs, a Michigan Democrat, a Negro.

There is nothing a Mississippi plan resents more than an intrusion by northerners in matters he considers local, and in this instance there has been an intrusion, in the judgment of white people here.

Unobtrusive Visitor. Congressman Diggs has been unobtrusive at the trial—he was so decorous as to send his card to Circuit Judge Curtis M. Swango on his arrival—but his presence is taken as part of what is known as "Mamie's circus." Mamie is Mrs. Mamie Bradley of Chicago, Emmett's mother. An elaborate funeral for the boy in Chicago is judged by Mississippi standards as another part of the "circus."

Another "observer" not overly appreciated locally is Medgar Evers of Jackson, Miss., state field secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "We are here observing," he said. "We are hoping that justice will be done—but we have only a hope."

Sumner, a village of 500 in the heart of the "delta" country, is as unsegregated as it is unconstructed, and there is a separation of the white and black races in the courtroom, as a matter of course, but outside it is different.

Outside the old courthouse, lined with automobiles in the old-time style of the village square, people sit on the cars, and they are mixed—a Negro on the right fender and a white on the left.

They can hear nothing of the proceedings on the second floor, to be sure, but they want to be on hand.

Crowd Mostly Negroes. This outside crowd consists mostly of Negroes. One woman became so bored that she dozed, balanced on the right front fender of a new Plymouth.

Inside the courtroom the two back rows on the right side are for Negroes, and there is nothing more for them. The rest of the room is more than filled with attentive but undemonstrative whites, mostly men.

It is a restless crowd, but comfortable. The judge allows smoking, including pipes and cigars, and the smoke is only feebly dispelled by two fans with long wooden blades laboring just above the bench.

Testimony was incredibly dull yesterday, but no one left the courtroom. The spectators hung on, waiting for the drama to unfold, despite such disappointments as this:

"Will you describe the gashes in the boy's head?" "I know."

In one sense Judge Swango was the man of the hour yesterday. He was one of a very few who came to court with a coat—and the only one who kept it on throughout the day's proceedings. Moreover, he insisted that witnesses speak up so the jury at least could hear, and said at one point: "If you have to shout so they can hear you, then shout."

Late in the day, as court adjourned, Mose Wright, uncle of Emmett, the boy victim, moved out among the Negroes waiting on the lawn. He told this reporter that he was going to "stay around for the end of the trial, and no more."

Then he is heading for Chicago, where his wife is. "She left here about 40 minutes after they came and got Emmett," he said, "scared to death."

Mose said he had received an anonymous letter warning him to get going after Emmett's abductors were arrested, but that he decided to stay on until the trial. "It seems like it could happen again," he said. "The colored people of Mississippi have got no protection."

BULGANIN NOTE TO EISENHOWER UNDER STUDY

Reported to Deal With Disarmament — U.N. Subcommittee Session Postponed.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—A personal message from Russian Premier Nikolai Bulganin to President Eisenhower was under study today while a United Nations disarmament subcommittee marked time in New York.

Officials declined to discuss the message beyond confirming that it had been sent through the State Department to the President's vacation headquarters in Denver. They said they understood copies went also to British Prime Minister Anthony Eden and French Premier Edgar Faure.

Bulganin's message and probably a reply by Mr. Eisenhower will be made public when the message has been evaluated, the President's vacation headquarters at Fraser, Colo., said today.

London dispatches said a message to Eden dealt with disarmament.

The United Press reported French sources said the Bulganin letter was one of the first major Soviet diplomatic moves to prepare the way for the Big Four Foreign Ministers conference in Geneva next month. The letter raised immediate speculation that Russia was making new proposals to break the deadlock in the United Nations disarmament subcommittee in New York.

A United States spokesman at United Nations headquarters in New York disclaimed knowledge of the message, but announced a one-day postponement of the disarmament subcommittee meeting. That group had been planning to wind up its talks today.

The spokesman said the delay was agreed upon for the convenience of its members—the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Canada. The talks have been stalemated in recent days.

Russia, while not specifically rejecting the proposals, has called for dismantling American bases overseas, withdrawal of troops from Germany and steps to improve trade and cultural relations between East and West.

The United States has been pushing President Eisenhower's plan for free aerial inspection and exchange of military blueprints.

U.S. Hopeful That La Prensa Will Be Returned to Owners

Diplomatic Machinery Set in Motion for Recognition of New Argentine Government.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (UP)—The United States hopes that the new Argentine government will return the Buenos Aires newspaper La Prensa to its former private owners, a State Department spokesman said today.

Department Press Officer Henry Suydam made the statement in response to questions. Suydam was asked for comment on a report that the new government would return La Prensa to its former owners, the Gainza Paz family.

"We hope it will, but it would be a little premature to be speculating on a matter of that kind until we have heard from the new government," Suydam said.

Suydam added that he did not want to put the State Department in a "position of rushing matters."

He said action on United States recognition also must await an official communication from the new government.

United States recognition will be forthcoming if the new rulers have effective control over Argentina and promise to live up to Argentina's previous international obligations. There were no sure signs that the new regime would be pro-American, but officials did not discount this possibility.

La Prensa was one of the world's leading newspapers before it was seized by the Peron government in early 1953. It was taken over following a long record of opposition to the Peron government.

Action to return the newspaper to the Gainza Paz family, which founded and operated La Prensa for three generations, would be "very favorable development," officials said. La Prensa's seizure, it was pointed out, has long been one of the major United States complaints against the Peron regime.

Alberto Gainza Paz, publisher of La Prensa, now is in New York.

Prospect that the newspaper would be returned was raised yesterday by Gen. Julio A. Lagos, rebel chief in western Argentina. He said, "All properties expropriated by Peron will be studied and returned to their legitimate owners. I do not know whether this will be done by court action, by decree, or by some other means, but there will be justice."

Regarding recognition, officials expect the new leaders to advise the United States and other countries whether they will continue Argentina's international obligations. Conferences will be held with other governments in the Western Hemisphere before the United States recognizes the new government.

Free Market Rate for Argentine Peso Increases. NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (UP)—Financial experts said today a rise in the free market rate for the Argentine peso indicates belief in some quarters that overthrow of the Peron regime "heralds the return of some sort of political and economic liberty in Argentina."

Foreign exchange experts termed the rise "significant." They noted that the free, or black, market rate for the peso rose from 3.06 cents on Friday to 3.13 cents on Monday and is now around 3.57 cents.

The increase was considered an important indication of growing faith in the Argentine economy because the free market rate shows how much world financial interests are actually willing to pay for the peso.

The official foreign exchange rate, set by the Peron government, is 7.22 cents or around 14 pesos for the dollar.

Wall Street experts explained that the black market rate is what the peso is actually worth, while the official rate "is merely an illusion" of its worth created by the Peron government.

Construction will require two years, and will not be started until the state acquires property for this stretch and the county passes a bond issue to pay its $2,200,000 share of the cost of right-of-way for the artery.

In view of these requirements, a construction contract would not be let before next summer. The expressway, a 20-mile highway extending from downtown St. Louis to St. Charles, is to be built by stages. A contract for the first leg, a two-mile section along the old Commisison Row, may be let next February or March.

15 ARE KILLED WHEN BRITISH PLANE CRASHES

32 Survive — Airliner Hits Treetops in Making Landing at Tripoli in Dust Storm.

TRIPOLI, Libya, Sept. 22 (AP)—Fifteen persons were killed early today in the flaming wreckage of a British airliner which clipped treetops and crashed as it was landing in a dust storm at Tripoli's Idris airport.

The British Overseas Airways Corp. announced in London that the dead included 13 passengers and two crew members, while 27 passengers and five of the crew escaped.

B.O.A.C. said that of the 27 passengers who survived, one was believed to be injured seriously.

A B.O.A.C. spokesman declined to give the nationality of the passengers. He said next of kin of the casualties were being notified and names of those on the craft would be announced later.

The plane, a four-engine propeller-driven Argonaut, left London yesterday afternoon for Lagos, Nigeria, in West Africa. Tripoli, the Libyan capital, is on the Mediterranean coast of North Africa.

The airline said an investigation would be opened immediately into the accident.

The survivors were taken to the military hospital in Tripoli, which is sweltering in 90-degree heat.

The wreckage of the plane, in three main groups, was spread over a radius of 100 yards. Ten hours after the crash it was still smoldering.

It was believed that some passengers fell out and that others jumped to the ground as the plane crashed.

B.O.A.C. Capt. R. D. E. Griffiths, who took over as pilot of the plane when it landed in Rome, was reported injured—but not seriously.

The Argonaut crash was the sixth fatal crash suffered by B.O.A.C. in the last two and a half years. B.O.A.C. withdrew its pioneer Comet jet airliner from service after several of the crashes.

SKILLED WORKER SHORTAGE FACES U.S., MITCHELL WARNS HERE

Labor Secretary Urges Improved Training Methods, More Hiring of Persons Over 45 Years Old.

The United States is now more prosperous than ever before in its history, but the nation faces a critical shortage of skilled workers, Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell said here today.

Mitchell, addressing the Interstate Conference of Employment Security Agencies at Hotel Jefferson, said the labor force at the present time was not adequate to meet what he described as "the ever-growing demands of military and civilian production."

Only 9,000,000 out of a total of 67,500,000 workers are skilled, he said, and it is apparent that improved training methods must be found. "There is no time to waste," he warned. "The nation's employers," the Secretary of Labor said, "must discard their traditional prejudices against hiring workers who are over 45 and yet still fully capable of valuable work."

Management must also discard the discrimination which effectively bars millions from many forms of skilled work. Our country must improve its educational facilities to give our workers basic training and education they need to develop any sort of skill.

Competition with Reds. Unless the nation uses to the fullest the work potential of every person, Mitchell said, "we will not be able to maintain a competitive position with the Communist world."

Mitchell said federal and state officials could work together without friction. He declared: "This bugaboo that there is a plot in Washington to grab more power is a myth, and people who perpetuate the myth are beating a dead horse."

Speaking before about 200 representatives of state employment security agencies, the 52-year-old Cabinet officer noted that the social security law, enacted 20 years ago under the Roosevelt Administration, was the foundation on which the employment security program had been built.

Unemployment Cushioned. In 1954, he said, 1700 local public employment offices placed more than 14,000,000 workers in jobs, while a total of $2,030,000,000 was paid in unemployment insurance benefits to 6,000,000 workers.

Mitchell said these federal-state activities cushioned the last year's unemployment. The programs have been tested in the crucible of depression, war, and postwar economic adjustment, he declared, and have demonstrated their worth and usefulness.

"I believe that the structure of the federal-state co-operative employment security program is basically sound," he said. "It is in accord with the Administration's philosophy of government, as well as my own, which is to place as much responsibility on the states as is consistent with the protection of the national interest."

Policy Reaffirmed. "President Eisenhower, the secretary pointed out, recently had occasion to reaffirm the national policy stated in the Employment Act of 1946, which recognized the Federal Government's responsibility concerning job opportunities for all citizens."

Employment security has a major role in making that policy effective, Mitchell said, and despite heartening progress made this year, it is necessary to work toward further improvements.

"If this program is to reach its full potential as an aid to jobless workers," he said, "benefits must be increased and coverage extended to all workers subject to the threat of unemployment."

At Employment Parley

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.
SECRETARY OF LABOR JAMES P. MITCHELL (right) with ALAN WILLIAMSON, president of the Interstate Conference of Employment Security Agencies, as conference opened at Hotel Jefferson today.

COBRA AND VIPER, BOTH POISONOUS, ON DISPLAY AT ZOO

Two newly-arrived poisonous African snakes went on display at the Zoo today. One is a graceful young ringhals cobra. The other is a gaboon viper, a somewhat sluggish serpent which resembles a section of small fire hose.

The little cobra can use its deadly venom two ways: By biting with its fangs and by ejecting the poison in a fine stream. The spray, usually directed at the eyes of an enemy, can travel accurately several feet and in extreme cases will cause permanent blindness.

A lover of leisure, the gaboon has its eyes and nostrils on top of its large, triangular head. This adapts it for its favorite pastime—lying in the sand with only the top of its head exposed.

Folded back in its head, like card table legs, are a pair of long, hollow fangs which can readily be brought into biting position. The length of the fangs is unknown, and no one at the zoo has any intention of measuring them just now.

Robert, who is mentally retarded, has been cared for at City Hospital since his father left him on a street here. Meanwhile, the elder Russell is scheduled to face trial in Court of Criminal Correction next Tuesday on a non-support charge arising from the abandonment.

Voluntary unemployment. Some 12,000,000 wage and salary earners are still without unemployment insurance protection. "Benefits are still often insufficient to enable jobless workers to maintain a substantial part of their customary expenditures. The more adequate the benefits, the greater the contribution the program can make to economic stability."

In an interview here last night, the Secretary of Labor said Americans were "enjoying the highest level of weekly earnings they have ever enjoyed." Further, he said, the increase has not been offset, in the last few years, by a corresponding increase in the cost of living.

Mitchell said he did not consider the present high level of installment buying a basis for viewing with alarm. It may be attributed, he said, to the fact that people have higher incomes, and therefore are offered "credit facilities they never enjoyed before."

Commissioner of Labor Statistics Ewan Clague told the conference this afternoon that the proportion of women in the total labor force had increased from 25 per cent in 1940 to 30 per cent in 1955. The number and proportion of young workers also has increased, he said.

Clague said an outstanding trend of the last 15 years had been the concentration of industrial employment in the western and southwestern parts of the country. He foresaw a national population of 190,000,000 by 1965, with a work force of 77,000,000.

Aid for Ex-Servicemen. A luncheon speaker, Robert C. Goodwin, director of the Bureau of Employment Security, Department of Labor, suggested the need for a permanent program offering employment insurance protection to ex-servicemen for specified periods following their release from active duty.

He also called attention to the fact that temporary disability insurance programs now operate in only four states, and in the railroad industry. A big gap in protection afforded most workers, he said, is the lack of insurance for persons who become unemployed because of disabilities not connected with their work.

Alan Williamson of Aberdeen, S.D., president of the Interstate Conference group, opened the three-day meeting this morning. Purpose of the meeting, attended by delegates from 48 states and Alaska, is to deal with problems growing out of operation of the federal-state employment security program.

HIGH WINDS HIT HERE, 5 INJURED BY FALLING TREE

Heaviest Damage in Jerseyville and Illinois Counties North of St. Louis.

A severe windstorm with gusts up to 43 miles an hour struck the St. Louis area last night, causing injury to five persons who were struck by the branches of a toppled tree. Heaviest damage was reported in Illinois counties north of St. Louis, where some communities were without electric power for several hours as wires were broken by falling trees.

In Jerseyville, one of the hardest-hit towns, extensive damage was reported, but no one was injured. Councilman Charles White and Police Chief Ed Henson, following a tour of the city, said a large number of homes had been damaged by falling trees and branches.

Some plate glass windows in business establishments were broken, the roof of a laundry was partially torn off and a garage was upended. Jerseyville is 45 miles north of St. Louis.

The five St. Louisians injured were among spectators at a softball game being played at a field near the foot of Cartwright street, Lemay. They were struck by a tree which was snapped off by the first strong gust of wind at 6:30 p.m.

One was seriously injured. He is Thomas Gross, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gross of 357 Hoffmeister avenue, Lemay. The boy was pinned beneath the trunk of the tree for a time and suffered internal injuries. His father was obviously untrue as no one of whom suffered cuts and bruises.

The other three injured are: John Lappin, 2821 West Lawn avenue, Lemay; Harold Tesson, 7206 Minnesota avenue, and Joseph Holloran, 2810 St. Vincent avenue.

Illinois communities, in addition to Jerseyville, which were hit by the storm included Carlinville, Shipman, Litchfield, Dorchester, Bunker Hill and Benld, all of which suffered power outages as a result of broken electric lines.

A spokesman for Union Electric Co. said three substations in Alton were out of service for a time as a result of the storm and some sections of the city were without electricity for more than two hours.

The sheriff's office at Carlinville, about 30 miles east of Jerseyville, reported that the residents of that city were without electricity for more than eight hours. Streets in some sections of the town were blocked by fallen trees.

George Hager, an elderly resident of Hardin, was killed and Mrs. Nora Hill of Batchtown, Ill., was seriously injured when the automobile they were driving collided head on with a highway south of Hardin, in the storm.

Residents of the Illinois communities hit by the storm reported it was accompanied by heavy rain, badly needed in the area.

FEDERAL AGENCY GROUP INSPECTS MALINE CREEK

Stream Viewed for Possible Emergency Loan for Trunk Sewer — Karsten in Party.

A six-mile section of Maline creek was inspected by Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency representatives yesterday with a view to a possible emergency loan to permit the Metropolitan St. Louis Sewer District to start construction of a trunk sewer.

H. Earl Rosamond, economist for the FHFA regional office at Fort Worth, Tex., said he would report his findings to Regional Director Waldemar H. Sindt and a conference of Sindt and his legal and engineering advisers with local sewer district officials probably would be held here within two weeks.

Also participating in yesterday's tour were Elias Neuman, HHFA field engineer at St. Louis; United States Representative Frank M. Karsten, at whose request the inspection was made, and William Q. Kehr, sewer district executive director.

Following the stream line generally from the Walton road treatment plant, in the Natural Bridge road area, to the vicinity of Halls Ferry road, members of the group said they had both visible and olfactory evidence of conditions which have aroused residents of the rapidly growing north St. Louis county area.

They reported they saw raw sewage being discharged into the creek in Carsonville, and householders scraping blackened paint from outside walls, and repainting, in the Suburban avenue area in Ferguson.

Sindt has promised his office would co-operate in every way possible in making available part of the $100,000,000 federal revolving fund set up to aid local agencies with sewer and other problems. The Government is particularly interested in the Maline problem because of the many FHA-insured home loans involved.

Meanwhile, the St. Louis County Council yesterday voted to take under advisement a subdivision's application for a 20-foot sewer easement through Henry W. Kiel Park, in the Maline area, until it is determined what the developer plans to do with respect to primary treatment of sewage.

CONFEDERATE FLAG FLIES ON U.S. SHIP FOR LEE STAMP

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 22 (AP)—The stars and bars waved off this port yesterday as a ceremony was held aboard the carrier Ticonderoga honoring Robert E. Lee and the new 30-cent Lee stamp. It marked the first time the Confederate flag has flown from an American warship.

The skipper of the Ticonderoga is Capt. Andrew Jackson of Mississippi.

County's Failure to Contract For Reassessment Criticized

Assessor Says Blanket Increases Will Remain in 1956 Unless Program Starts Very Soon.

Failure of St. Louis county authorities to sign a contract for a parcel-by-parcel reassessment of real estate, which was authorized by the County Council last June, was criticized today by County Assessor Phil G. Deuser.

Deuser told the Post-Dispatch that unless the revaluation program gets under way very soon, the present blanket increases on real estate resulting from the State Tax Commission's order of last July will remain on the books in 1956.

Because the blanket increase of 60 per cent on city lots and 85 per cent on rural acreage compounded existing serious inequities, it should not be continued in effect any longer than necessary, Deuser said.

Two Firms Selected. Last June 25, the County Council selected Roy W. Wenzlick & Co. and Doane Agricultural Services Inc. to carry out a scientific reassessment of all county real estate on a parcel-by-parcel basis, but the contract has never been signed.

Deuser expressed the view that the job should be done by his office rather than by outside firms because it would be slightly cheaper and because there is a legal question as to the council's authority to contract for this type of work.

As to the cost, Deuser estimated his office could carry out the task for about $840,000 within a period of two and one-half to three years. The contract authorized by the council calls for payment of $850,000 to the two firms.

Even if the job were done by the two firms, Deuser said his office would still need additional help in placing the results of the study on the assessment books. In that respect, Deuser said, he needed more help to put on the books the valuation changes resulting from the tax commission's order, but had not been authorized to hire any more personnel.

At yesterday's council meeting, Deuser appeared briefly to point out time was growing short for starting the 1956 assessments and repeated his earlier offer to undertake the reassessment job. The council agreed to meet with him Monday evening to discuss his plans.

County Counselor Herbert C. Funke said the question of the council's authority to contract for work that normally is a function of the Assessor's office has stymied efforts to conclude the contract with the Wenzlick and Doane firms. He suggested one solution might be to cross Jefferson avenue against the electric signal. Wilson suffered internal injuries. He was 78 years old.

James Wilson, 2615A Lafayette avenue, died yesterday at City Hospital of injuries suffered last Saturday when he was struck by an automobile at Jefferson and Lafayette avenues. Edward Botkin, 1800 block of South Thirtieth street, the driver, said Wilson attempted to cross Jefferson avenue against the electric signal. Wilson suffered internal injuries. He was 78 years old.

3 MORE RANSOM BILLS FOUND IN CHICAGO BANK

Fifty-Six $20 Notes From the Missing $303,720 Have Been Recovered.

Finding of three more Green-lease ransom bills in the Reserve Bank of Chicago was announced today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

J. Earl Milnes, FBI agent in charge, said the new notes were $20 bills like the two announced from the same source last night.

Fifty-six $20 bills from the $303,720 originally reported missing have been recovered. Most of them have been found in Chicago, considered the distribution point for the ransom money.

Other bills have been found in St. Louis, East St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Philadelphia, Denver, New Orleans, and at Quincy and Norris City, Ill.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Miami, N.D.; and Jacksonville, Fla.

More than half of the $800,000 ransom paid Carl Austin Hall and Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady was found to have disappeared shortly after the kidnappers and killers of Bobby Greenlease were arrested here Oct. 6, 1953.

BOY CONVICTED OF KILLING FATHER OVER TAKING BATH

DOVER - FOXCROFT, Me., Sept. 22 (AP) — A 16-year-old boy, whose mother and two sisters testified against him, was convicted yesterday of manslaughter in the killing of his father in an argument over taking a bath.

Raymond Burton of Milo was sentenced to 5 to 10 years in state prison at Thomaston.

The mother, Mrs. Eva Burton, testified the boy shot his father after he had been called back to the house to take a bath. His sisters—Eloise, 15, and Jeanette, 11—told the jury that Raymond said he would "shoot daddy if he touches me."

As principal defense witness, the boy told of being thrown to the kitchen floor and kicked by his father for refusing to take the bath. The boy then went upstairs and obtained a rifle.

TRUMAN MEMOIRS TELL OF SCOLDING HE GAVE MOLOTOV

government and politics will find the text of documents and the first-hand accounts of official and unofficial meetings the greatest contribution to an understanding of the events of the later days of World War II and the postwar reconstruction. Mr. Truman himself has been a student of history from early childhood. He credits his continuous reading about the lives of other Presidents for the promptness and soundness of some of his own decisions.

In the early chapters, Mr. Truman reveals that on his first full day in office on April 13, 1945, the nation's military leaders advised him that Germany would not be "finally overcome for another six months" and "Japan would not be conquered for another year and a half." A month later Germany surrendered and Japan collapsed in August.

Learns of Atom Bomb.

He had learned his "first bit of information" on the atomic bomb project from Henry L. Stimson, then Secretary of War, after his cabinet meeting on the day Roosevelt died. Stimson told him merely that an immense project was under way looking to the development of a new explosive of almost unbelievable destructive power. Stimson told him that was all he felt free to say at the time. Later Vannevar Bush, head of the Office of Scientific Research and Development, gave him a scientist's version of the bomb. Of this meeting with Bush at the White House, Mr. Truman writes:

"Admiral Leahy was with me when Doctor Bush told me this astonishing fact.

"That is the biggest fool thing we have ever done," Leahy observed in his sturdy, salty manner. "The bomb will never go off, and I speak as an expert in explosives."

Adm. Leahy's version of the conversation differs from Mr. Truman's. He said today he told the President he knew about other explosives, but "I did not know about that (atomic) explosive."

Leahy added that he later recommended against using the atomic bomb on Japan because "I did not want my country to be the first to use that vicious, deadly weapon on non-combatants."

Stormy Session With Molotov.

Mr. Truman's personal account of his stormy session with Molotov over the Yalta agreement on Poland illustrates how the President from Missouri used Missouri language to cut through the Soviet Foreign Minister's diplomatic verbiage. The issue was the Kremlin's obvious intent to ignore the Crimean agreement between Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin for a representative government for Poland by including members of the Polish government-in-exile, then in London. The Russians had already given their full support to a Communist-dominated puppet group in Warsaw called the Lublin government.

When Molotov argued that "all difficulties could be overcome" and said he personally could not understand why, if the three governments could reach an agreement on Yugoslavia, the same formula could not be applied to Poland.

Truman's Reply.

Of this session, which was attended by the late Edward R. Stettinius Jr., then Secretary of State; Averell Harriman, then American Ambassador to Russia; and Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen, the present Ambassador to Moscow, Mr. Truman writes:

"Replying sharply again, I said that an agreement had been reached on Poland and that it only required to be carried out by the Soviet government. I expressed once more the desire of the United States for friendship with Russia, but I wanted it clearly understood that this could only be on the basis of the mutual observation of agreements and not on the basis of a one-way street."

It was at this point that Molotov complained that he had never been talked to like that.

Jonathan Daniels, North Carolina editor and former White House press secretary, wrote in his biography of Mr. Truman called "Man of Independence," that one of those present at this session described Mr. Truman's words to Molotov as "blunt language unadorned by the polite verbiage of diplomacy. . . the natural language of a direct politician to men whom he recognized as politicians, too."

Respected Taft.

As a politician, Mr. Truman respected the late Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio as a "highly ethical, straightforward, honorable man."

He adds that about one of his bitterest political critics: "I held him in the highest respect. He was a man of his word, and whenever he told me that he was satisfied to go along with me, I always knew he would. From my point of view, of course, he was a violent partisan, and I disagreed with him strongly on what the role of Government was in relation to the people. Nevertheless, he was an important member of the Senate who represented and spoke for his side vigorously and ably."

As for his own political philosophy, Mr. Truman classifies himself as "a Jeffersonian Democrat living in modern times." The memoirs tell in his own words how he lived and acted by his interpretation of that philosophy through his political career.

Truman 'Glad to Be Through' With Writing Memoirs.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 22 (AP)—Harry S. Truman, looking back at the task of producing his two-volume memoirs, told a news conference yesterday: "I'm just glad to be through with the job."

As for further literary endeavors, Mr. Truman said he had nothing in sight, but added: "You never can tell what will happen."

He said he worked on the memoirs from 5:30 a.m. to late at night, but he said he had many helpers. His staff fluctuated from five to eight. Help came from almost everyone connected in a major way with his Administration—Cabinet members, special emissaries, generals and admirals. Some came to Kansas City to confer with him on various parts of the books. In addition, Mr. Truman carried on extensive correspondence.

But "My memory turned out to be very good," he added.

Asked if there was any part of his memoirs he expected would arouse controversy, Mr. Truman replied in the negative but asked in turn: "Has anything been said about any office I've held that hasn't been controversial?"

The former President will take time when his book goes on sale here to autograph the volumes of the first buyers.

ments and other activities in order to exclude the risk of surprise attack, Dulles continued.

Dulles reminded the Assembly that the atom-for-peace program, presented last year at the opening of the ninth session, already was in operation, providing opportunity of international co-operation in development of nuclear power for beneficial purposes. He welcomed the important, if belated, Russian approval of the enterprise, and participation in it by the Soviet Union.

On Red China. Turning to the subject of Red China, Dulles asserted that "the situation is somewhat less ominous than it was," and that Peiping may respond to world opinion against the use of armed force to attain national objectives.

"The record of this Communist regime has been an evil one," Dulles said. "It fought the U.N. in Korea, for which it stands here branded as an aggressor. It took over Tibet by armed force. It became allied with the Communist Viet Minh in their effort to take over Indochina by armed force.

Peiping then "challenged the principles to which the United States is committed" by U.N. charter by threatening military force against the Nationalist Chinese government of Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa, he continued.

That resulted in congressional approval of the use of United States military units in the defense of Formosa and related areas if necessary, he said.

"I am convinced that this timely warning, given with the solid, virtually unanimous, national concurrence, served to prevent what could have been a dangerous miscalculation on the part of the Chinese Communists," Dulles said.

U.S.-Chinese Talks. As the result of the later Bandung conference, direct talks between the Peiping government and the United States were arranged to discuss "matters of concern only to the two of us," Dulles added.

He said that the reservation limiting the scope of the discussion was particularly applied to the Formosan situation because the United States is "loyal to a long-time friend and ally," Nationalist China.

Dulles credited U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld with "working assiduously" to bring about the release of American and other U.N. prisoners of war held by Red China.

In connection with the freeing of civilians held by Red China and the return of Chinese students in the United States, temporarily prevented from leaving due to restrictions growing out of the Korean war, Dulles said all Chinese in this country are free to leave. He recalled that Peiping has announced that Americans on the China mainland will be "expeditiously enabled to exercise" the right to be repatriated.

European Security.

On the subject of European security, he said that Germany must be unified and that western powers, including the United States, "will always be ready to enlarge their present commitments to meet Soviet concern. The German people have now been forcibly divided for over 10 years. The perpetuation of this division is a crime against nature."

Dulles said the Austrian peace treaty, which was signed by Russia, "contemplates support for Austria's admission to the U.N."

In the Near East, Dulles said, the situation remains troubled. He said high tribute was due to efforts of the U.N. staff headed by Gen. Burns to end the fighting between Israel and Arab nations.

Dulles recalled that the United States had offered financial assistance to both Arabs and Israelis in an effort to attain a stable settlement. What was intended, he explained, was financial help in relation to the problem of Arab refugees and for irrigation projects to improve the economy of the area. Britain has also subscribed to that undertaking, he added, which preferably should be conducted under auspices of the U.N.

He said the United States agreed that a charter review conference should be held. That does not necessarily mean, he said, that drastic changes were indicated but one compelling reason to call the meeting would be to reconsider the present veto power in relation to the admission of new members.

Nations Denied Seats.

"About a score of sovereign nations are not represented here," Dulles asserted. "Most of them meet the membership tests of our charter. They are peace loving and they have shown themselves able and willing to carry out the charter's obligations."

"To block the admission of such nations by use of the veto power is not only a grave wrong to them; it is also a wrong to this organization and to all of its members."

"The perceptions and the moral judgments of the nations meeting here endow this Assembly with genuine power. No nation likely risks the Assembly's moral condemnation, with all that such condemnation implies."

(The Associated Press said in today's first speech the Brazilian delegate in his policy statement announced his country would give a home to 48 former Korean war prisoners who refused either to return to the Communist fold or remain in South Korea. The prisoners are now in India, waiting for the Indian government and U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld to find them a home.)

(Brazilian Ambassador Cyro De Freitas-Valle also told the Assembly that Germany must be reunified. He said the continued division of that country cannot but be detrimental to the much desired political and economic stabilization of Europe.)

Molotov Speaks Tomorrow. Russian views to be outlined tomorrow by Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov, who thus far has preserved carefully the outward show of friendly intentions demonstrated in the exchanges between President Eisenhower and Russian Premier Bulganin at Geneva.

The vexatious Cyprus question yesterday was resolved in the General (steering) Committee by members voting 7 to 4, with four abstentions, to remove the item from the Assembly agenda. Only Egypt, Mexico, Poland and Russia voted to debate the quarrel between Britain and Greece about control of Cyprus. Chile, France, Luxembourg, Britain, New Zealand, Norway and the United States voted to ignore it.

In later radio conversations with the field, the plane crew learned that the important commercial port of Eva Peron, named for Peron's late wife, already had reverted to its old name, LaPlata. The small town of Evita also has been returned to its old name, to wipe out another reference to the dictatorial regime.

Time for Peron to Return. Postponement of the change of Government ceremonies until tomorrow gives Peron another 24 hours to arrange a triumphant return to power if he has any idea of attempting such a thing.

A coup of that sort would be in accordance with his personal tradition. Almost exactly 10 years ago, on Oct. 17, 1945, he returned from a few days exile on an island in the Rio de la Plata, seizing control once more to the worker's cries of "give us back Peron."

However, none of the signs are to be seen painted on walls and building that could be expected to herald such a development. Argentina's recent political history can be read in the faded old signs, some going back to the controversy over Evita's unsuccessful effort to become vice president. One still can see the conflicting slogans, "Peron y Eva" (Peron and Eva) and "Peron solo."

The most recent slogan to be seen now says "Peron o Huelga" (Peron or strike), but it apparently dates back to last Aug. 3, when the dictator made a last desperate show of strength. He announced to the Peron-dominated General Confederation of Labor that he intended to resign, and the workers then began a carefully staged general strike and mass demonstration. He bowed to their will and remained President.

Most observers here now see that August 31 demonstration as an effort to show the army that he was not dependent on it alone but also still had the fanatical support of his desamados, or "shirtless ones."

Saved by Loyal Forces. Loyal army forces saved him last June 16, when rebellious navy and air force officers bombed Casa Rosada and the President's home in an apparent attempt at assassination from the air.

In his Aug. 31 show of strength, Peron promised bitter reprisal against any further attempt at revolt. Urging the workers to "answers" violence with great violence," he promised that "when one of our people falls, five of them will fall."

But the lesson was lost on the army. Last Friday important units began a full scale revolt, oblivious to the threat of Peron's armed workers. A final gesture by the army came yesterday with the bombardment of the Alianza offices, headquarters for the toughest element of the Peronista workers, which Peron had set up as goon squad to rough up his enemies.

NEW COURTHOUSE IN COUNTY SAID TO HAVE TERMITES

Termites have invaded the new Courthouse at Clayton County Supervisor Luman F. Matthews told the County Council yesterday.

They are in the wooden baseboards and trimmings, he reported, and it will cost $5,000 to exterminate them. Just how the insects gained entry is uncertain, although Matthews suggested they may have come from wooden forms used in construction of the building, completed in 1949.

tions there was no opposition in the steering committee to placing the Moroccan question on the agenda. France previously has contended that both Morocco and Algeria are domestic problems outside U.N. jurisdiction. The French this time appeared to be hoping they could come up with a Moroccan settlement before the Assembly gets around to debating the issue.

However, the United States was reported ready to join France in opposing Assembly debate on the Asian-Arab bloc's contention demand that home rule be given Algeria. The steering committee tomorrow takes up whether to add this item to the agenda.

UNEASY CALM PREVAILS IN BUENOS AIRES

of a cable building, its gun trained on the building of the Argentine National Bank. Troops carrying Bren guns and jeeps with mounted machine guns ring a block of commercial buildings.

The military precautions were reported to be intended to prevent any resurgence of the Alianza. It was said that some die-hard members of the organization had locked themselves inside the bank and that the army was besieging the place to starve them out.

In Montevideo this morning, the take-off of the first commercial plane into Argentina since the revolution broke out last Friday, was delayed for an hour while the Uruguayan air minister worried about the properties.

The operator of the plane, owned by Royal Dutch Airlines, had clearance by radio from the authorities at Buenos Aires, but the Uruguayan minister had not yet heard personally from his Argentine counterpart.

Captain Forces Decision. After the take-off, the plane captain revealed that he had forced a decision.

"I insisted on a written statement admitting that he was detaining the plane there," the captain said. "He didn't want to give me that, so he allowed us to take off."

First reports of the start of "de-Peronization" of Argentina reached the plane by radio as it neared the end of the 40-minute flight across the Rio de la Plata to Buenos Aires. The airport radio identified itself as Radio Ezeiza, the old name, instead of Radio Ministro Pitarina. Peron had changed the name to Ministro Pitarina airport in honor of one of his henchmen.

In later radio conversations with the field, the plane crew learned that the important commercial port of Eva Peron, named for Peron's late wife, already had reverted to its old name, LaPlata. The small town of Evita also has been returned to its old name, to wipe out another reference to the dictatorial regime.

STRIKE VOTE BEING TAKEN AMONG TELEPHONE WORKERS

More than 50,000 Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. employees in six states have begun taking a strike vote, after rejecting a company wage offer, it was announced today by Frank P. Loneragan, assistant director of District 6, CIO Communication Workers of America.

A favorable vote would authorize the union negotiating committee to call a strike, after giving 30 days' notice of termination of the present contract, Loneragan explained. Deadline for return of the ballots has been set for Oct. 6, at the union headquarters here.

Negotiations by company and union committees began July 20. All demands have been adjusted, except wages, it was reported. The rejected wage offer gave no increase to some employees and $3 a week to others, it was stated. The union is insisting on increases in every classification, Loneragan said. United States conciliators have been asked to participate in the negotiations.

2 TAKE 2 HOURS TO LAND 1800-POUND, 15-FOOT SHARK

HONOLULU, Sept. 22 (AP)—Marine Sgt. Richard C. Lawrence and Air Force Sgt. Charles Hoke, fishing from the Fort Weaver dock, yesterday landed a 15-foot shark weighing 1800 pounds. The battle lasted three hours.

The sergeants said they used a 2-foot hammerhead shark as bait.

"You use that kind of bait and rig when you expect to catch big ones," Lawrence said.

$5000 RANSOM
NOTE RECEIVED IN BABY KIDNAPING

No Way to Determine Whether Abductor
Wrote It—Oakland Pickup Fails.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 22 (AP)—Receipts of a $5000 ransom note—under threat of death—and unsuccessful effort at a pickup was disclosed today by police seeking a five-day-old baby kidnaped Monday from Mt. Zion Hospital.

Police said there was no confirmation that the sender of the note was the real kidnaper. The note was received last night by Dr. Sanford Marcus, father of baby Robert Marcus. A package was left today at a specified location in Oakland but police said no one tried to pick it up.

Instructions in Note.
(The United Press reported the note, neatly printed in pencil on cheap, lined tablet paper, said:

"Dr. Marcus:
"We have your baby boy. Don't worry he is in fine health and is being taken good care of. We want $5000 in five, 10 and 20 denominations, and the bills are to be unmarked.

"Put them one at the corner of 38th ave. and San Juan in Oakland at the northwest corner under the wooden plank. Below is a diagram. (A rough sketch of the corner with an arrow pointing to a corner and instructions to 'put money here' was drawn on the paper.)

"Have the money there by 8 a.m. Thursday. If you inform any law enforcement agency your son will be done away with. Also, if I'm picked up by the police while picking up the ransom my partner will do away with your son, as we have set a deadline for my arrival back.

"After we receive ransom under the above conditions we will leave your baby in some Oakland church with instructions attached as to where to return him. Good luck.

"THE KIDNAPER."
(The letter, dated Sept. 21, 1955, was postmarked at 5 p.m. in Oakland.)

A report of a woman's attempt to steal diapers from a clothesline in San Jose touched off an intense search there.

The report came from Willow street—the same general area where a woman stopped Tuesday at a house and had a bottle of milk heated for a crying baby. A soiled baby blanket also was found in this area.

San Jose police, 50 miles south of San Francisco, began a quick house-to-house search after getting the diaper stealing report from a housewife, Mrs. John Fager, 18.

The child's 29-year-old mother, near collapse after the loss of her baby, is not responding to treatment, said Dr. Marcus.

"Return of the baby would make everything all right," he added.

Hundreds of police—more than a third of San Francisco's 1700-man force—were assigned to the case. They are searching for a buxom blond woman, 35 to 40 years old, whom hospital attendants saw near the nursery just before Robert was taken.

Another possible clue was a half-filled bottle with a nipple, found in a clump of bushes in a San Jose parking lot by taxicab driver George Adams.

A milk formula, which could keep little Robert alive was broadcast and published.

Mrs. Marcus was under sedation and being fed through the veins. Her parents and a brother died in German prison camps and she was a wartime refugee who escaped through Holland to England.

The Marcuses have two other children, 3 1/2-year-old Richard and 2-year-old Susan.

UNIVERSITY CITY PAYS $134,505 ON SEWERS

A check for $134,505 was received yesterday by the City of St. Louis from University City for the share of the expense of installing two pumping stations and interceptor sewers in the River Des Peres drainage system.

Various county communities draining into the River Des Peres were billed a total of $438,000 for their share of the cost of the facilities which were designed to pump sanitary sewage into the Mississippi river during periods of high water when it would otherwise back up in River Des Peres.

Slightly less than half of the bill has now been paid, with the other major contributor being Webster Groves and the Webster Groves Sanitary Sewer District for a total of $76,095.

LONARDI ISSUES ORDER DISSOLVING PERON CONGRESS

took control of the central government following the dictator's resignation.
Peron Still on Boat.
Peron was reported to be still aboard the Paraguayan gunboat in Buenos Aires harbor where he found refuge Tuesday. The new government did not indicate whether it would persist in previous rebel demands that he be surrendered or let him escape into exile. The announcement that a peace agreement had been reached made no mention of Peron's fate.

Paraguayan Ambassador Juan R. Chavez doubted the rebels would impede Peron's departure. He asked the government for an assurance of safe conduct for Peron, and expressed confidence of getting it. The government lifted an embargo of Argentine ports, imposed during the revolt.

The postponement of Lonardi's formal installation as President did not delay the work of setting up the new government. Brig. Gen. Leon Bengoa, one of the leaders in the uprising, was named federal police chief and reports said he already had assumed his new duties.

Bengoa replaced Gen. Robert Leonardo Mania, who had been appointed by the military junta Tuesday. A statement signed by Mania said Bengoa's appointment was made on "superior" orders.

Bengoa was arrested after the unsuccessful June 16 rebellion and released a few days ago when the anti-Peron forces finally emerged as winners. The political turnover also brought the release of other Peron forces from jail.

The leaders of the June 16 revolt, R. Admas, Anibal O. Oliveri and Samuel Toranzo Calderon, reached a naval base near the capital after being freed from jail. Retired Gen. Carlos Eduardo Velasco, chairman of the recently formed Labor Christian party, was released at Eva Peron, Gen. Benjamin Mendez, who was jailed in September, 1951, after leading a brief rebellion, was freed from the national penitentiary.

Two federal judges ordered the release of all political prisoners they were holding for trial. The number was not announced.

Press reports said two close associates of Peron were arrested. They were identified as retired Maj. Carlos V. Aloe, governor of Buenos Aires province until this week, and Miguel Gamboa, former federal police chief. The former governor of Cordoba province, Raul Luccini, also was reported in custody.

What part the members of the outgoing junta might have in the new government was not indicated. Gen. Jose Domingo Molina, junta head, signed proclamations as "commander in chief of the army," but it was not immediately learned if he was retaining that post under the provisional government.

Strict obedience to the orders of the new government was urged by the loyalist national security office. Hector Hugo di Pietro, secretary general of the 6,000,000-member General Confederation of Labor, appealed to the workers to "keep calm and continue working for the good of the country." The confederation was a major force in Peron's rule.

Leaders of the nation's dock unions said they were quitting their posts as a result of Peron's ouster. They invited chiefs of the union's 50 branches over the country to join them.

Apparently still wary of a general strike attempt to return Peron to power, the state radio announced a holiday today to keep the workers from assembling at their plants.

BRIDGES UNION'S RED-TINGED FILM BARRIED IN HAWAII

HILLO, Hawaii, Sept. 22 (AP)—Harry Bridges' International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union is looking for a place to show the movie, "Salt of the Earth," which the House Un-American Activities Committee has labeled Communist propaganda.

Ernest B. De Silva, public school superintendent, barred the film from the Hillo high school and auditorium.

Mr. Gen. Fred W. Makinney, adjutant general of the Hawaii National Guard, refused to permit a showing in the armory where the ILWU territorial convention is being held.

He said the National Guard "does not authorize showing of movies by any organization in the armory by order of the fire marshal. My refusal has nothing to do with the union or the subject matter of the film."

Filming of the movie caused disorders in Silver City, N.M., two years ago when movie crews moved into southwest mining towns for location work. It was sponsored by the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union.

TEACHER DENIED INJUNCTION TO BAR LOYALTY OATHS

CHICAGO, Sept. 22 (AP)—A teacher's petition for a temporary injunction to restrain the Chicago Board of Education from requiring teachers to sign a loyalty oath was denied in Circuit Court yesterday.

Judge Julius H. Miner made the ruling in the suit of Mrs. Shirley Lens, a teacher in the Seward School.

"I cannot, in all conscience, order the injunction now, when I signed the same oath myself, as did all other judges," Judge Miner said.

The court set Oct. 6 for hearing evidence in Mrs. Lens's suit to enjoin the school board permanently from enforcing the loyalty provision.

Frank R. Schneberger, counsel for the Board of Education, said 23,000 teachers and civil service workers employed by the school system signed the oaths. He said only Mrs. Lens and one other teacher have refused to sign.

WITNESS SAYS HE SAW TILL BOY TAKEN INTO BARN

mer suit with a black and gray jacket.

Lawyers showed her a ring taken from the body after it came from the Tallahatchie river Aug. 31. She identified it as her son's ring.

Mrs. Bradley said young Till wore the ring off and on after his father died overseas in service in 1945. But, she said, it was too big for the boy, so he wrapped it with tape or string.

The victim's mother said she went to the jewelry box to get cuff links for the boy just before he left for Mississippi to visit his uncle near Money. She said young Till reached into the box and selected the ring and put it on.

"He called my attention to the fact that he didn't need the tape or string any longer," said Mrs. Bradley.

The silver signet ring is vital in the state's attempt to prove the body in the river was young Till's.

Under cross-examination, she testified she was born about two miles from Sumner but left Mississippi at the age of 2. She said she had lived since in Chicago or its suburbs.

Told to Be Careful.

With the jury out of the room Mrs. Bradley was questioned about instructions she gave her son before he came to Mississippi.

"I told him that in coming down South that he would have to be careful at all times. To say 'yes, sir' and 'yes, m'am' at all times," she replied.

"I impressed it on him that he should be very careful," even to the point of kneeling in the dirt.

"Did you coach him . . . not to insult women?"

"I just said white people," Judge Swango ruled the testimony about her coaching would not be presented to the jury. He also cut off all questions about what newspapers she subscribed to in Chicago.

The judge allowed defense attorneys to admit two pictures in evidence.

One showed Till before his death and the other showed his body in a casket in Chicago.

The casket picture was cut from the Chicago Defender, a Negro weekly newspaper.

Three witnesses for the state yesterday pointed identifying fingers at Bryant and Milam.

After defense objections, Sheriff George Smith of adjoining Leflore county, where the boy was kidnapped, testified that Bryant admitted taking Till from his uncle's home at night, but said he released him unharmed.

Deputy Sheriff John Ed Cothran followed with testimony that Milam also admitted taking the boy from his bed the morning of Aug. 28, and also insisted he had been released unharmed.

Mose Wright, the boy's sharecropper uncle, pointed a finger at the balding Milam and declared, "there he is"—one of two men who entered Wright's cottonfield shack to get Till.

Then the 64-year-old Negro leveled his finger at Bryant and said he was the second man.

Smith rattled off his account of a conversation with Bryant the afternoon of Aug. 28.

The sheriff said Bryant told him "he went down there to his (Wright's) house and brought him (Till) up there to his store and he (Till) wasn't the right one and turned him loose."

The sheriff said Bryant admitted taking the boy for Mrs. Bryant to view to see if he was the lad who whistled at her three days before the kidnapping.

The defendant, father of two young boys, said he spent the rest of the night playing cards with members of his family, the sheriff added.

Smith and Cothran first testified with the jury out of the courtroom. Circuit Judge Curtis Swango then let the jury hear their testimony.

Cothran said he talked to Milam as he placed the defendant in a jail cell at Greenwood.

"I asked him if you all went out to get the boy," Cothran related. "He said 'yes,' but they put him out at the store."

The store was Bryant's country store, at Money, a community of about 100.

The sheriff and his deputy said neither Bryant nor Milam said whether the other accompanied him to get Till.

The courtroom in the old brick courthouse was crowded again yesterday, but virtually everyone was sitting. Judge Swango halted the trial Tuesday afternoon, in part because of the fire danger created by packed spectators.

Representative Charles Diggs (Dem.), Michigan, returned for the second day to hear the opening testimony. The Negro congressman said he merely is an observer at the trial.

NEW POLIO CASES DECLINE 2 TO 3 PER CENT EACH WEEK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (UP)—The United States Public Health Service said today that the number of new cases of polio reported in the past three weeks has declined.

There were 1950 new cases reported in the week ended Sept. 17 as compared to 2009 in the previous week. The weekly decreases have been about two to three per cent.

This compares with a slight upward trend in the disease's incidence which extended over several weeks in the same period of last year.

There have been 20,165 cases reported this year compared with 23,998 last year.

Painted Plants.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Curl neatly solved the problem of what to do when some of the plants in their yard turned brown. They sprayed them with green paint.

PHONE CO-OPS FEAR EXCLUSION FROM U.S. NET

None Has Been Asked to Join Air Force
System — A.T.&T.
Prime Contractor.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 — Officers of some Rural Electrification Administration telephone co-operatives have expressed concern over the possibility they may be shut out of participation in the Air Force continental defense communications network, for which the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is prime contractor.

As far as can be learned none of the approximately 165 telephone co-ops has been asked to take part in the defense project, designated the Semi-Automatic Ground Environment system (SAGE).

It is too early to say whether they will be included as work on the project progresses, but co-op executives who have learned about the vital and mainly secret program are said to be fearful that Bell system affiliates and members of the United States Independent Telephone Association will obtain all the subcontracts and perhaps encroach on co-op territory.

McCormack Critical.
Attention was called to the SAGE project recently by Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, House majority leader, who charged the contractual arrangements for the program, which will cost up to $240,000,000 annually for 10 years, were drawn up and implemented in part without proper authority from Congress.

McCormack's position was supported by Comptroller General Joseph Campbell.

McCormack has promised an investigation by a congressional committee, possibly a House Armed Services subcommittee, and presumably the co-ops will have the opportunity of presenting their viewpoint. Because the SAGE project is secret in many of its aspects, the co-ops have been able to learn little about how their interests might be affected.

Some weeks ago C. R. Thiesen, president of the Montana Telephone Association, an organization of co-ops, wrote a letter to Senator James E. Murray (D-Mont.), Montana, which said in part:

"It is our understanding that the Defense Department is building radar belts across our state and that these radar installations must have phone service. Furthermore, the Bell System has notified us they plan on serving these installations within our service area. It apparently becomes clear that the Defense Department has negotiated with the Bell system for phone service. We feel the Defense Department should give us the first chance to serve these installations within our service area."

Lease of 25,000 Circuits.
This letter was written before it was disclosed through the publication of testimony taken privately by a congressional committee that the Air Force intended to lease some 25,000 circuits from private telephone companies.

Murray made inquiries and was told by Maj. Gen. Joe W. Kelly, Air Force director of legislative liaison, that "when a radar site is located in an independent company's area, the normal practice is for the Bell company to approach the independent company concerned with a statement of the facilities required and afford such company an opportunity to provide the facilities and service."

In another letter last month Kelly said that circuit engineering was in early stages except for two of 40 proposed sectors and that it was not possible to furnish a list of operating companies that might be needed to participate in the SAGE system.

In reply to another inquiry, Murray was informed by the REA that the agency would assist in the SAGE plan in every way possible and that it was felt "certain there is no discrimination against REA telephone borrowers." By "borrowers" the REA meant co-ops as well as private companies holding REA loans.

Two Meetings Held.
As an illustration of the difficulty of obtaining information about the SAGE project, Richard A. Dell, legislative representative of the National Rural Electric Co-operative Association, said he knew of at least two meetings held by officials of the Bell system and of independent companies to discuss the project, at which no co-op telephone companies were represented.

He said the co-ops had no one available with the proper security clearance needed for admittance, and were unable to find out what happened.

A spokesman for A.T.&T. repeated today that the work undertaken by the company has been at the specific request of the Department of Defense, and that rates to be paid will be standard and regulated by law.

The first approaches to the company were made in the Truman administration.

WEST GERMANY TO RECRUIT
AIR RAID WARDENS APRIL 1

BONN, Germany, Sept. 22 (UP)—West Germany plans to start recruiting air raid wardens again next April 1, the Interior Ministry disclosed today.

The first postwar air raid protection law will go into effect at that time if the government's planning is carried through by Parliament. The plan calls for 260,000 volunteer air raid workers.

SOUTHERN TOWN OF 2000 HAS HAD NO AUTO DEATHS

JOHNSTON, S.C., Sept. 22 (AP)—Johnston, population about 2000, has never had a traffic fatality. Also, as far as anyone seems to know, no one ever has been hurt seriously.

The records came to light when the Junior Chamber of Commerce undertook to put up a sign on Main street telling the number of days since the last traffic accident and last fatality.

The J.C.'s traced the records back 13 years without finding a single person killed or seriously hurt. So 13 years is the time put on the sign.

Mayor E. R. Mobley, in office more than 20 years, said he is sure that the number of days without a fatality actually could be traced back to the day the first automobile appeared in Johnston.

"We've never made any special effort at traffic control," Mobley said. "There is only one traffic light in town."

HOUSE GROUP TO GO AHEAD ON POLICE INQUIRY
The committee had decided to invite James W. Connor, operating director of the St. Louis Crime Commission, and several "public officials" to appear at the initial committee hearing Oct. 3.
She and committee members declined to disclose the names of the public officials to be invited. It was understood, however, that the officials probably would include circuit judges.
She reported the committee first wanted to ascertain the facts about crime conditions in the city, including the increase in felonies and the problem of unsolved crimes. Later, she said, a subcommittee will prepare an agenda of matters to be investigated by the group. Members of the subcommittee are Representatives Eugene P. Walsh, St. Louis Democrat, and A. Clifford Jones, Clayton Republican.
Dalton Ruling Cited.
The members also took the position that the status of the committee was not affected by the recent ruling of Attorney General John M. Dalton that the police investigating group had not been legally established because the House resolution to create the group had not been passed by the Senate and approved by the Governor. The committee asserted the opinion was only "advisory."
Other members of the committee are Representatives Joseph W. Martino and Robert M. Uxa, St. Louis Democrats, and Francis M. O'Brien of St. Louis and Samuel B. Murphy of Kirkwood, Republicans.
Board President Long, in a letter Tuesday to Mrs. Walsh, declared the board had no authority to act in connection with the inquiry because of the Attorney General's opinion. He asserted that an "unauthorized" inquiry would set a dangerous precedent and destroy morale in the department.
The crime report issued yesterday by Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell showed that 20,137 major crimes were committed in St. Louis from Jan. 1 to Aug. 31 this year. This represents an increase of 2299 offenses, or 12.8 per cent.
The report also showed that 4425 crimes were solved by the department in the first eight months this year, as compared with 4117 in the same period of 1954. The percentage of solution this year, 22 per cent, is 1 per cent below last year's figure for the comparable period.
There were 2553 crimes in August, which was four less than the total for the previous month, but an increase of 139 over August last year.
The department solved 543 major crimes in August, compared with 513 in July and 582 in August, 1954.
Decline in August.
Crimes against persons, which include homicide, rape, assault and robbery, dropped in August. The total for the month was 364, compared with 392 in July and 394 in August, 1954.
Last month there were 14 homicides, 22 rapes, 219 aggravated assaults and 109 robberies. The department solved 197 of the crimes, or 53 per cent of the total.
In August, 1954, there were 11 homicides, 21 rapes, 222 assaults and 140 robberies. The department solved 232 of these crimes, or 58 per cent.
Last month there were 2189 crimes against property, as compared with 2165 in July and 2120 in August, 1954. The August figures are 548 burglaries, 1199 larcenies and 442 automobile thefts. The department solved 346 of these crimes, or about 16 per cent.
In a talk yesterday, Connor declared that although organized crime is at a "low ebb," the St. Louis area is "engulfed in a wave of disorganized, sporadic, vicious and personal" crime that is endangering the security and safety of the people.
Addressing the Social Action Institute at Pilgrim Congregational Church, 826 Union boulevard, the Crime Commission official reported that this situation is not peculiar to St. Louis but is part of a national trend.
"As against four or five years ago," Connor said, "it is difficult to find drinking establishments with lewd floor shows, 'B' girls and the after-hour 'pitching' of liquor. Irrespective of the much discussed June Lytz massage parlor, organized prostitution is pretty well dried up, at least on this side of the Mississippi river."
Vigorous federal prosecutions, he added, have "broken the back" of organized labor racketeering and extortion, and the traffic in narcotics is being curbed by heavy sentences imposed by federal judges.
"Bookmaking is on a sneak, vest pocket scale," Connor reported. "Other forms of syndicated gambling, like slot machines, roulette and dice casinos, are down even in satellite communities like those just across the river in Illinois."
"However, despite the fact that organized crime is in a near state of collapse, crime as an everyday threat to life and property is still very much with us."
The Police Board, he said, should speed up the police training program, abolish the rule requiring two years' residence for police applicants and transfer more men to beat assignments.
Connor also urged increased use of civilian employees for office work and auxiliary police for traffic control, and the use of one-man patrol cars instead of the present system of having two men ride in each car.
BULGANIN AND KHRUSHCHEV OFF FOR CRIMEA VACATION
MOSCOW, Sept. 22 (AP) — Premier Bulganin and Communist party Secretary Nikita Khrushchev left Moscow today on vacation. They are travelling to Crimea and the Caucasus. There was no information on when they will be back.
Designated last week missed official engagements through indisposition. He and Khrushchev have had a gruelling time in the last six months with almost non-stop international negotiations.

EPIDEMIC THREATENS TAMPICO FLOOD AREA

Northeast Mexico's Death
Total in Wake of Hurricane Now 205.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 22 (AP)—An epidemic of dysentery menaced flood-stricken Tampico today. The outbreak came as the gulf oil port battled the ravages of the rampaging Panuco river in the wake of Hurricane Hilda.

The unofficial death total in northeast Mexico stood at 205, with more expected as the floods continued and isolated sections reported.

Unofficial estimates listed about 400 persons missing in the wake of the flood and hurricane, in addition to the known dead. Another 1000 were reported injured. The Navy Ministry put property damage at a billion and a half pesos ($120,000,000).

Dysentery, which generally stalks the victims of a major flood, broke out among Tampico's 30,000 homeless, almost a third of the 110,000 population. Two children died from the disease at a concentration center, and 100 more were reported critically ill.

Doctors Ask for Aid.

Doctors asked Mexico City for emergency aid. Medicine was being flown in along with food and clothing.

The airlift still constituted the only means of supplying the flood-isolated city. President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines flew to the coast for a personal inspection.

Four United States helicopters arrived to help in the rescue of persons marooned by the Panuco's flood waters.

A thousand persons trapped on a hill several miles from Tampico were rescued by Government launches. But the swift river current prevented the launches from reaching many other isolated communities. Hope for refugees at these points lay with the helicopters.

About 15,000 persons were reported isolated around Soto la Marina, half way between Tampico and Brownsville, Tex. The hurricane destroyed nearly all crops in the 75-mile-wide swath it cut for about 150 miles inland. Highways and railroads were washed out.

Several hundred tourists from the United States and Canada were stopped at the northern edge of the disaster area but were able to return home.

Hurricane Janet Routes Barbados Weather Man.

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 22 (AP)—Hurricane Janet, now whirling 115-mile winds around its center, struck Barbados and drove the weather observer there from his station today as it swirled toward the Caribbean sea. It was centered 1700 miles east-southeast of Miami.

Hurricane and storm warnings covered all of the windward island chain which stretches north and south from the coast of South America to the leeward islands. These two island chains and the greater Antilles separate the Atlantic ocean and Caribbean sea.

Janet, tenth tropical storm of the year, was moving toward the west at about 16 miles an hour. Movement toward the west or west-northwest was expected for the next 12 hours.

"Janet has a well-developed eye and it looks like we've got another hurricane on our hands," said Walter Davis, forecaster in the Miami Weather Bureau.

The latest storm was born just a week after Hurricane Ione blew up 320 miles east of Puerto Rico. Ione crashed ashore on the North Carolina coast, causing an estimated $160,000,000 damage and seven deaths. Ione then veered north-eastward, sparing the populous northeastern United States but hitting St. John's, Newfoundland, with winds up to 82 miles an hour and causing floods there.

Good Reason for Delay.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Mary Barbee, a young telephone operator, had to wait while before picking up the new automobile she won in a drawing here. First she had to sign up for driving lessons and get a license.

OFFICIALS DENY BOHLEN REPROACHED ADENAUER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—United States officials say "it just isn't true" that Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen accused German Chancellor Adenauer of betraying an American secret.

Bohlen himself, vacationing in Cambridge, Mass., from his Moscow post, declined to comment on the news story, carried yesterday in the Bonn newspaper Abendpost.

The paper quoted Adenauer as saying in an off-the-record talk with six American correspondents that Bohlen made the charge during a "temperamental" exchange with Herbert Blankenhorn, Bonn's ambassador to NATO.

United States officials here, describing the story as "cock-eyed," said Bohlen had suggested only that the Russians should be told the American government floats no propaganda balloons. All such balloons are sent into Russia by private organizations, he was quoted as telling Blankenhorn.

Giant Felled.

SOUTH BEND, Wash. (INS)—The day of the big trees may be numbered, but it is not over yet in the far Northwest. A spruce tree 122 inches in diameter—10 feet, two inches thick—was felled in Southwest-

Excerpts From Dulles Speech; Keeping Germany Forcibly Divided Is Crime Against Nature

Western Powers Ready to Advance Some Over-All Plan of European Security to Reassure Russia Against Any New Aggression.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 22 (AP).

Excerpts from the general policy statement of Secretary of State Dulles before the Tenth United Nations General Assembly today:

NOT only will this session round a decade of United Nations effort, but there are welcome signs that the second decade may in fact be more harmonious than was the first. Surely, it is in our power to make it so.

We can feel that confidence because we see the nations becoming more and more sensitive to the moral verdicts of this organization.

Membership—Today we have a wide and important membership. But about a score of sovereign nations are not represented here. Most of them are the membership tests of our charter. . . . To block the admission of such nations by use of the "veto" power is not only a grave wrong to them, it is also a wrong to this organization and to all of its members.

Charter Review—This tenth session of ours must deal with the question of a charter review conference. That is mandatory under the charter. The United States believes that such a conference should be held. One compelling reason would be to reconsider the present "veto" power in relation to the admission of new members, particularly if that veto power continues to be abused.

Also epochal developments in the atomic and disarmament fields may make it desirable to give this organization a greater authority in these matters. They are vital to survival itself.

The United States believes that this session should approve in principle the convening of a charter review conference and establish a preparatory commission to prepare and submit recommendations relating to the date, place, organization and procedures of the general review conference.

Other Events—Some of the events which have occurred since last December . . . have contributed notably to the advancement of our charter goals of international peace and security in conformity with the principles of justice and international law. I shall allude only to those where United States Policy has played a part.

European Security. Turning first to Europe, we see that the Federal Republic of Germany has become a free and sovereign state by treaties concluded with it by France, Great Britain and the United States. Concurrently, the Federal Republic joined the Brussels and North Atlantic Treaties. Also, the Brussels Treaty was itself made over so that, in combination with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, there was developed an effective system of limitation, control and integration of armed forces, the like of which the world has never seen before.

This system insures against the use of national force in the West European area for aggressive and nationalistic purposes. The arrangements provide security, not only for the participants, but also for the non-participants. They end the conditions which have made western Europe a source of recurrent wars, the last two of which have developed into world wars, endangering all.

Never before have collective security and individual self-restraint been so successfully and so widely combined.

Austria—As a sequence to these developments regarding Germany, Austria became free.

It should be noted that the Austrian state treaty, bearing the Soviet Union's signature, contemplates support for Austria's admission to the United Nations.

Summit Meeting—Quickly following these German and Austrian developments came new efforts by France, Great Britain, the Soviet Union and the United States to reduce the danger of war and to solve outstanding issues by negotiation.

Last May, the three western powers proposed a "two-stage" effort. The "first stage" would be a meeting of the heads of government themselves to provide "a new impetus" for a "second stage," which would be that of detailed examination of the substance of the problems.

The first phase of the program occurred at Geneva last July when the four heads of government met. They clearly manifested their common desire for peace and better relations.

'Second Stage.' Now, we enter on the agreed "second stage." A United Nations subcommittee is already discussing the Geneva ideas about disarmament. Next month, the Foreign Ministers of France, the United Kingdom, the Soviet Union and the United States will meet at Geneva. The western powers will associate with them, when appropriate, the Federal Republic of Germany and their other NATO partners.

Germany—At the coming meeting, agreed priority will be given to the closely linked problem of the reunification of Germany and the problem of European security. This is as it should be.

Peron Overthrow Masterminded by Lonardi After Long Years of Underground Plotting

Four Mistakes Cited as Paving Way to Downfall of Dictator.

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright 1955.

MONTEVIDEO, Sept. 22.

HERE is the inside story of how Argentine Dictator Juan Domingo Peron was toppled. It comes direct from leaders of the anti-Peron underground.

Peron made four basic mistakes:

Corruption was permitted in every phase of government.

Peron believed every man had a price.

Bread was substituted for liberty—and the dictator believed the people would accept.

The big three democratic newspapers, including the world renowned La Prensa, were closed to stifle freedom of speech and opinion.

The government attempted to override the Catholic Church.

The last move was the climactic error. It alienated large segments of nationalists and labor groups which carried Peron into power in 1946 and kept him there.

It tended to solidify as well as strengthen the opposition.

Plotting Since 1950.

Anti-Peron forces, secretly headed by Gen. Eduardo Lonardi, had been plotting to overthrow the Peron government since 1950.

Lonardi, who assumed command of the provisional revolutionary government last year, had masterminded underground planning from the outset.

The first big assault on the Peron government was planned for the autumn of 1951—but blew up when a Lonardi aide, Gen. Carl Menendez grew impatient and started a revolt on Sept. 28.

It collapsed when Lonardi, realizing that the time was not ripe, failed to give the signal for over-all rebellion.

Since then, until June 16 of this year, innumerable plots have been worked on but repeatedly postponed.

The June uprising actually ployed the skids under Peron, but it misfired when the timing was thrown off because Peron's private plane was delayed.

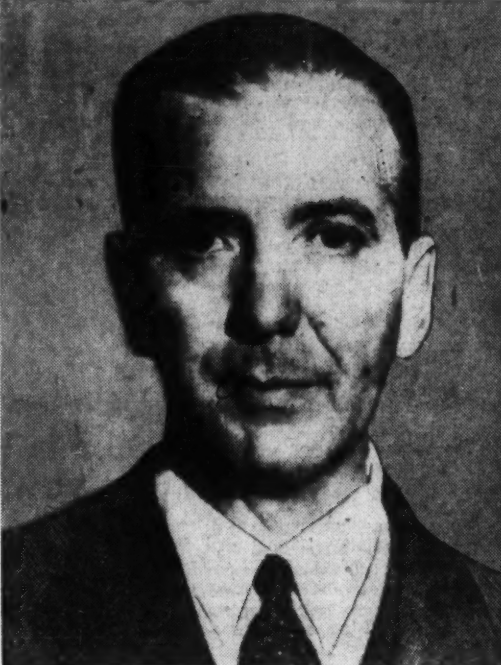

The Navy top command had been working closely with Lonardi under cover. His influence also penetrated the Air Force.

Why Army Was Divided.

The question arises why the Navy and Air Force were more hostile to Peron than the Army, which was divided.

It is easily explained. Those branches—especially the Navy—were widely traveled. They learned about the outside world first hand. The Army stayed at home and many diehard Peron generals were firmly convinced that Argentina, under the corrupt Peron administration, was the nearest thing to heaven on this earth.

One of the biggest difficulties in constructing the revolutionary plot was co-ordination of the land, sea and air forces. Because of the necessity for secrecy, it was an extremely hazardous operation.

After the June uprising the path became simpler. From then on it was only a matter of setting the precise time for the finale.

Underground leaders here are confident that Lonardi can control the Army. He is sometimes called "the general without a Cadillac," a testimonial to honesty in a land where military leaders are undermined by corruption.

Labor Leader Has Spark.

What he lacks is spark to swing the popular sentiment of the masses. This role is likely to be given to Cipriano Reyes, labor leader who was jailed by Peron in 1947 on trumped up charges of conspiracy.

Reyes' release, along with that of other political prisoners, including Adm. Anibal Oliveri, came yesterday. Oliveri was jailed after the June revolt.

Reyes was the original backer of Peron. He swung labor for Peron's rise to power. He is a Catholic and a worker himself, having headed the meat packers union.

Argentines are historically sympathetic to the persecuted. In Reyes they have a persecuted leader who, in the words of one underground leader, "symbolizes the 1943 freedom revolution which Peron betrayed."

General One of Few to Speak Out Against the Late Eva Peron.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 22 (UP).

AJ. GEN. EDUARDO LONARDI, 59 years old, head of the new provisional government of Argentina, is a long time opponent of Juan D. Peron, the man he ousted from the presidency.

Lonardi was one of the few Argentines who dared to speak out against the late Eva Peron. He was "invited" by Peron to retire from the army after denouncing proposals that Mrs. Peron run for the vice presidency in 1951.

He is no stranger to revolutions. He was jailed for eight months in connection with an abortive military revolt in September 1951. The following year he was accused of complicity in plot to assassinate Peron, but escaped imprisonment. He defied police sent to arrest him on suspicion following bombings outside Peron's palace in 1953, demanding that they send a general of equal rank to arrest him if there were any formal charges against him.

Devout Catholic.

Tall and lean, Lonardi has great personal charm. He is a devout Catholic. His wife is the former Mercedes Villada Achaval, a fervent Catholic from Cordoba. They have five children, three sons and two daughters.

Lonardi lives modestly in a northern Buenos Aires suburb, supplementing his army pension by selling insurance and operating a small factory set up by a son who was trained as an engineer in the United States.

The new provisional President is considered democratic and non-political.

However, he has long been a member of the underground revolutionary struggle to overthrow Peron. His many friends in the opposition Radical party include Miguel Zavala Ortiz who flew to shelter in Montevideo with naval rebels after the revolt that failed against Peron last June 16.

Lonardi was born in Entre Rios province, famous for its warriors. He was the son of an Italian-born army captain and his French wife. He was commissioned second lieutenant at 20, and taught mathematics and tactics in the army military academy in the 1930s.

Why He Dislikes Peron.

By the Associated Press. Lonardi's dislike of Peron was said to date to the mid-30s when Lonardi succeeded Peron as Argentine military attaché in Santiago.

Peron, then a lieutenant colonel, tried to get from a retired suburban Maryland.

CIA Is Prepared to Work Fast In Any International Crisis

It Came Up With Right Answers in a Hurry on the Berlin Blockade, Effect of Stalin's Death.

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

(SECOND OF A SERIES.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (UP).

THE CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY can work fast in a crisis.

Normally its director, Allen W. Dulles, meets once a week with his Intelligence Advisory Committee. The IAC consists of Dulles as chairman, and intelligence chiefs from the State Department, Joint Chiefs of Staff, Army, Navy, Air Force, Atomic Energy Commission and the FBI.

The IAC members go over new information from all over the globe. They put together a "national intelligence estimate."

Dulles then reports to the National Security Council at its weekly meeting with the President.

But suppose a crisis should occur between these scheduled weekly meetings. Suppose a piece of information came in which, fitted into the picture with data already on hand, indicated the possibility of an international emergency. Suppose it pointed to a potential Pearl Harbor.

Geared for Action.

The CIA and the "intelligence committee" over which it presides are geared for action at any time.

The CIA watch officer on duty at the moment must notify Dulles or his deputy instantly whenever some critical information comes in.

The subsequent order of notification in a genuine emergency is the President, the Security Council, and the IAC. In most instances, however, the IAC probably would analyze the information before Dulles reported it to the President and the NSC.

Members of the IAC sleep with clothes handy. If any member must go out of town, he leaves a deputy similarly prepared to move fast. The CIA Board of Estimates is ready at any moment to make what is called a "crash estimate." It has made a number in the past year.

Dulles does not guarantee that another Pearl Harbor or Yalu river crossing couldn't happen. He has, however, voiced confidence that this time the vital intelligence involved would be in the hands of the appropriate officials in time for counter measures.

Berlin Blockade.

Typical of past occasions calling for "crash estimates" were the Soviet blockade of Berlin in 1948 and the death of Joseph Stalin in 1953.

CIA was asked for an intelligence opinion as to whether the Russians would go to war if the West tried to break the blockade by air. Its answer was: No. The Allies instituted the famous airlift, broke the blockade, and the Russians did not fight.

When Stalin died, among the questions were: Would the Soviet government break apart, would rebellion break out, would Stalin's heirs launch a military venture of some sort to keep the people on leash? Again the answers were negative.

Crash estimates presumably were produced this year on the Formosa Straits crises and the more recent violence in North Africa and along the Gaza strip.

When the CIA is right, it isn't just by chance. It has come a long way since July 26, 1947, when President Truman signed the National Security Act creating it and the National Security Council.

World Collection.

Its early staff was recruited from the weird but effective collection of spies and school-teachers, business men and scientists, New England aristocrats and strong-arm men, and military and civilian intelligence experts assembled by Gen. William J. (Wild Bill) Donovan to operate World War II's fabulous Office of Strategic Services.

It was as chief of OSS operations in Europe that Dulles, a lawyer with a State Department foreign service background, got the experience which fits him to be America's master spy.

Working out of neutral Switzerland, he established contacts inside German army intelligence and inside the German Foreign Ministry. He probably knew more about Germany's real condition than Adolf Hitler did. He did as much as anybody else to bring about the German surrender in Italy.

Dulles became CIA chief in 1953 after serving as deputy director of Central Intelligence under Gen. Walter Bedell Smith. He has tried to make

BRITISH ENGINE SPEED REPORTED NEARLY 2000 M.P.H.

PLYMOUTH, England, Sept. 22 (AP)—British scientists said last night they have developed an engine capable of driving guided missiles nearly 2000 miles an hour.

The engine, a ram jet, already has been launched with fins as stabilizers, the Ministry of Supply said. Exact performance of height and speed are still secret.

The ram jet was launched by rockets. Data were automatically radioed back from transmitters housed in the casing.

CIA SEEKING INTELLIGENCE ON FINDING NEW HOME

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The hush-hush Central Intelligence Agency has had to get help to find a place for its new $42,000,000 home. It has hired a private planning firm to help decide where to locate what has been called its proposed "junior Pentagon" somewhere around Washington.

Right now, CIA is in the middle of a hot dispute—pro and con—over whether it should locate in suburban Virginia or suburban Maryland.

One of the Most Important Decisions You Will Ever Make

THE choice of the executor who will administer your estate is one of the most important decisions you will ever make. The future financial security of your family may depend in large part upon your making a wise choice.

Before your estate can be distributed to the beneficiaries, it must pass through an administration in the Probate Court. A great many varied and highly technical tasks must be performed in the manner prescribed by law. This holds true whether you have a will or not and regardless of what provisions your will may contain.

Among the most important problems with which your executor must cope are those pertaining to estate, inheritance and income tax matters, close corporation holdings, partnership interests, individual proprietorships, and investment matters.

In many cases, large sums in cash must be raised to meet taxes and other obligations. This may involve important investment decisions as to which securities should be sold to raise cash and which retained. Insofar as your family is concerned, it is the net value of your estate that counts—what is left after payment of taxes, other obligations, and expenses.

The selection of this institution as your executor offers many advantages as compared with any individual. It has permanent existence whereas an individual may die. It never takes a vacation, becomes ill, or too busy with its own affairs to give prompt attention to its duties as executor. It is financially responsible. It maintains an experienced staff composed of specialists in each phase of estate administration. The administration of estates is its regular daily business.

Consult Your Lawyer

Your own lawyer should advise you on all legal problems pertaining to your estate. He should draw your will and any other legal documents needed to carry out your plans.

Fire Truck Tragedy

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Firemen's deaths unavoidable? If any blame is set in this tragic mishap, the truck driver is the least to blame. Anyone who has ridden in or overtaken a highway freighter can attest that the road and engine noise is sufficient to drown out any outside noise, including a siren.
Blame the following instead:
1. Those charged with public safety in the City of St. Louis.
There are electronic devices on the market which, when operated from an emergency vehicle, cause automatic street signals to lock temporarily in its favor. If the cost of such equipment is too high, common sense regulations prohibiting a fire truck from running a red light unless engaged in answering a fire call would have prevented this tragedy.
2. The Federal Government's lack of unity in promoting safety amongst its many departments.
The carrying of mail in large highway freighters is a recent innovation sparked by experimental diversion from railroad mail service supposedly in the interest of speed and economy. The by-product of increasing the already unbearable motor vehicle congestion in the cities and highways apparently is ignored. Evidently public safety means little to those responsible for such unnecessary diversion of mail from the railroad.
C. E. MENCKEL

Siren sounds are very deceptive. It is very difficult to judge how far away or from what direction the sound of a siren is coming, especially when the wind is against it. It may sound as if it were two or three blocks away when in fact it may be dangerously close. I think the old fire bell was much more effective.
MICHAEL F. BLACK

I have for many years held to the conviction that traffic signals operating from midnight to dawn invite accidents of this nature rather than prevent them. The truck driver said that driving west on Chouteau, he observed a red light well in front of him and slowed down his vehicle until the light had turned green. At which time, recognizing the green light as indicating his right of way, he proceeded across the intersection. I have been driving for over 30 years and have covered over a million miles. It has been my contention that at 90 per cent of the intersections controlled by lights, if the red and green are discontinued at midnight and a blinking amber light operated from that time on until daylight, much greater caution would be exercised by drivers.
Certainly, only a benighted fool would cross an intersection controlled by a blinking light at 30 miles per hour or any speed upon which he would be unable to stop his vehicle upon sighting an oncoming vehicle either to his right or left.
VANCE I. SHIELD

Speed, speed, speed; it seems a shame that four of the city's finest should be sacrificed to that demon. No reason can be found for a Fire Department vehicle speeding through a red light when not on emergency service.
Our traffic signals are there to help move our traffic more quickly, and one can well imagine the feeling of that poor driver who was going through on a green light and suddenly see this ill-timed fire truck.
Yes, he should have seen the flasher, he should have heard the siren; but he did not, and four men have passed to the great beyond.
Let's have some orders about controls on all vehicles when not on emergency trips.
JAMES GREENE

Memphis has the answer. When the report of a fire reaches the dispatcher in Memphis a switch is pulled and every stop-and-go signal in the fire area automatically flashes red. The lights remain red until the equipment has reached the scene.
ARTHUR C. JAENICK

I recommend that the St. Louis laws be amended so that emergency vehicle drivers be required to stop at red lights and then proceed through them with caution. This would slow down emergency vehicle response several seconds, but on balance I believe lives would be saved.
There have been too many fatal accidents throughout the country involving emergency vehicles going through red lights. It is too large a gamble to assume that a siren or bell will always be heard.
All emergency vehicles also should be equipped with safety belts. Safety belts are especially desirable for firemen riding on fire trucks. Many firemen have been killed or seriously injured in comparatively minor accidents because they have fallen or been knocked off a moving fire truck. Safety belts would be cheap life insurance.
C. R. KENNINGTON

A siren's screaming challenge rends the air, calm, intrepid men ride forth to dare.
An unknown peril lurking in the dark.
Or tongues of flame sprung from a tiny spark.
Carelessly caused by one sans ill intent.
Let us heap praise when cads denunciate.
And criticize, O, let us emulate.
The brave, ennobling deeds that they perform.
When called to duty by the stern alarm,
True to that service which they represent.

Good Deal for Somebody

Joseph Campbell has a streak of independence in his make-up that stands him in good stead in his important federal job of Comptroller General. Although an Eisenhower appointee, Mr. Campbell surprised Washington last April by coming out against the Eisenhower Administration's proposal to detour a vast highway program around the federal budget by issuing special highway bonds. Now he has ruled that the Air Force did not have the authority to contract with private telephone companies to pay a maximum cost of $240,000,000 a year for 10 years for the operation of a continental defense communications network.

Mr. Campbell's ruling has upset the Air Force enough that it is calling for a reconsideration by Mr. Campbell of his opinion. Our Washington bureau reports it is unlikely that the Comptroller General will come to any different conclusion.

The nub of this controversy is that the Air Force used a section of the Federal Property and Administrative Service Act of 1949 to enter on its own into this costly communications contract instead of getting consent of Congress. Were the contract to be paid off at the maximum every year, the 10-year total would run to $2,400,000,000. That is a sum so large that its expenditure plainly ought not to be contemplated without congressional approval.

The plan, as outlined in the Post-Dispatch news columns, would have the Air Force leasing about 25,000 circuits from A.T.&T. affiliates and other telephone companies. For these circuits the Air Force would pay the rates that would be charged any other subscriber. The total cost of new equipment that the companies would need to install would be only $220,000,000.

House Majority Leader McCormack of Massachusetts, who makes the affair public, describes the Administration's handling of the matter as "clearly a secret effort to by-pass Congress." The Air Force replies by saying that Congress was consulted in advance. If Congress was consulted, it was piecemeal and apparently few if any members, even on pertinent committees, knew what kind of an over-all deal was being made.

Mr. McCormack goes on to say that the contract shows "how far big business has obtained control of our Government" and that the amount involved in the now abandoned Dixon-Yates utility deal was small in comparison.

The country may expect Democratic Congressmen to be sharply critical of Eisenhower Administration procedure at every opportunity as the 1956 campaign approaches. But we may also hope that patriotic instincts will keep politicians on both sides at a minimum where national defense is involved.

A sound reaction is that of Congressman Cannon, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, which obviously ought to know all about a proposed expenditure of such large proportions. From his home in Elsbury, Mo., Mr. Cannon says the committee "will investigate every phase of this transaction."

In his 1952 campaign Dwight D. Eisenhower hit hard and often at expenditure policies of the Truman Administration and its cronies. The President needs to go on guard lest his policy makers from the world of business establish a pattern in administrative procedure that he cannot defend and indeed must repudiate at intervals.

Women Who CARE

St. Louis has as its guest the widow of a distinguished newspaper columnist who is engaged in a fine work which would have been close to her husband's heart. Mrs. Raymond Clapper is director of the Washington office of the Committee for American Remittances to Everywhere, Inc., popularly known as CARE. After Ray Clapper's death in 1944 in the Marshall Islands, Mrs. Clapper edited "Watching the World," a collection of his representative writings on the war, politics and noted personalities.

Mrs. Clapper, who has just returned from a tour of the Far East, told the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs of the increasing importance of aid to Communist-ruled peoples by the American Government and by Americans individually. It is this latter activity that is the special province of CARE. Though CARE sends many forms of aid to many countries, it is concentrating just now, Mrs. Clapper said, on India, Pakistan, Viet Nam and Laos.

The members of the federation to which she spoke are aware of these problems, as evidenced by their support, as a group, of the village of Bazipur, near New Delhi, through the agency of CARE. In the responsiveness of those like Mrs. Clapper and the members of the Missouri Federation to the global needs of their times, there is heartening evidence of the expanding role which women are playing in the world.

Poor Start on Military Reserve

A key part of the Administration's military reserve program which was enacted Aug. 9 as a means of building a 2,000,000-man ready force is off to a poor start. Only 648 pre-draft age youths have signed up thus far for the Army's new six-month training plan which will begin on Oct. 3 and is a key part of the program.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Carter L. Burgess says that enlistments will increase when the armed services step up their campaign of "selling the program." Mr. Burgess evidently has great faith in their ability to sell the program to the 17- and 18-year-olds and to their parents. Many, many parents object to seeing their sons go into the services. And the youths, balancing the varied and many employment opportunities, the scholastic field and the pleasures of civilian life against the hardships of military life, are not anxious to don uniforms.

If the reserve plan is to succeed, it is up to the services to present an attractive program containing such merits that it will draw volunteers.

It Sounds Like Static

David Sarnoff suggests that the question of pay-as-you-see TV be made an issue in the 1956 elections. The board chairman of Radio Corp. of America and the National Broadcasting Co. says toll-television is as important an issue as prohibition used to be, and the people ought to vote on the matter.

Somehow this strikes us as the idea of a man whose recollection of those dreary dry days of the '20s is much dimmer than his present preoccupation with TV.

While waiting for Republicans or Democrats, or even Prohibitionists, to take up the Sarnoff suggestion, the public will be interested in hearing more about pay-TV. For the nation does not yet have it, and has not heard nearly enough about it, except from its opponents.

Hence today's Mirror of Public Opinion reprints a Christian Science Monitor editorial on the pros and cons of the subject. Three small radio groups have asked the Federal Communications Commission to permit toll-TV, in which subscribers would pay to watch particular programs. The three big networks are opposed. Somehow or other the champions of commercial television have got the idea that their product is completely "free." But if television is giving itself away, of course, it need not fear competition from pay-TV. In fact, champions of freedom should not object to giving the audience a free choice of the kind of programs it wants. The place for the decision on toll-television is at the receiver switch, not at the polls.

Daylight in October

Daylight saving time ends in St. Louis early next Sunday, and that will be a pity. If the Board of Aldermen had been alert to its opportunity, St. Louis might well have joined seven states and a number of individual communities throughout the nation in extending daylight time through the end of October. But perhaps some enterprising member of the Board will introduce such a proposal for next year. He would be on solid ground. St. Louisans already have approved the principle of daylight time. They did so in a referendum in 1947, and for such good reasons as automotive safety, youth welfare, gardening, savings on electric bills and the pleasure of an extra hour of light. Extending daylight time through October would be in harmony with the will of the people and in tune with the times.

Secretary Mitchell's Visit

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell's visit to St. Louis is occasion to note the independence and courage of this member of the Eisenhower Administration. Mr. Mitchell occupies a unique position in the Cabinet.

A former industrial relations director in New York, Mr. Mitchell was named Secretary of Labor following the resignation of the late Martin P. Durkin, an AFL union man. Mr. Durkin had found it impossible to deal with other members of the "business Administration" on labor affairs, or to get their co-operation.

Undaunted by his predecessor's difficulties, Mr. Mitchell took the post and said and did what he thought was right. He attempted to represent, not only labor outside the Government, but the moderate wing of the Republican party inside the Administration.

Thus he was forthright in appealing for changes in the Taft-Hartley labor law, which President Eisenhower had pledged. And though the President himself had not made up his mind about the so-called "right to work" laws, by which states prohibited union security contracts, Secretary Mitchell made no bones about where he stood. He was flatly against such laws and used all his influence to check their spread.

Mr. Mitchell's tenure has produced higher minimum wages and expanded social security coverage. Nothing has been done, however, about Taft-Hartley. Republican congressional leaders showed little disposition to change the law, and the Democrats in the last session obviously were saving the issue for campaign ammunition. Former President Truman already has begun to attack the Administration as "indifferent" to labor.

It naturally fell to Secretary Mitchell to reply. And his reply, which he repeated on coming here to address a conference of employment security agencies, is simply that industrial prosperity is at record heights and labor has never been better off. This does not exactly answer the opposition's criticism on Taft-Hartley, nor will it satisfy union leaders. But in politics prosperity is a hard argument to beat.

Bus Lanes Worth a Trial

The city's decision to try out reversible traffic lanes on Gravois avenue starting next week is welcome, but it would be more so if a try-out were being given at the same time to the Public Service Company's plan for a curb lane for exclusive use of busses.

The Gravois experiment is intended primarily to handle heavier traffic expected with the opening of the Third Street expressway, and the city indicates time is lacking to add the bus-lane feature. This is unfortunate. The bus-lane proposal offers definite hope of attacking the root of the traffic congestion problem—that is, the movement of people rather than vehicles into and out of the downtown area. Now that the Public Service Company has offered to pay "a fair proportion of the original investment" required to install bus lanes, the plan recommends itself more than ever.

If it is too late for a trial on Gravois, why not on one of the other major arteries leading into the downtown area? Surely it would be worth while finding out whether movement of both automobiles and busses could not be expedited simultaneously.

The Yanks have won a tie and now they are within a hair of the World Series and we take this as a good omen for the Foreign Ministers meeting at Geneva.

"WE'RE ALWAYS WILLING TO BARGAIN"

—From The Washington Post.

Pay-as-You-See TV?

Commercial broadcasters object to idea of special fee-television on closed circuits; actually, editorial suggests, they are unnecessarily afraid of competition; the press had to adjust to radio, and TV can adjust to subscription TV if public wants it.

From The Christian Science Monitor

The Federal Communications Commission has before it one of the most complex questions imaginable in deciding whether to authorize subscription television in the United States.

Three companies have developed systems which would enable people to be available only to those who paid a fee through a device to "decode" the transmitted signal. The commission may take months to reach its ruling. Heads of the broadcasting networks protest that "toll-television," as it has been called, would deprive the viewer of something he has been accustomed to enjoy "free."

This something was a program for which the viewer paid by listening to a commercial. If he wished the freedom of following a program of his own choosing without interruption, that freedom was denied him—but may be offered at a price by the new system. The broadcasting station, it is argued, should not be allowed to charge the public for a program transmitted over a channel allocated to it by the public. But if that is true, should the station be allowed to collect money from an advertiser for reaching the public over that same channel?

Some motion-picture interests join the indignation of certain TV viewers at the prospect of having to pay to see a first-run film in their own homes. But if they go to the theater to see it they will not expect to get in without a ticket.

Finally, one leading radio executive argues that television "cannot long remain half free and half fee"—that one system, probably the one which charges the viewer, will drive the other out.

This could be true only on the assumption that subscription television would produce such superior programs that no one would watch the free programs any longer. For no stations would be barred from transmitting sponsored broadcasts; and there are unused television channels available for either type of operation.

Surely if audience-supported programs could be so much better, that would be a point in their favor. Actually, we do not anticipate there would be such extreme distinctions either of product or of market.

The pay-as-you-see type of television will have to fight for a sustaining audience, and against entrenched competition of give-away entertainment. We would anticipate that pay TV, if permitted, will find only a rather limited and selective audience. However, like the users of toll highways, these may support well some undertakings. These numbers who would pay a fee to see on their home screens high-grade new movies, top theatrical productions, opera or other good music, and certain outstanding sports events.

But the experience of newspapers and magazines suggests that people will not readily pay the whole bill for information or entertainment which advertisers are willing to help put before them.

In fact, the experience of newspapers suggests also that the worst fears of theater owners regarding the competition of subscription TV may be overdrawn. Thirty years ago the newspaper industry was greatly disturbed over a new rival—radio. Yet newspapers have adjusted and survived, as has the theater in the face of many technological changes.

Progress would not have been served by suppressing radio to save the newspapers. Free enterprise demands that every invention shall have opportunity to show its worth.

The Paradox in Farming

From The Pleasant Hill Times

"The economic paradox of our time is the presence of a serious depression in agriculture, the nation's basic industry, while at the same time there is unprecedented prosperity throughout the United States," says a resolution adopted by the Missouri Farmers Association in convention at Columbia.

"This depression in agriculture is a blight upon the nation's economy and a constant threat to the well-being of every American. Since 1932, farmers have suffered a 25 per cent decline in income, plus terrific losses in inventory value. While their income and inventory values have been declining, their costs of production have been rising.

"The Congress has been tinkering with the farm problem for years, but instead of dealing with the causes of our surpluses, has always dealt with their effects. What must be done is for Congress to find ways of getting surplus foods consumed."

The M.F.A. suggests a food stamp plan as the way to reduce surpluses. It seems to us that "depression," in the light of what it means to most persons, is too strong a term in reference to reduced farm prices and farm incomes at this stage, but there are warning signs up that cannot go unheeded. It was this same set of circumstances, lowering farm incomes in the midst of general prosperity, that in the late '20s set the stage for the great depression of the '30s.

Certainly there is not any general distress among the farmers, but it is equally obvious they are not doing as well as they were a few years back, and any resemblance between present conditions and those of the late 1920s is a matter for serious concern.

Prosperity on the farm has always meant a prosperous U.S.A.

From The Madison (Wis.) Capital Times

Back in the days when Harry Truman was President there used to be a lot said in the papers about "cronyism" in government. That theme has been pretty well forgotten by the One Party press now that a Republican President is in the White House.

None of these papers are suggesting that the decisions being made in the White House turning the country over to big business are the result of "cronyism," though they used to say that Truman's decisions were influenced by the men who surrounded him.

We noted, the other day, the list of big business executives who flew into Denver to spend Labor day with President Eisenhower. They included these names:

W. Alton Jones, president of the Cities Service Oil Co.; Robert W. Woodruff, board chairman of the Coca-Cola Co.; L. F. McCollum, president of the Continental Oil Co.; William Reed, board chairman of General Electric; Cliff Roberts, New York investment banker; William E. Robinson, president of Coca-Cola; E. D. Slater, president of Frankfort Distillers.

Here is the "cronyism" that is reflected in virtually every major decision made in Washington these days.

Between Book Ends

SHIPS COMPANY, by Lonnie Coleman. (L.H.W. Brown & Co., 229 pp., $3.50.)

The U.S.S. Nellie Crocker was an undistinguished merchantman in the South American trade before she was converted into a transport to ferry troops to hostile shores in the Mediterranean and Pacific during World War II. "Ship's Company" is a collection of ten short stories about the U.S.S. Navy men who sailed aboard her.

Unlike most writers of realistic nautical fiction, Lonnie Coleman does not rely upon the fury of foul weather at sea to furnish his dramatic situations. Instead, the villain of these stories is the pressure of disparate personalities upon one another in the close quarters of a ship's company. Coleman is a gifted writer with an acute awareness of social psychology, and all of the stories gathered in this volume have the craftsmanship of contest prize-winners.

Though it is difficult to choose among them, perhaps the best is the one about the shy yeoman who withdraws into religious fanaticism and suffers cruel persecution at the hands of a shipmate. Some of the story-themes are more pleasant than others, but all of them credibly portray minor stresses of wartime navy life, of the kind that have been overlooked or seldom written about before. JACK ALDRIDGE.

A Summer in West Fortune

THERE COMES A TIME, by Charles Mercer. (G. P. Putnam's Sons, 312 pp., $3.50.)

When the Rev. Adam Brock resigned as pastor of the Old Fourth Church in New York City, where he had acquired a reputation as a "successful preacher," he decided to spend the summer in West Fortune, a little town in upper New York which he had found by chance. The church in West Fortune was closed for lack of parishioners and Adam had no desire to re-open it unless rescued by the people themselves.

As the months passed and Adam came to know his neighbors well, especially Mona and Lance Winter, the physicist and his rich and unhappy wife, he felt it imperative to re-open the church, in order that he could help these unhappy people straighten out their lives with the help of God and the church.

This novel starts out very promising, with the author's love of the locale breathing through the pages. His handling of the more "ordinary" characters is excellent, but when he treats of the more complicated personalities, such as Mona Winter and of Adam Brock as a minister, the writing becomes self-conscious and immature. The ending is contrived, as if the author had found it impossible to straighten out his characters' lives and washed his hands of them by melodramatic means.

Try Kouzou Kzartmas!

THE PEASANT COOK BOOK, by Marian Tracy. (Manor House, $3.50.)

By peasant cooking Miss Tracy means simple foreign cooking of basic foods, which in turn means that this book is assured of a larger audience than one aimed only at gourmets. Her selection of recipes is wide and mouthwatering and you will find everything here from Rumanian gherich (a vegetable dish) to Armenian kouzou kzartmas (lamb with tomatoes). Her recipe for bouillabaisse was tried out by my wife, and I can report that the result was highly satisfactory. Miss Tracy writes with a light touch and thoughtfully includes cooking time for each recipe. If you can't find anything tasty in these 100 recipes drawn from 39 countries, I suggest you stick to simple hamburgers. JOHN BARKHAM.

THOMAS L. STOKES

When Ezra Benson Kept Quiet

WASHINGTON. PAST HISTORY—including acts of omission—often rises up to haunt the managers of government and politics. We find an illustration in the present emergency of falling farm prices and reduced farm income which is engaging the serious concern of the Eisenhower Administration and has called Vice President Nixon and Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson to the stump to explain and promise help to the farmers.

Before going into the past, let us sketch in the present picture. In his speeches, Secretary Benson stresses a familiar analysis of the farmer's plight by saying that in the past four and a half years farmers have been "squeezed between inflexible high operating costs and declining farm prices." He fixes the blame Senator Langer thus:

"Throughout this period a considerable part of the increased profits that have gone to industry and the higher wages that have gone to labor have been siphoned from the economic bloodstream of the nation at the expense of agriculture."

The Middleman's Take.

"This trend has been most apparent in some segments of the food industry. Constantly widening margins—forced by higher wages, transportation and handling costs—have prevented consumers from enjoying the savings which would otherwise have stemmed from increasing agricultural productivity and efficiency, and lower farm prices."

"Most food prices have remained stable during recent years only because the farmer has paid virtually the entire cost of moving agricultural products to the ultimate consumer."

What Secretary Benson is saying is that something happens between the time the farmer sells his produce and the time it reaches the consumer. All sorts of costs are added. We usually call the various handlers between farmer and consumer "middlemen."

Where Goes the Dollar.

The Secretary singled out "increased profits" by industry and "higher wages" of labor without breaking down these broad categories into all the processing, selling and handling agencies embraced by the "middlemen."

Nor did he offer statistics except in the case of farm machinery. He cited 7 per cent increases recently announced by some companies for certain items of farm machinery.

That was in his speech to the Farm Equipment Institute at New Orleans when he took occasion to warn "tell you in all honesty that most farmers will find it extremely difficult to take an increase in farm machinery prices at this time."

Now for the past history, and not so far back at that. Three years ago an opportunity was offered for a thorough investigation by the Federal Trade Commission of what happens to the consumer dollar, which would have followed all the steps from farmer to consumer. But such an inquiry was squelched by the Republican leadership in Congress in the first session of the Republican-controlled Eighty-third Congress early in the Eisenhower Administration.

That would have given us the story which Secretary Benson could have used to drive home the point which he now brings forward belatedly.

Stepping on Toes.

What occurred is one of those intriguing behind-the-scenes stories in politics.

In the closing days of the previous Administration, President Truman had issued an executive order for the Federal Trade Commission to make a thorough investigation of what happens to the consumer dollar.

It was recognized, of course, that this would step on many powerful toes, for the food and allied industries are politically powerful. Sure enough things began to happen in the Eighty-third Congress. When the bill carrying appropriations for the Federal Trade Commission was before the House Appropriations Committee, the bill was amended to forbid use of any funds for the consumer dollar investigation and so the House approved the killing of the proposed inquiry.

FTC Inquiry Killed.

This "sleeper" or "joker" was discovered by Senator Langer when the bill went before the Senate. The North Dakota Republican pointed out that such a curb on the investigative powers of the Trade Commission was unprecedented in its 40-year history. He offered an amendment to permit the FTC to conduct the consumer dollar investigation.

He and those who supported him were opposed by the Senate Republican leader, the late Senator Taft of Ohio, and by Senator Saltonstall (Rep.), Massachusetts, who was in charge of the bill providing appropriations for the Trade Commission.

They argued that the Agriculture and Labor Departments made studies into costs which would suffice. Subsequently the Senate voted, 45 to 30, to back Senators Taft and Saltonstall, and so the inquiry was killed.

Though Secretary Benson speaks up now about how the farmer is squeezed and the consumer deprived of lower food costs, he did not speak up then, as he could have, in behalf of real investigation into the consumer dollar which has been so long needed.

POST OFFICE TO ISSUE NEW TYPE MONEY ORDERS

A new type money order will be issued in first- and second-class postoffices here starting Oct. 1, Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann announced today. Later, as the present supplies of old money orders are exhausted, the new ones will be issued also at smaller postoffices.

The new money order is divided into three perforated parts. One is for the issuing postoffice's record, the second for the purchaser's record, and the third is the actual body of the order showing amount, names of purchaser and payee and other data.

Dickmann said the new money order form places on the purchaser the responsibility of entering his name and address as well as the name of the payee. He added that heretofore it was necessary for the patron to fill out an application form and for the issuing clerk to fill in the amount, the name of the purchaser and other details which very often caused long lines to form. The new forms will speed up issuance, Dickmann said.

TEMPLE OF DIANA REMAINS BELIEVED DUG UP IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Sept. 22 (UP)—British archaeologists have dug up the remains of what may be a temple of Diana built in the Roman occupation of Britain. Dr. V. E. Nash-Williams, keeper of archaeology at the National Museum of Wales, said excavating on a Roman site at Caerleon in Monmouthshire had uncovered a "public building which might well prove to be the famous temple."

posed would be "entirely appropriate." A spokesman said the net effect of the A.A.A.'s statements is to leave the decision on financing to the Congress, with the A.A.A. strongly recommending earmarking motorist taxes for highway construction.

LAWYERS, EDITORS TO BE QUESTIONED

Hennings Group to Query Them About Free Speech.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Senate subcommittee on Constitutional Rights said today its free speech and press questionnaire is being sent to members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and to law school professors of the American Association of Law Schools.

"The purpose of sending the questionnaire to these groups," Chairman Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem., Missouri), said "is to enable the committee to get a sampling of opinion among groups professionally interested in problems of free speech and press."

Their replies will be analyzed by the Bureau of Social Science Research of American University, under the direction of Dr. Robert F. Bower.

Bower will testify on his findings when the subcommittee holds its hearings on the free speech and press clause of the Constitution. These hearings are tentatively scheduled for the week of Oct. 17.

The questionnaire, which also is being distributed to interested members of the general public, was made public by the subcommittee earlier in the week and covers a broad range of topics relating to free speech and press.

Hennings said the questionnaire is expected to be a valuable aid to the committee in selecting witnesses and specific topics for its hearings, and in the preparation of its report.

TOWN GIVES BOY ARTIFICIAL LEGS, $12,000 BESIDES

PONTIAC, Mich., Sept. 22 (AP)—Bobbie Dunn is back at his Pontiac home, and he made it under his own power.

Bobbie, 14 years old, lost both legs while trying to catch a ride on a Grand Trunk freight train last Christmas day. One leg was severed and the other had to be amputated.

Benn Dunn, Bobbie's father, was jobless. There was no money for hospital care and expensive artificial legs. Nancy Donaldson, daughter of Pontiac Mayor John Donaldson, started a collection to help him.

With money donated by townspeople he was sent to a hospital in Grand Rapids, where he was fitted with artificial legs.

Bobbie returned home yesterday for a happy reunion with his family. In a Pontiac bank is $12,000 in his name, the remainder of the fund donated for his care.

CALLS FOR PROGRAM ON CHILD READING

Adviser Addresses Board Set Up to Review Literature Sold Children.

The need for developing better reading habits among children was emphasized yesterday by an educator called in to advise the municipal Board of Review for Juvenile Readers in preparing the board's program for operation.

The board was created recently by city ordinance to review literature offered for sale to children and to report to police and prosecuting authorities such reading matter which "would tend to incite to crime."

John O'Brien, head of the department of education at St. Louis University, said that children whose chief reading material is comic books might tend to be retarded in their mental development and that the board's program should include means to encourage reading of wholesome literature.

John Curtis of the university's department of sociology said there was no evidence that the reading of comic books had any deleterious effect on normal children, but that there was a detrimental effect on children who were developing defective traits of character.

He said it was important that the board undertake an educational program among adults to encourage proper development of children's reading habits.

The board will meet again Oct. 10 to hear experts from Washington University who have been invited to assist the agency in planning its operations.

Hermann Winkelmann, chairman of the group, announced earlier that the board would not attempt to act primarily as a censorship body, but would attempt to counteract influences of lurid publications.

56 DIAMONDS ADORN CROWN OF V.P. QUEEN

The crown which the Veiled Prophet will place on the head of his Queen of Love and Beauty at the ball Oct. 4 will contain 56 diamonds, 11 Oriental pearls and five sapphires, it was announced today.

A slender algerette plume rises from a large pear-shaped sapphire, but the plume is synthetic because federal law forbids the sale, purchase or use of the plumage of white heron.

Of traditional design, the crown consists of a platinum bandeau with a center jewel in the shape of a miniature crown which may be removed and worn as a brooch or pendant. The crown is retained by the Queen as a gift from the Veiled Prophet.

The four special maids of honor receive similar crowns but they contain 10 fewer diamonds each. The crowns and coronation robes will be worn by the Queen and her special maids when they take part in the parade the night following the ball.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—Samuel H. Kress, founder and chairman of the board of S. H. Kress Co., nation-wide five-and-dime chain store, died today at his home. He was 92 years old.

Mr. Kress first entered the retail mercantile business in Nanticoke, Pa., after a period of school teaching. Later he went into the wholesale stationery business in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. From this beginning emerged the Kress chain, which included more than 250 stores at the time of his death.

He was a bachelor. His brother, Rush, vice chairman of the store chain, survives.

Kress, a descendant of American revolutionary stock, established his first five-and-dime store in Memphis, Tenn., in 1886. In the four years he opened 12 stores in the South. Eventually he established his headquarters in New York City.

Kress was president of the Samuel H. Kress Foundation, a trustee of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, of the National Gallery of Art and of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation.

An avid art lover, he acquired a collection of paintings and sculpture, particularly of the Italian school, which was presented virtually intact to the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. He also gave paintings and sculpture to various other museums, including the Nelson Gallery in Kansas City.

A.A.A. URGES SAFER, NOT FASTER, AUTOS

Calls on Manufacturers to Do More to Protect Drivers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (UP)—The American Automobile Association told manufacturers today they ought to stop emphasizing higher horsepower and do more to protect automobile drivers.

The A.A.A. said the increased horsepower and higher speeds in new cars have created potential highway hazards.

The policy statement was adopted at the closing business session of the A.A.A.'s fifty-third annual meeting. It said "reasonable reserve power" is desirable for passing and in other driving emergencies, but anything above that "would seem to impose on the car user an unwarranted potential hazard."

The statement called on manufacturers to "tone down their increasing emphasis on more and more horsepower and higher and higher speed potentials in their new models."

Instead, it said, manufacturers should "devote more thought and emphasis upon ways and means of protecting the driver against his own mistakes and to develop and introduce new safety features into the construction of automobiles."

Delegates then got into a heated wrangle over financing a new highway construction program and finally decided to leave the decision up to Congress.

In the highway fight in the last session, the association reluctantly endorsed a Democratic substitute which would have paid for new roads in higher "user" taxes instead of through special bonds as President Eisenhower proposed.

The policy statement adopted today reaffirmed the association's traditional opposition to all excise taxes on motorists—on automobiles, parts and accessories as well as on fuel. It added that so long as such levies are in effect all should be earmarked for federal highway construction.

Another policy statement favored "pay-as-you-go financing... whenever it is feasible and practical to so with taxes apportioned equitably among the several beneficiaries."

Where such financing is not feasible, it added, credit financing such as the President pro-

THERE'S a new spirit alive in Greater St. Louis today. This is a city on the move!

You can almost feel its momentum.

...in the downtown Plaza area where the decay of years is giving way to green parkways and tall apartment buildings.

...in the voice of the people who said "yes" to a $110 million bond issue for the rebirth of their community.

...and, in the latest evidence of the new spirit of St. Louis—the United Fund. It brings you a new way of giving in keeping with our new way of living.

A LONG- FELT NEED

You, the people of St. Louis and St. Louis County have always given generously in support of worthy charities.

But, you have asked—and with good reason—why must there be so many fund-raising drives? Can't something be done to ease the annoyance and confusion of one drive following another in a never-ending stream? Isn't there waste and inefficiency in so many separate solicitations?

The United Fund is that "something" you have asked for.

THE ANSWER: UNITED FUND

After thorough study, an entirely new non-profit organization was formed, known as the United Fund of Greater St. Louis, Inc.

It is the purpose of the United Fund to eliminate the separate fund-raising campaigns of the many health, welfare and character-building agencies and combine them all into one single annual drive. The first United Fund campaign will start Thursday, October 20.

The benefits to you are summed up in the slogan, ONE GIFT...FOR ALL. You give only once a year... with the full assurance that those who need your help will share the gift you give.

Approval of the United Fund has come from everywhere, from every walk of life. It has been wholeheartedly endorsed by labor and business leaders; by industry and white collar workers; by civic groups, women's organizations and service clubs; by press, radio and television.

A PROVEN ANSWER

The idea of a United Fund is not an untried experiment. Some 400 cities (among them Kansas City, Detroit, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Dallas and Houston) have faced a similar problem and successfully solved it with an annual United Fund drive.

In Detroit, for example, where the United Fund idea began, enthusiastic acceptance of this modern plan of giving has doubled contributions in the last five years.

SOME FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW

There is every reason to believe we can enjoy the same kind of success here. But, above all else, success will depend on understanding and belief in the United Fund.

You should know that:

1. The United Fund includes worthy local and national agencies in the health, welfare and character-building fields. (See complete list on next page.)

2. Money raised by the United Fund is to be used for the day-to-day expenses of operating the various agencies, not for new buildings or building improvements.

3. The sale of Christmas and Easter Seals are seasonal expressions of good will, conducted by mail and therefore not included in the United Fund.

4. A few eligible organizations have declined to join the United Fund and, contrary to public demand, will hold their own campaigns.

Because everything points to the United Fund as the expressed will of the vast majority...

and because it can only work if ONE GIFT...FOR ALL is a real, accepted way of giving, these firm recommendations are made in the best interest of all concerned:

- that you, in good conscience and as a good citizen, combine all your gifts to health and welfare charities and make only one major contribution a year through United Fund.
- that businesses make their corporate gift to the United Fund their one contribution to the health, welfare and character-building needs of the community.
- that employers allow only one employee solicitation a year and that for the United Fund.
- that employers make their personnel available as campaign workers for only one drive a year, the United Fund drive.

YOU HOLD THE KEY

THE United Fund can and will end much needless duplication of fund-raising drives in the health and welfare field—by far the biggest cause of irritation and confusion.

It can and will cut waste, in money and in time.

It can and will do these things if it's a strong, vigorous United Fund. You hold the key to its strength and the good it can do. You need to learn about it... think about it... talk about it... believe in it.

Then, in October when each of us is asked to do his part...

In the new spirit of St. Louis... give once... give well... the United Fund way.

One gift for all

Each of the organizations listed below has agreed to join together in a single annual fund-raising drive under the supervision of United Fund.

The Community Chest, you will note, is listed among the participating agencies. For years, the Community Chest has conducted a fund-raising drive for its more than 100 member agencies. The Community Chest remains intact, serving its member agencies in all past ways, with the exception of fund raising.

PRICE RISES POP AT CONSUMER LEVEL

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP).

PRICE RISES—starting at the production level in the summer—are now popping out on consumer items. Testing time lies just ahead.

Automobiles, gasoline, television sets, hats, floor tiles—one or more manufacturers in these fields have raised prices this week. And the parade of higher prices continues in fields that consumers encounter only indirectly and later on after the boosts raise production costs—electric transformers, oil field equipment, bleached sulphite pulp, nickel-chromium alloys.

Testing time will come when the consumer reacts. Manufacturers argue that prices must go up because the cost of labor and industrial materials have gone up. Retailers argue that one of the chief reasons for the booming demand for consumer goods has been price piling that offered the public bargains—that the demand could shrivel under the frost of higher prices this fall.

BOTH, ADMITTEDLY, AREN'T SURE what the consumer will do. But both expect to know the answer before many more weeks. The consumer's first interest is likely to be in the higher price tags on the 1956 model cars. Ford is taking the first step. Its new Fords will be higher by from $46 to $99. Its Lincolns already have been raised. Others in the industry haven't announced yet. But many expect prices hikes of roughly 5 per cent. The auto makers can point to a sizable pay increase for their workers and to the higher prices they must pay for steel, copper and other materials that go into their 1956 models. With their costs rising they can argue that car prices must go up.

PUBLIC REACTION TO THE NEW MODELS and to the higher prices will settle that hot question in the industry—how much of the big sales total of the 1955 models was due to the attractive deals which many of the buyers were able to make, and how much to the striking colors and other new features. So many Mobil Oil Co. is raising the wholesale price of gasoline a half cent a gallon in 11 eastern states. The interesting thing about the increase is that it comes at the end of the big sales season for gasoline and affects states where there have been scattered price wars. The Hat Corp. of America and the John B. Stetson Co. are raising prices on some of their hat lines—although not all. This follows the doubling of prices of hatter's fur in world markets because of a shortage.

BUT SOME OF THE PRICE NEWS this week makes good reading for the consumer. Heavy supplies of meat pouring into midwest markets have been lowering wholesale prices there. The Agriculture Department estimates that the meat supply is currently 14 per cent greater than a year ago. Slaughter of cattle and the production of beef last week was the largest on record, and hog slaughter the highest since March. And the National Association of Tobacco Distributors says there are still lots of five-cent cigars. It reports that 38 per cent of all cigars sold in the United States are of that old standby. They're topped, however, by ten-cent smokes—41 per cent of all sales.

SOYBEANS UP LIMIT, OTHER GRAINS STRONG

CHICAGO, Sept. 22 (AP)—Soybeans boomed as much as 10 cents, the daily limit, in extremely active dealings on the Board of Trade today.

The wild buying spree in beans spread into other grains, although they never advanced as much as soybeans and they fell back from their best level before the close.

Wheat, corn and rye were up several cents at one time. Oats lagged, posting fractional gains. Lard futures also scored only modest gains.

Processors were credited with buying soybeans futures as well as cash soybeans. Cash bean meal was firm. Rains in Illinois were delaying the soybean harvest. Yields were reported smaller than expected.

CIA IS READY TO WORK FAST IN ANY CRISIS

CIA a lifetime career for persons sufficiently qualified and dedicated to make good intelligence agents.

He intends to stay in his present job as long as his bosses will let him. He wants no other. He has no political ambitions and is determined that political considerations shall not influence CIA so long as he is boss. He says it never has.

His friends say Dulles is making a sincere and for the most part successful effort to keep down the feuding which early in its life marred civilian CIA's relations with the military intelligence agencies.

Takes Mandate Seriously. At the same time, he takes seriously his statutory mandate to co-ordinate all foreign intelligence work and make recommendations to the Security Council on assignments for the various agencies in that field.

There is no doubt that if he felt an intelligence chief in the Pentagon was incompetent, or incapable of harmonizing his work with that of the rest of the intelligence community, under CIA direction, he would recommend the man's removal. Dulles concedes personnel recruitment is the CIA's most vital problem. Intelligence can only be as good as the men who go after it, he says.

It is his hope as CIA matures to build up a tradition of anonymous service maintained by a nucleus of veterans skilled in all the arts of intelligence. The British did that, and he believes the United States can.

Recruits may come from many sources—college graduating classes, science, the professions, labor, commerce, the important pool of retired business men and retired military officers.

Of every 1000 applicants 800 are screened out by CIA personnel officials. Of the remaining 200, 22 are eliminated because they drink or talk too much or have relatives behind the Iron Curtain.

Of the 178 left out of the original 1000, some 71 are screened out as serious security risks because they have contacts which make them undesirable.

The remaining 107 may be given a chance to make good. If they are hired, they must continue to prove themselves—at least theoretically—every day on the job. For in the CIA there is no such thing as a single security check. (Tomorrow: The CIA under cover.)

GODFREY FAILS TO ANSWER CAA ON PLANE INCIDENT

CHICAGO, Sept. 22 (UP)—Charges that television star Arthur Godfrey flew too close to an airliner in his private plane will be sent to the Civil Aeronautics Administration's legal section for "whatever action it finds necessary," a CAA investigator said today.

Investigator Harry Troxell, said Godfrey had failed to answer a request for details of a Sept. 7 incident involving the entertainer's DC-3 plane and an Ozark airliner.

As a result, Troxell said, he was turning the case over to the CAA's legal section at Kansas City.

FORMER MARYLAND MAYOR GETS 5 YEARS IN BANK LOSS

BALTIMORE, Sept. 22 (AP)—William Arthur Leffler, 70 years old, a former mayor of Havre de Grace, pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of making false entries in the records of the Citizens National Bank where he was executive vice president.

United States District Judge W. Calvin Chestnut sentenced Leffler to five years in prison and also fined him $5000.

Walter E. Black, assistant United States attorney, said only $43,000 of a $99,000 shortage had been pinned down exactly. Most of the money was used to cover the overdrawn accounts of the now-defunct New Home Building Association, of which Leffler was the key figure, Black said.

Excerpts From Dulles Talk To U.N. General Assembly

On Aug. 21 I said that if the parties desired a stable settlement, they could, I thought, be helped from without. I had in mind financial assistance in relation to the problem of Arab refugees, and of irrigation projects which would enable the people throughout the area to enjoy a better life. I also spoke of the importance of bringing greater security to the area . . . under the auspices of the United Nations. . .

If there is a favorable response from the Near Eastern countries, many aspects of this problem would eventually come to the United Nations for its action at some future session.

Southeast Asia—During the past year the fabric of peace in the Far East was strengthened by the coming into force of the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty. An organizational meeting of the treaty council was held at Bangkok toward the end of February at the ministerial level. . .

The Southeast Asia treaty does not envisage the establishment of a combined military organization comparable to that which has grown up under the North Atlantic treaty. . .

Primary reliance is placed on the agreement of the eight signatories to treat any armed aggression in the treaty area as a common danger to each party, calling for action on its part. That pledge will, we believe, work powerfully to deter aggression.

China—In the China area the situation is somewhat less ominous than it was. We hope that the Chinese People's Republic will respond to the manifest will of the world community that armed force should not be used to achieve national objectives.

An 'Evil' Record.

The record of this Communist regime has been an evil one. It fought the United Nations in Korea, for which it stands here branded as an aggressor. It took over Tibet by armed force. It became allied with the Communist Vietnam in its effort to take over Indochina by armed force. Then, following the Indochina armistice, it turned its military attention to the Taiwan (Formosa) area. It threatened to take this area by force, and began active military assaults on its approaches which assaults, it claimed, were a first step in its new program of military conquest.

This constituted a major challenge to principles to which the United States is committed by our charter. It was also a direct and special challenge to the United States itself. . .

At this point, on Jan. 24, 1955, President Eisenhower asked Congress for authority to use the armed forces of the United States in the defense of areas which the President might judge as appropriate. The requested authority was granted. The authority terminates whenever peace and security of the area are reasonably assured by international conditions created by action of the United Nations or otherwise.

I am convinced that this timely warning, given with solid, virtually unanimous, national concurrence, served to prevent what could have been a dangerous miscalculation on the part of the Chinese Communists.

Shortly thereafter the Bandung conference was held. There again the peace-loving nations—many of them members of the United Nations—made clear to the Chinese Communists their adherence to our charter principle that states should refrain from their international relations from the threat of force.

From the site of the Bandung conference, Mr. Chou-En-lai proposed direct discussions with the United States, a proposal which I promptly indicated was acceptable to the United States so long as we dealt only with matters of concern to the two of us, not involving the rights of third party. That reservation applied particularly, so far as the United States is concerned, to the Republic of China to which we are loyal as to a long-time friend and ally.

Shortly thereafter the Chinese Communists released four and, later, the other 11, of the United States flyers of the United Nations Command whom it had been holding in violation of the Korean armistice agreement. . . The outcome justified the confidence which the United States had placed in the United Nations and our restraint in the use or threat of our own national power. . . The will of the world community may have operated to avert another war, the scope of which could not surely be limited.

Atoms for Peace—Last year I spoke of the peaceful uses of atomic energy. We had gone through a period of disappointing negotiations to secure the participation of the Soviet Union in the program presented to you by President Eisenhower on Dec. 8, 1953. In the face of a negative Soviet attitude, we had resolved nevertheless to go ahead.

Last September, I mentioned four activities which we promised to commence immediately. Since that time, we have made good progress in each of these fields.

The negotiations for establishment of an international atomic energy agency have led to the preparation of a draft statute establishing such an agency.

Atomic Congress.

An international conference of the peaceful uses of atomic energy was held with outstanding success last month at Geneva. This conference was so successful that the United States will again propose a similar conference to be held in three years or earlier if the increasing development of the peaceful uses of atomic energy will so warrant. . . The Soviet Union is now taking a more co-operative attitude, and we gladly note that recent offer of Premier Bulganin to set aside fissionable material for the work of the proposed international agency when it comes into existence.

Radiation Study—The United States also plans at this session to propose the establishment of an international technical body on the effects of atomic radiation upon human health. . . We believe that properly safeguarded nuclear testing and the development of peaceful uses of atomic energy do not threaten human health or life. But this is a subject of such transcendent concern that we believe that all available data should be sought out and pooled under United Nations auspices.

Arms Limitation—On July 21 of this year, at Geneva, the President of the United States took still another major initiative. Dealing with disarmament, and addressing himself for the moment principally to the delegates from the Soviet Union, he proposed that, as a beginning, each of our two nations should provide the other with information as to its military establishments and with facilities for unrestricted aerial reconnaissance of the other.

The logic of this proposal is simple and clear. Major aggression is unlikely, unless the aggressor can have the advantage of surprise, and hope to strike a blow which will be devastating because unexpected. But the preparation on attack of such magnitude could hardly be concealed from aerial inspection.

Aerial inspection would not, of course, detect everything, or be itself a final comprehensive system of inspection. But aerial inspection would detect enough to exclude the greatest risk.

As such it would open the way to further steps toward inspection and disarmament which we all, and I emphatically include the United States, want to see taken.

Long experience makes it apparent that when there is a sense of insecurity and when arms consequently seem needed, limitation of armament is virtually unattainable. Reductions of armament occur when fear is dissipated and when arms seem less needed. . .

The essence of the President's proposal is that it would, as a beginning, do what is required of a beginning; namely, make it more possible to take subsequent steps.

I hope that the sentiment of this General Assembly will make clear that this beginning should be made as simply as may be and as quickly as may be. . .

Peace—It was 10 years ago last month that the fighting stopped in World War II.

We have lived through the subsequent decade without another world war. That is something for which to be profoundly thankful. But true peace has not been enjoyed. There have been limited wars; free nations have been subverted and taken over; there has been the piling up of armament, and the rigidities of position which are imposed upon those who regard each other as potential fighting enemies.

'New Spirit'

That phase may now be ending. I believe that all four of the heads of government, who were at Geneva, wanted that result and that each contributed to it. In consequence, a new spirit does indeed prevail, with greater flexibility and less brittleness in international relations.

Some find it interesting to speculate as to which nations gained and which lost from this development.

I would say that if the "Spirit of Geneva" is to be permanent, then all the world must be the gainer. The summit meeting, if it is to be historic, rather than episodic, must usher in an era of peaceful change.

It will not be an era of placidity and stagnancy, in the sense that the status quo, with its manifold injustices, is accepted as permanent. It will be an era of change, and it will have its strains and its stresses. But peoples and governments will renounce the use of war and of subversion to achieve their goals. . .

Let us together strive that the next decade shall be known as the healing decade of true peace.

HANDBOOK IN FLAT RAIDED; OPERATOR IS ARRESTED

A handbook in a flat at 2902A Ellendale avenue, operated by a man who said he was Charles Lynch, a Public Service Co. bus driver, was raided by the police gambling squad yesterday.

Sgt. Robert Matteson said tabs found in the place indicated $500 in bets had been accepted. An officer manned the telephone for a short time and recorded an additional $50 in bets. Police who had watched the house, reported a number of persons entered and left the flat.

Lynch, booked suspected of setting up and operating a gambling house, was quoted as admitting he started the handbook three weeks ago. Records show he has been arrested previously on gambling charges.

STEVENSON CAUGHT SLEEPING AT SPEECH

Sister Relates Incident About Democratic Leader as a Boy.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (AP)—
In his first appearance on a presidential campaign platform, Adlai Ewing Stevenson II fell asleep.

As his sister, Elizabeth Stevenson Ives, relates the incident: Their grandfather, Adlai Stevenson I, who was Vice President under Grover Cleveland, was introducing William Jennings Bryan at a Democratic rally in Bloomington, Ill., and Adlai, a small child in a starched Eton collar, went to sleep on the speakers' platform.

"I felt utterly disgraced," Mrs. Ives recalls in a book of her early memoirs entitled, "My Brother Adlai." The book, which she says a Republican relative suggested should have been called "The Egghead and I," is being published for the first time, in condensed form, in the October Ladies Home Journal.

The defeated 1952 Democratic candidate for President was always very independent, his sister says. Two years older and the "mothering type," Buffle wanted to treat her little brother like a doll. She remembers she and her friends had to sit on his stomach to make him be the "baby" when they played house.

"Buffle," incidentally, came from Adlai's attempt to pronounce her name. It came out Lizbuff, and Buffle stuck.
The book closes with Stevenson at 26 working a 50-hour week in a law office.

PARENTS! Here's a BETTER DEAL for YOUR SON!

For the past month, you've been hearing about the new enlistment program for the Army. In brief, this program means that a man can enlist in the U. S. Army Reserve before he is eighteen and a half years old, serve six months on active duty, and then serve the remainder of his obligation in the U. S. Army Reserve. Here are the details of that plan. Think it over; talk it over with your son and you will agree—here is a better deal.
Upon enlistment in the U. S. Army Reserve your son becomes a member of the unit he wants to join—he can pick his branch of service such as Infantry, Artillery, Armor, or other. Once he has enlisted, he will say when he wants to take his six months' active duty training, beginning any time within 120 days of the day he signs up, 120 days after leaving high school, or when he reaches the age of 20.
Prior to taking active duty training for six months, he will meet with the unit he joins in his own home town, taking part in that unit's training one night a week.
When he is called for active duty, he will take two months of basic training, then go on to two months of specialized training in his own branch. Following that, he will serve for two months on active duty with a unit similar to the one he belongs to back in his home town.
When he has completed his six months' active duty, he will return to his home town and for all intents and purposes become a civilian again. He will attend weekly meetings with his unit and once each year go to a two-week summer encampment with that unit.

WHAT ARE THE ADVANTAGES?
First, your son is away from home on active duty for only six months.
Second, during the time he is actively participating in this program, he is not eligible for the draft.
Third, employers are not reluctant to hire men whose military service is behind them. Some employers are reluctant to hire young men whose military service is still before them, especially when the employer knows he will lose the services of those men for two years when they are drafted.
Fourth, under the new law your son's job is guaranteed for him while he is absent taking military service under the six-months program.
Fifth, he can begin his active duty training when he wants it, subject of course to the 120-day limit.
Sixth, your son can pick the unit he wants to join and the branch of service he likes.

The idea behind the introduction of a truly superior bourbon... Four Roses BOURBON

There's a sound idea behind the introduction of Four Roses Bourbon.

Frankly stated, it's this:

The makers of famous Four Roses Blended Whiskey are completely confident that no finer whiskey is being produced... or can be produced. It is—in our opinion —the best there is!

But (let's face it) there are quite a few men who happen to be bourbon drinkers.

So why not offer these men (perhaps you're one of them) the same "best-of-all" quality in a bourbon—FOUR ROSES Bourbon. And not just "another straight bourbon," but a bourbon with real distinction and a real reason for being better.

Your first taste will tell you what it means to have a bourbon under the Four Roses label.

For this bourbon has a flavor and quality that you can't get from just a single whiskey. It can be achieved only by blending several straight bourbons—great bourbons—each with a special virtue of its own.

That's the Four Roses Way. It takes more skill, more care, more patience. But it means a truly superior bourbon... and one that never varies.

If you're a bourbon drinker, be sure to try Four Roses
Bourbon today. Look for the green label.

33,523 IN U.S. UNDER REFUGEE RELIEF PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The State Department reported yesterday 33,524 persons had entered the United States under the refugee relief program as of Sept. 2. Nearly 20,000 more persons have been granted visas to enter, but have not yet arrived. The visa figure, 52,060, represents a gain of 35,018 over the Jan. 1 figure.

With some 15 months to go before the deadline set by Congress, about one fourth of the quota of 214,000 provided for under the law has been met.

DONNELLY SAYS STATE MAY BUILD ANOTHER PRISON

Medium Security Structure to Relieve Crowding Proposed in Progress Report.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 22—Plans for reconstruction of the riot-battered state penitentiary here, when completed, may include a new separate medium security prison to relieve overcrowding in the penitentiary, Gov. Phil M. Donnelly announced last night.

No state funds now are available for such a new prison, pending action in a special state-wide election to be called later on a proposed $75,000,000 building bond issue for state penal, eleemosynary and higher educational institutions.

"Careful consideration will be given to whether or not another medium security institution should be established," Donnelly said, "as soon as the repair and clean-up program has been completed at the penitentiary," and the prison industries are back in operation.

There has been no decision whether the new institution would be established here, or elsewhere in the state, he said.

Progress Report

Donnelly made the announcement on the eve of the anniversary of the disastrous riot in the penitentiary on Sept. 22, 1954.

In that uprising four convicts were killed—one murdered by other convicts—30 injured, wounded, and four guards injured. Virtually all of the prison industrial shops were destroyed or damaged by fire, and damage was estimated at $3,000,000.

A series of four convict uprisings developed on Oct. 22, 23, 25 and 26, in which one convict was killed and 37 others wounded by gunfire or injured.

Donnelly said considerable progress has been made and listed various improvements in conditions within the prison, including better food for inmates.

"Over-all improvement of the Department of Corrections and its institutions have long-range objectives," Donnelly said, "and include the complete review of the classification system which will make it possible to give individual prisoners more personal and effective treatment."

Stress on Moral Help.

He said this would include more psychiatric treatment and guidance, continuing and intelligent vocational and work operations through new and expanded prison industries, a strengthened educational program, supervised and productive leisure time activities, and greater stress on moral and spiritual help for prison inmates.

The only new building now under construction at the prison is a new slaughter house to replace an old structure condemned for its lack of sanitation. A twine and rope shop building which survived the fires a year ago is being remodeled for occupancy by the fire-damaged state motor license tag and metal equipment plant.

An appropriation of $1,500,000 available only for building and equipping industrial shops, was made by the 1955 Legislature, which also made provision for submission to voters, in an election to be called by Donnelly, the Governor's proposed constitutional amendment authorizing the $75,000,000 building bond issue. The Legislature inserted a clause giving it control of the building program if the bonds are voted.

The Governor, in listing progress, recalled a survey made by a commission appointed by him; selection of Curtis Brostrom of St. Louis, former inspector of St. Louis police, as a special penal adviser; and passage by the Legislature of a bill reorganizing the Department of Corrections.

Food Improved.

Among other points enumerated by the Governor were: More wholesome food for the prison inmates; a comprehensive vocational and educational program is under way; cells are being painted and buildings cleaned.

Plans have been made for a cement block manufacturing shop and a master mechanics shop, and the furniture factory will be repaired.

Appointment of Col. James D. Carter, former chief custodial officer of the naval disciplinary barracks in Portsmouth, N. H., as director of the Department of Corrections.

A training program for the guard personnel; new qualifications, pay increases, uniforms and new rules for guards; redefinition of the prison personnel organization and line of authority.

Recreation Privileges.

Dismantling of riot-damaged buildings and cleaning of the prison area; strengthening of the prison security system; daily recreation group privileges for convicts formerly available only on weekends and on holidays; new rules and regulations for convicts.

Use of clubs and night sticks by guards has been discontinued.

Central radio receiving equipment, to be connected to cells, is being installed and a projector and television set purchased for the prison hospital.

The Governor said prison officials are making a survey to establish a new solitary confinement area in the prison to replace "O" hall (the hole) for disciplinary purposes. Funds sought for a new segregation building which would have eliminated "O" hall were not appropriated by the Legislature, Donnelly said.

STRICKEN MAN IS TAKEN OFF RADAR ISLAND

BOSTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—A workman stricken ill on the "Texas Tower," a man-made radar island 110 miles east of Provincetown, was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital early today after he was brought ashore by the Coast Guard.

The man, believed to be suffering from appendicitis, is Ralph Oxenrider of Winthrop. He was accompanied on the Coast Guard cutter Cook Inlet by Dr. Joseph Barlow, the tower physician.

The transfer from the tower to the Cook Inlet was made by placing Oxenrider in a basket and then swinging the basket onto the vessel at the end of a line from a huge crane.

The cutter was called after the tower physician reported that the man was unable to drop medical supplies onto the tower platform. A 40-mile-an-hour wind carried the medical supplies into the rough sea. The supplies, including anesthesia, were to have enabled Dr. Barlow to perform an emergency operation at sea.

ONCE-DECEASED INDIANS GET $1,175,000 FOR LAND

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 22 (AP)—Two nearly penniless Indians once victimized in a fraudulent land sale got $1,175,000 yesterday. That was the price their 747 acres of timberland brought in a sale conducted by the Indian Bureau.

The same land sold, through machinations of a since-deceased Indian Bureau official, for $135,000 in 1951. The first sale, exposed by Wallace Turner of the Portland Oregonian, was canceled and three men got prison sentences.

Neither of the Indians, Jasper Grant and Harold F. Thornton, attended the sale yesterday. Grant sent word he could not leave his job as a bean picker.

SPRINGFIELD AIR CRASH LAID TO CREW ERROR

C.A.B. Says Pilots' Inattention to Instruments Probably Led to Accident.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22—An American Airlines Convair plane crashed while approaching for a landing at Springfield, Mo., March 20, probably because the pilots were not watching their instruments and thought the plane was farther from the ground than it actually was, the Civil Aeronautics Board reported today. Thirteen persons were killed in the crash.

"The board determines that the probable cause of this accident was a descent to the ground while approaching the airport caused by the crew's inattention to their flight instruments, and a possible sensory illusion giving them an erroneous impression of the attitude of the aircraft," the report said.

The word "attitude" is correct, a C.A.B. spokesman said. He explained that pilots approaching a field when no horizon line is visible sometimes undergo visual illusions if they try to make the approach with the airport lights as a guide.

They ascend or descend at the wrong time. Had one or both of the pilots been watching the plane's altimeter and artificial horizon the true altitude would have been clear, it was explained.

Landed in Open Field.

The crash occurred at 10:36 p.m. in an open field a little more than a mile from the Springfield airport. Eleven of the 32 passengers, the first officer and the stewardess were injured fatally. The plane's captain and the remaining passengers, with one exception, were injured seriously. The twin-engine plane had made a stop at St. Louis before the scheduled one at Springfield.

The C.A.B. reported the captain, John Phipps, was unable to remember any of the details of the flight. The surviving passengers described the flight as "very pleasant" before the accident, with the engines operating normally and everything apparently in first-class order.

One passenger said he was looking into the dimly lit cockpit compartment but was unable to determine who was holding the controls. He asserted that an instant before the crash he heard one of the pilots "cry out in an excited, loud and warning voice: 'My God, we are going to hit the ground.'"

"Instantly there was a roar of power and the impact followed almost simultaneously," the C.A.B. said.

"It is probable," the report said, "that the pilots were devoting their attention outside the cockpit and possibly toward the distant airport lights while flying over flat, dark and sparsely settled terrain in somewhat restricted visibility."

"An important psychological factor enters into an approach under these conditions and has been credited a factor in other accidents or near accidents. The effect of such conditions has given flight crews an erroneous impression of altitude and-or the illusion that the aircraft is flying horizontally with respect to a distant light or group of lights when in reality the nose attitude of the aircraft is up or down."

"Under such circumstances, as shown by previous incidents, the crews have not realized the situation and have not been warned by their physical senses of the danger. Other crews in similar situations have broken off trailing antennas or actually struck ground objects before realizing their position."

The C.A.B. reported finding no evidence of malfunction or failure of the aircraft, nor any indication of an emergency board. The company, the crew

HUMPHREY HOME, DESCRIBES 'BOOM' IN FREE EUROPE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (UP)—Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, back from a 10-day trip to Europe, said yesterday that "practically every country is enjoying a near-boom, if not a boom, throughout Free Europe."

Humphrey told reporters that the general economic condition of Free Europe and Free Asia is "very good."

He attended the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund meetings in Istanbul, Turkey, and then went on to Paris to meet with United States fiscal representatives in western Europe.

He said that inflation threats in Europe are "not any more than when you have really good times."

Humphrey and John H. Hollister, head of the International Co-operation Administration who accompanied the Secretary, agreed there is a good chance for increased trade between Europe and this country.

STUDY FOR SAFETY STEPS FOR EMERGENCY VEHICLES

A study of all traffic signals in the city to determine what, if any steps can be taken to avoid collisions involving emergency vehicles will be made by the safety committee of the St. Louis Junior Chamber of Commerce, it was announced today.

"We understand that in some cities there is an alarm system in which the traffic signals begin flashing when there is an emergency vehicle in the area," James J. Eagan, president of the organization said. "This notifies the motorist visually and he is not dependent upon the sound of the siren which may not be audible because of motor or radio noises."

The study was prompted by the recent collision of a fire truck and a mail truck in which four city firemen were killed, Eagan said.

MOST OF FRANCE'S TRAINS HALTED BY 24-HOUR STRIKE

PARIS, Sept. 22 (UP)—A 24-hour railway workers' strike stopped most of France's trains today. Traffic was shut down completely at five of Paris' major stations. In the other four, serious interruption of service was expected.

The strike, due to last until 5 p.m. tomorrow, was called by the independent railroad union and supported by the Communist-led General Federation of Workers, France's biggest labor organization. The issue is wages.

Hundreds of American tourists leaving for home today on the liners Queen Elizabeth and the United States had to be taken to Cherbourg and Le Havre in busses to make sure they would arrive in time.

CONVERSION TO APARTMENT ON W. CABANNE PLACE DENIED

An application to convert a single family residence at the southwest corner of Hamilton avenue and West Cabanne place into a four-family apartment was denied yesterday by the Board of Adjustment.

The owner, Roland Roach, had sought permission to change the entrance to the building, now the first home within the private subdivision of West Cabanne place, so that it would be on Hamilton avenue, a public street.

Representatives of the West Cabanne Place Improvement Association protested the proposal on the ground that it would change the single-residence character of the neighborhood.

MILNOT makes the richest, smoothest puddings ever!

MILNOT MAKES RICHER, smoother pudding because it's a double-rich dairy product—made from whole milk. Richer because unwanted water is removed. MILNOT contains more than twice the mineral and protein values found in whole milk. Extra vitamin A and D, too. Smoother because animal fats are replaced with easy-to-digest (and equally nutritious) vegetable fats which blend with pudding ingredients like nothing else on earth.

HAVING PUDDING? Make it with MILNOT! It's richer, smoother . . . so good tasting. Costs less, too!

MILNOT gives you more nourishment than whole milk—at half the price!

The MILNOT way to make puddings . . .

Prepare your favorite instant pudding by replacing milk with an equal amount of undiluted MILNOT. For regular pudding, use half MILNOT and half water in place of called for liquid. Cook as directed.

Other wonderful ways to use MILNOT

- In soups, use MILNOT instead of milk or cream. Taste the richness, enjoy the smoothness.
- In sauces and salad dressings, MILNOT is an any-way, any-time blender for all of your special ingredients.
- In cakes and cookies, MILNOT helps take the cost out of cooking . . . adds rich minerals and proteins.
- In pies and pastries, MILNOT is smoother than milk or cream . . . tops, too, as a whipped topping.

Variety Meats Offer Fine Values

Interesting Menus Can Be Built Around Liver, Heart, Kidneys and Tongue.

By DOROTHY BRANNER
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

MEAT bills seem a little higher than you like recently? Perhaps you have been buying too many of the choice cuts, and it is time to give a little thought to the so-called "economy meats" which cost relatively little and, with proper cooking, can be so good.

With this in mind we have suggested several recipes on this page which are only a sampling of the ways in which you can serve these good meats. Do take time to check the meat counter carefully this week, and see the bargains you can find in variety meats.

Baby continues to be very abundant; light veal is rather scarce.

We may be on the threshold of the great supplies of pork which are predicted for this autumn; it isn't here yet but a slight lowering of wholesale prices may mean that is near.

Broiler-fryers are the same good value that they have been recently.

And here is an economy tip; you may find quite a wide spread between the prices of large and of medium-sized eggs.

As is always true at this time of year, the medium ones are very plentiful with the result that you can find some fine values in this size.

JUST as spring arrives early at the greenhouses, so do we now find signs of autumn.

Cranapples from up north, locally grown early pie pumpkins, Hubbard squash, fresh corn, and cranberries all relate us of the harvest season. Cranberries, incidentally, are very plentiful this year.

Apples are starting to work downward in price. There are many, many varieties from many, many sections of the country including the recently developed Whetstone variety—a firm apple which put in its appearance here last year.

This may be the week for Concord grapes; the sugar content is good and they probably are priced as reasonably as we will find them this year.

A few Tokays have finally arrived in St. Louis—about three weeks later than usual. There are plenty of red Malagas, Thompson seedless, Riblers, some Muscats and a few of the very fine flavored and luxury priced Khandahars.

Peaches are coming in from a number of sections in sufficient volume to meet demand. In general, the quality is quite good and the prices moderately high.

The Italian prunes we told you about last week are coming to the peak of shipments, watch prices carefully this week, you may find some bargains.

Melons are still around town at this late September date—cantaloupes, Cranshaws, honeydews and matemelons. No doubt last week's warm weather gave them a new lease on life, as normally the demand would have virtually ceased by this time.

ARTICHOKES of quite nice quality are again available after an absence of some time. Not budget priced, of course, but really not too bad.

You may take your choice of beans, homegrown shelled or beans, or Michigan very may cost you more than we are accustomed paying for it; carrots also up just a bit, as is cab-might be wise to give corn the "sniff test" if it shows any signs of frost damage on the husks. If the corn was very fresh this slight damage on corn from the north will do no harm, but if it won't the frost may sour it so choose carefully.

Potatoes are no problem; you may find the red ones offer the best advantage price-wise.

As for salad greens, you may choose from iceberg, leaf lettuce, Bibb lettuce, endive, romaine and escarole—the latter from California of superb quality but far from cheap.

SCOULING THE MARKETS: The popularity of frozen fishsticks has been phenomenal. A new golden fried fishstick is now being introduced which is breaded with a prepared meal made with several types of wheat flour, corn flour, salt and water baked into a paste, then crumbled to make a coating which is fresh and light.

The sweet taste of these frozen sticks is due to the fact that they are boned, skinned and frozen as soon as they are brought ashore. When they are processed at the plant, operations are so swift that only 10 minutes elapses from the time the frozen fish are put on the "assembly line" until they are fried to golden crispness on the outside, frozen ready for the trip to retail markets.

It is a fast age, this, and it is the very swiftness which makes it possible for mid-westerners to enjoy fishsticks that straight-from-the-factory flavor.

Savory Liver Special

Spices add a special touch to the flour used for coating the liver in this dish. Instead of the customary crisp bacon, serve it with Bacon Hominy. This is just one example of the interesting ways in which variety meats may be used in menus.

WISE is the homemaker who takes advantage, nutritionally and economically, of the great values to be found in variety meats. More meat is in prospect for this autumn season of 1955 than ever before, according to the American Meat Institute, and this means not only more steaks and pork chops—but more livers, hearts, kidneys and tongues.

In too many homes these treasure troves of nutrition are by-passed because the housewife is not familiar with them, or is not sure how to prepare them so they will be tender and flavorful. Experiment a bit, and you may find a way to add interest to your menus, and to give your budget a boost.

Perhaps liver is the most frequently served variety meat. It is a rich source of iron, B vitamins and vitamin A, and an important source of vitamin B-12, the vitamin which is important in treating pernicious anemia.

Here is an interesting variation of fried liver, in which spices are added to the flour used for coating the liver.

Savory Liver Special.
Four slices young beef liver.
Four tablespoons flour.
One teaspoon dry mustard.
One-fourth teaspoon chili powder.

Wipe liver with a damp cloth. Combine remaining ingredients and coat slices with mixture. Fry in hot fat four to five minutes on each side. Yield: Four servings.

Crisp bacon is customarily served with liver; for a change add the bacon to hominy for a delicious accompaniment.

Bacon Hominy.
Three slices bacon.
One large can hominy (No. 2).
One medium sized onion, chopped.

One can tomato soup.
One teaspoon sugar.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Dash of pepper.

Drain hominy thoroughly. With a pair of scissors cut slices of bacon into crosswise pieces. Fry these in a skillet until crisp. Skim out and add to hominy. In bacon fat, fry the chopped onion until soft. Spoon off excess fat. Add hominy and bacon to the skillet and over all pour the undiluted tomato soup. Add sugar, salt and pepper; cover and cook over low heat for one-half hour. Before serving, add more salt and pepper if desired.

A time-saving way to prepare tongue is to cook it in the pressure cooker. The flavor is good, and the tongue will cook in one-third the usual time. Allow 15 minutes per pound cooking time. If you do not use a pressure cooker, fresh tongue should be simmered in water until tender. Smoked or pickled tongue should be soaked for several hours before cooking.

After cooking tongue in water or the pressure cooker, it may be glazed if desired. Stick tongue with whole cloves, spread with prepared mustard and cover with brown sugar. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for one hour.

Its uses are many—as a main dish, sliced and served with horseradish sauce, or used in sandwiches.

Its delicate flavor combines well with fruit, as in this Tongue A la Maryland.

One tongue (beef or veal).
Water.
One-fourth cup butter or drippings.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Bay leaf.
Three-fourths cup brown sugar.
One and one-half cups canned or cooked cherries.
One cup liquid in which tongue was cooked.
One-half sliced lemon.
Wash tongue and cover with water. If fresh tongue, add two teaspoons salt. Cover and simmer until tender, allowing one hour to the pound. Trim and remove skin. Place in a pan with the remaining ingredients. Let simmer until liquid thickens. A four-pound tongue serves 12.

Kidneys have long been a favorite of the epicure, broiled, in stews or pies. The kidney should be washed and split through the center, and tubes removed before cooking.

One pound kidney (beef, and add water.

Cover tightly and braise in a slow oven (300 degrees) or let simmer until heart is tender.

A beef heart of three and three-fourths pounds requires at least four hours and will serve 12. Pork, lamb and veal hearts will require two to two and one-half hours cooking time.

Shake chicken in a paper bag with salt, pepper, paprika and flour. Fry to a rich golden brown on both sides in heated oil. Arrange in a baking pan and pour over the hot barbecue sauce.

Cover pan with aluminum foil and bake in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees) for 25 minutes. Remove foil and push

A MEAL-IN-A-PAN TO SERVE OUTSIDE

MAKE the most of it while it lasts, this wonderful weather for out-of-door eating. The golden days of late September and October are among the finest of the year in this part of the country, and broiler-fryers are on the current "good buys" list, so what better time to prepare this meal-in-a-pan and serve it on porch or patio?

Tender, juicy chicken, oven-broiled in a zesty sauce, comes to the table encased in a delicious barbecue-glazed crust. Golden canned cling peach halves are baked the last 15 minutes with the chicken and glazed with the same sauce. Biscuit triangles, quickly made with a mix and enriched with a Parmesan cheese filling and topping, are a "just right" companion. Add a good green salad and hot coffee, and the meal is complete.

Chicken Barbecue, Ranch Style.
Six to eight large pieces frying chicken.

Salt.
Pepper.
Paprika.
Flour.
One-half cup oil.
Barbecue sauce (see below).
One (No. 2½) can cling peach halves.

Arrange drained peach halves in pan and continue baking 10 to 15 minutes longer or until chicken is done. Baste chicken and peaches frequently with sauce in pan.

During last baking period assemble Parmesan Cheese Triangles. Remove chicken from oven, increase temperature to a very hot oven (450 degrees) and bake triangles until golden brown, about 10 to 15 minutes.

Barbecue Sauce:
One-half cup tomato catsup.
One (10½-ounce) can bouillon.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One tablespoon grated onion.
One tablespoon Worcestershire sauce.
One teaspoon mustard.
One clove garlic, minced.
Three tablespoons chopped parsley.
Bring all ingredients to a boil before pouring on chicken. Parmesan Cheese Triangles:

One and one-half cups biscuit mix.
One-half cup diluted evaporated milk.
One-fourth cup mayonnaise.
One-fourth cup grated Parmesan cheese.

One-eighth teaspoon paprika. Combine biscuit mix and milk to a moderately stiff dough. Roll to an oblong about six by 14 inches. Spread lower half of the long side with mayonnaise, cheese and paprika mixed together. Fold upper half of dough over cheese and press to seal. (This makes an oblong about three by 14 inches).

Cut dough into 12 triangles but do not separate them. Spread remaining cheese mixture over top. Bake as directed above. Separate into individual triangles and serve along side of chicken. Yield: six to eight servings.

Double Duty for Glass Jars

Just as every homemaker loves a bargain sale, she delights in finding use for empty glass food jars. If the jars have the pry-off type of cap that can be lifted off (usually used on jars of baby foods, cheese spreads, pickles and preserves) and if they are opened with the inexpensive lid flippers now on the market that open the jars without bending or distorting the cap, the cap can be used again to reseal the jars.

Because of their airtight properties, jars may be re-used to store spices; to keep foods such as brown sugar and nutmeats from absorbing moisture; to store foods which absorb odors easily or which have penetrating odors (such as onion, garlic or strong cheese); to store leftover paints for "touch up" jobs; as containers for soap flakes and detergents; to protect nails, tacks and screws from rust; to store mothballs or crystals, which retain their original strength and effectiveness if put away in glass jars with a hermetic seal.

To reseal such jars correctly, set the jar down on any firm surface and place the cap evenly into position; then press down firmly with the palms of both hands. When you hear a tiny "Click," the container has an airtight seal.

WATCH HUSBAND'S WEIGHT, WARNS NUTRITION EXPERT

"American husbands are definitely overfed." This interesting statement was made by Dr. F. J. Stare, Chairman of Nutrition, Harvard University at a recent National Food Conference.

As a result of collating data from 17 different countries, Dr. Stare observed that American men over 45 ranked tenth in overall mortality. The speaker pointed out that there is no doubt that American women are excellent cooks... but it does not mean they must lavish large amounts of high calorie foods on their husbands. Excess eating can often be more dangerous than food deficiencies, continued Dr. Stare.

If your husband is inclined to put on weight, make the luscious cakes and pies, rich gravies and cream sauces as an occasional treat or in small quantities. To prevent excess poundage, women can be most instrumental in lengthening the life of the American man by planning lower calorie meals. For the man over 45, foods high in protein are particularly important. He should get plenty of lean meat, poultry or fish, enriched yeast-raised bread or whole grain cereal, eggs, cheese and milk—all of which supply not only ample protein, but other nutrients as well.

Improved nutrition is a very important factor in prolonging your husband's life span—chances are that he will live longer and look better if you feed him rather than over-feed him.

QUICK DISH

Here's how to make a can of vegetable soup into a main dish for luncheon or supper. Form your favorite meatballs, mixtures into little balls and brown them well in a small amount of fat. Drop the miniature meat balls into the hot soup just before serving. Round out the meal with bread and butter, a big bowl of green salad, and a simple dessert.

Elegant Dessert.
You'll enjoy the perfect flavor harmony of this Cantaloupe Supreme all during the melon season. Remove seeds from small cantaloupe halves and pour about a tablespoon of Sherry wine in each hollow. Fill centers with vanilla ice cream. Here's an elegant dessert in true California style.

HERBS AND SPICES COMPLEMENT MEATS

Savory meats and meat dishes on your table are your by cooking each cut of meat by the methods recommended for it. When you wish to give a flair to the flavors, turn to herbs and spices the way a gourmet does. There are two secrets to using herbs and spices. The first is to use fresh ones. The second is to use a light touch—use them sparingly. They are for flavor accents and should be mysteriously subtle, not overpowering to the original good flavor of the meat.

Here are some suggestions from Reba Stages, meat expert, on herbs and spices to use with meats for new flavor adventures.

For a beef roast, try a dash of rosemary or thyme. Allspice, bay leaf, marjoram and savory enhance pot-roasts. Use celery seed, nutmeg, thyme, basil or dried parsley in beef stew. Allspice, poultry seasoning, sage and basil can be mixed into ground meat dishes.

For spareribs, add a little chili powder, marjoram, bay leaf, savory or thyme.

Lamb dishes are successfully flavored by dill, mint, marjoram, rosemary and savory. Curry powder, poultry seasoning, rosemary, sage and thyme enhance the flavor of veal.

Herbs and spices do wonderful things with leftover meats, too. Poultry seasoning, celery seed and sage may be stirred into croquettes. Curry dishes made from cooked meats get their name from the flavoring, curry powder.

These are just a few ideas to set you exploring into the land of meats with herbs and spices. There are many possible combinations and each new discovery will add to your reputation as a good cook.

MUSHROOM WINE SAUCE TO SERVE WITH BEEF CUTS
Red table wine and beef, whatever the cut, just seem to go together. Broiled-in-butter mushrooms add a luxury touch to this superb sauce. Let it grace the most expensive filets and prime roasts—or let it raise the lowly hamburger to a higher position in life.

Mushroom Wine Sauce.
One (three-ounce) can sliced broiled-in-butter mushrooms.
One-third cup water.
One beef bouillon cube.
One-third cup Burgundy or other red table wine.
One tablespoon cornstarch.
One-half teaspoon liquid brown gravy seasoning.
Place contents of can of mushrooms, water and beef bouillon cube in saucepan. Bring to boil over moderate heat and allow cube to dissolve. Combine and add wine and cornstarch, stirring constantly until sauce is thick and clear.
Stir in liquid brown gravy seasoning and serve immediately with your favorite form of beef. Accompany with the remainder of the bottle of wine.
Yield: About one and one-third cups sauce, enough for four generous servings.

TOUR OF W. BERLIN BY 2 TOP RUSSIAN CHIEFS REPORTED

BONN, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Frankfurt newspaper Abendpost said yesterday Soviet Premier Bulganin and Communist party secretary Nikita Khrushchev took a sightseeing drive through West Berlin when they visited East Germany after the Geneva Conference.

The paper said that's what Bulganin—with a chuckle—told West German Chancellor Adenauer when Adenauer visited Moscow last week.

It said Bulganin told Adenauer he and Khrushchev stopped at a West Berlin restaurant on their tour—and that the food he ate was the best he had had since he last visited Berlin in 1926.

The paper stated that Bulganin said they took the drive incognito and no one knew they had crossed the little Iron Curtain separating West Berlin from Communist East Berlin.

No one here knows whether the Soviet leaders actually took the drive or whether Bulganin was just kidding.

TESTIFIES EX-P.O.W. SAID 'YOU ARE ON WRONG SIDE'

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 22 (AP)—Cpl. Thomas Bayes once told British and American prisoners of war in North Korea, "you are fighting on the wrong side." Wayne Cunningham of Elwood City, Pa., testified yesterday.

Bayes, from Flat Lick, Ky., is on trial before a court-martial on charges of collaboration with the Reds while he was a prisoner.

Cunningham, a 25-year-old University of Pittsburgh student, and also a P.O.W. in Korea in 1951, was one of three former G.I.s who testified against Bayes.

'OTHER TOOLS' URGED TO CHECK FARM PRICE DIP

U.S. Official Lists New Steps to Go With Flexible Crop Supports.

The Eisenhower Administration and the President himself are becoming "increasingly more concerned" with the current economic plight of farmers, an official of the United States Department of Agriculture said here today.

Kenneth L. Scott, director of the department's agricultural credit services, told the Post-Dispatch in an interview that with recent industrial wage increases and declining farm product prices, "the cost-price squeeze for the farmer has become more acute."

Scott, an official of the department for 21 years, said he had not lost his faith in a flexible price-support program, but that "we need some other tools too."

He said that the flexible support program is just beginning to have an effect on the 1955 crop, and "has a part in a long-range program." But, he added, "with huge surpluses, and production stepped up so high, we need some other tools, too."

Among "other tools" he listed were moves to give farm surpluses held by the Government to institutions, school lunch programs, disaster areas, and foreign nations. Such "give-aways" were possible only where market outlets for American farm products would not be blocked by the action, he added.

Research Funds Boosted. The Department of Agriculture official said "over the long pull" research in more efficient farming methods and new uses of farm products would be significant in improving the farmer's lot. The present Administration has increased expenditures in the research field, he said.

At the moment, however, "the inability of the farmer to share equitably with other segments of the economy in the period of prosperity the nation as a whole is enjoying" constituted a problem for the entire nation, he said.

"Others were wrestling with this problem, too," Scott added. "It was a real problem at the time the Democrats were in—you can clearly see the build-up of this thing. I believe we will work the answer out as rapidly as possible, and give the farmer the level of income he's entitled to."

Scott said possible markets abroad for farm products were being given "stepped-up attention." He described the farm situation as being one "in which we can produce so much better than we can market—that's our real challenge."

BARGE LEADER ASSAILS PLAN FOR TRANSPORT

Says Avowed Concern for Small Business Is 'Contravened' by Administration.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—A spokesman for inland freight boat operators assailed today the Eisenhower Administration's avowed concern for small business is "absolutely contravened" by a Cabinet committee's proposed new transport policy.

He was Chester C. Thompson, president of the American Waterways Operators, Inc., a trade organization of firms operating freight carriers on inland waterways.

Thompson assailed the recommendations of the special advisory committee headed by Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks as "ill-advised" and a "hunting license for the railroads."

He testified before a House Commerce subcommittee which two days ago had heard truckers similarly describe the recommendations as pro-railroad. A spokesman for major railroads endorsed the report generally.

Hearings Completed. The subcommittee today completed hearings on the report, which President Eisenhower has described as brilliant. The hearings were preliminary to possible legislation next year.

Thompson asserted that the railroads were behind the creation of the Cabinet committee which Mr. Eisenhower appointed.

He said: "The facts, as I have been reliably informed, are that the Administration was approached late in 1953 or early in 1954 by Representatives of the rail carriers and urged to do something and to do it quickly with respect to the 'railroad problem.' A substantial number of papers, all documented, were furnished in support of this plea."

In his prepared testimony Thompson did not elaborate on this statement. Nor was he questioned about it.

Thompson contended the new declaration of transport policy proposed by the Weeks committee is a "conglomeration of inconsistencies." He hit particularly at its contention that more stress should be given to "dynamic competition" and less placed on federal regulation of individual freight rates.

Under the present law, Thompson said, railroads in some cases have been permitted to reduce individual freight rates as much as 62 per cent where they had waterways competition.

Competitive Latitude. "How much more of a competitive latitude is desired?" he asked.

"What kind of an ax will the railroads be permitted to swing at competitors if they're invited by legislative action of Congress to use it freely?"

"There is no limit to what can be done against an industry of small business men who, it is understood, the present Administration claims it wishes to foster. In short, the over-all policy announced publicly by the Administration, with respect to the small business men, is being absolutely contravened by the new transportation policy announced by the Cabinet committee."

Actually, he said, Congress is being asked to take action at reinstating the monopoly he said the railroads enjoyed for many years.

Thompson contended that the railroads' difficulties are attributable to lack of foresight, "old archaic methods of handling traffic," managerial faults, "and their policy, which seems to continue even until today, as to the purchase of new equipment."

Yesterday an industry that handles freight for small shippers asked Congress to help it combat "cutthroat competition of fly-by-night operators."

The president and general counsel of the Freight Forwarders Institute, Giles Morrow, urged a House Commerce subcommittee to close a legal loophole through which he said such competition escapes federal regulation.

Subcommittee chairman Harris (Dem., Arkansas), said more hearings, on legislation designed to put the recommendations of the presidential advisory committee into effect, will be held after Congress comes back in January. He said the subcommittee has been deluged with requests for permission to testify on the complex, technical issue of revising the national transportation policy.

BILL IN COUNTY FOR YEAR'S RESIDENCE BY POLICEMEN

A bill requiring members of the county police department to have lived in the county at least one year prior to their appointment was introduced in County Council yesterday by Councilmen Frank L. Martini, Fifth District, and Harold Carey, Sixth District, both Republicans. County Counselor Herbert C. Funke told the Post-Dispatch there are no such residential requirements now. He said he thought the restrictions in the bill would apply to applicants for all jobs in the department except superintendent, when vacancies occur.

Matthews reported to the council that plans for a $26,500 memorial in Creve Coeur Park to the late A. P. Greensfelder, civic leader, had been approved by the County Park Board and the Greensfelder family. The cost would be met from park funds and from the Greensfelder Foundation, established by Mr. Greensfelder. The memorial would consist of a limestone shelter and picnic area.

In other action, the council directed the county health department to make a complete sanitation survey of the Meacham Park area, an unincorporated community south of Kirkwood. County highway and traffic officials were directed to study and make recommendations on a request of residents in the Pattonville area that the county take over maintenance of a section of Parkwood lane and establish a speed limit for the road.

DEMANDS NAMES OF STOCK OWNERS IN MERGER CASE

Senator Questions Whether Securities Houses Really Represent Them.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, demanded today that New York securities houses which formed a "stockholders committee" for a Washington state utility produce the names of stockholders they claim to represent.

Arthur Dean, New York lawyer who is representing several of the firms, said they would attempt to comply, but executives of some of them said it would be a difficult task.

O'Mahoney insisted it was important to the investigation he is conducting. He pointed out that some of the firms have admitted they held no stock of the Puget Sound Power & Light Co. at the time the self-described "stockholders committee" on which they were members sent a letter to all Puget Sound stockholders urging a merger of the utility with Washington Water Power Co. of Spokane.

Officials of other investment firms represented on the committee said their companies did hold some stock when the letter went out July 20 of this year.

Contention of Officials. All the officials argued that they sold Puget Sound stock in considerable quantities in their business, and thus represented the interest of customers. It was to test this that O'Mahoney asked for the name of such stockholders as of July 20. He pointed out that such customers might have sold their holdings without the original selling firm knowing of it.

Dean conceded this could be true, but said nearly all of the investment companies could estimate closely how much Puget Sound stock was retained by their clients.

O'Mahoney said one reason the 1935 public utility holding company act was passed was because congressional investigation showed the big utilities were trying to make a mystery of their operations.

"It appears Congress is running into the same thing again in the operations of these investment houses," he asserted.

O'Mahoney asked the investment houses to list also holdings of their customers in Washington Water Power stock. The Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee, with O'Mahoney as acting chairman, is conducting an inquiry into public utilities mergers. The Eisenhower Administration's power policies are a collateral issue.

Power Inquiry Figures

tion's power policies are a collateral issue.

Alfred Berman, attorney for Puget Sound, arose in the audience today to declare that the investment houses had no right to claim they spoke for stockholders when all they had done was sell shares to these persons.

Berman also contradicted a statement by Frederick L. Miller of Blyth & Co., one of the stockholders committee members, that Blyth owned Puget Sound stock on July 20. Berman said it did not.

The Puget Sound management is fighting the proposed merger. The subcommittee today produced a letter from Frank McLaughlin, Puget Sound president, to the stockholders, sharply attacking the stockholders committee.

McLaughlin said "the two prime movers in the committee are financial houses and stock brokerage firms that have in recent years placed large securities issues for Washington Water Power, which your management believes is eager to take over Puget's properties and customers under the guise of merger."

"These firms have admitted they expected to derive substantial fees and other possible financial benefits from promoting the previous 'merger' proposal," Francis Currie, New York attorney who served as secretary of the stockholders committee, was the first witness today.

O'Mahoney told him it appeared the chief purpose of the "stockholders committee" was "to lay the groundwork for a very good operation in the interest of the investment houses."

Currie replied, "It was an operation in the interest of their customers, some of whom were stockholders in Puget Sound."

Reference to Ebasco. Currie conceded that the committee, when drafting one of its letters to Puget Sound stockholders, had followed a suggestion of William E. Parrott, an official of Ebasco Inc. The subcommittee has contended one of its main points of inquiry is whether Electric Bond & Share Co., a large utility concern, is seeking to rebuild its influence in the Pacific Northwest. Ebasco is a wholly owned subsidiary of Electric Bond & Share.

The stockholders committee was forced on Aug. 5 to tell Puget Sound stockholders to disregard its July 20 letter, after the Securities and Exchange Commission had objected to it. Currie at first testified that Kinsey M. Robinson, then president of Washington Water Power, had no part in the decision not to fight the SEC ruling.

But the subcommittee produced a letter Currie wrote Aug. 3 in which he stated he had proposed that Robinson be consulted on the very point. The witness said this changed his recollection.

Currie said activities of the stockholders committee were "in abeyance" now, and that he did not know what future moves might be made.

Outside the hearing, O'Mahoney said he feels federal law should require all members of "so-called stockholders committees" to reveal their own financial interests.

Chandler Hovey Jr., vice president of Union Securities Corp., denied under oath yesterday that his Wall Street bank maneuvered for a merger of the two companies in order to obtain new underwriting business for itself.

Gruber and another member of the stockholders committee testified that neither they nor their firms owned any stock in Puget Sound at the time the stockholders committee sent a letter to the company's bonafide stockholders promoting the merger. Their firms have owned blocks of the stock from time to time, they testified.

Tells of Owning Stock. Chandler Hovey Jr., partner in the New York firm of White, Weld & Co., testified his firm had owned Puget Stock at various times during the existence of the stockholders committee. He said the stock was held to "maintain a market" for that security.

O'Mahoney said that kind of stock ownership appeared to put the firm in a different position than that of "bona fide" stockholder.

Two executives of Kidder, Peabody & Co., another Wall Street investment firm which took part in the stockholders committee, testified that their company expected to make a fee out of the proposed merger.

Alfred E. Borneman, a partner in the firm, said he had expected the fee would be about $100,000.

Edwin S. Webster Jr., senior partner in the firm, said that Kidder, Peabody owned about 4600 shares of Puget Sound stock at the time the July 20 letter went out, as well as about 4000 shares of Washington Water Power.

POSSE CAPTURES ELEPHANT 11 DAYS AFTER ITS ESCAPE

CHARLOTTE, N.C., Sept. 22 (AP)—Vicki the elephant guzzled water and chomped hay today after 11 days of foraging in the woodlands of Mecklenburg county.

The 6-year-old Indian elephant, which went rambling Sept. 11 from its amusement park home six miles from downtown Charlotte, was captured yesterday by a volunteer posse.

Pursuers herded it into an open field and made it exhaust itself with aimless running about. Then they circled it methodically with strands of rope, and when the web was completed snared its feet and got an elephant hook in its ear.

Vicki, once again tractable, was returned at a leisurely pace to the amusement park.

NIGERIAN STUDYING U.S. RIVER TRANSPORT

Minister Says His Country Needs Dams to Control Water Level.

Engineering techniques, such as a system of locks, canals and dams used to control the Mississippi and Missouri rivers can be applied to Nigeria's principal rivers to increase the volume of water transportation, Aubakar Tafawa Balewa, Nigerian Minister of Transportation, said here today.

Balewa, sent here by the British Embassy and United States State Department to observe improvements and techniques in river engineering, said during the six-month monsoon season, stages of the Niger and Benue rivers rise very high. The water level drops during the dry months to the point where river transportation is difficult, he stated.

The Nigerian minister said St. Louis was included in his itinerary because the Mississippi and Missouri rivers present problems similar to those of the Niger and Benue rivers.

"After seeing how the rivers here are controlled, I have many ideas for lengthening the period of navigation on the Niger and Benue, Balewa said.

Dressed in a blue and gold Hausar robe, Balewa conferred yesterday with officials of the St. Louis district of the Corps of Engineers, made a trip to the dredge Sainte Genevieve working on the Mississippi river near the mouth of the Missouri river and visited Federal Barge Lines. He arrived here Tuesday and inspected the Chain of Rocks locks.

Balewa, who has served in the Nigerian Central Council Cabinet since it was founded in 1952, was re-elected in 1954 to the House of Representatives and returned to the cabinet as Minister of Transportation, before returning to Nigeria, he will visit New Orleans, New York and London.

He arrived in the United States Sept. 12, accompanied by Michael H. Varville, permanent secretary of the Nigerian Ministry of Transportation, and his private secretary, James Whalley. The party left St. Louis today after talks with officials of the Corps of Engineers.

CAPTAIN BLAMED FOR FERRY SINKING IN WHICH 1172 DIED

HAKOKATE, Japan, Sept. 22 (AP)—A Marine court of inquiry today blamed the dead skipper for the 1954 typhoon sinking of the huge government railways ferry Toya Maru. A total of 1172 persons—56 of them Americans—drowned. It was the worst sea disaster since the Titanic sank in 1912 with 1517 dead.

After seven months of hearings, the Hakodate marine accidents inquiry agency, a government body, blamed Capt. Heiichi Kondo for putting to sea in a typhoon.

CONTINENTAL OFFICE BUILDING IS SOLD

Price Paid by New Yorkers Reported as More Than $2,000,000.

The Continental Building, 3615 Olive Street, was sold yesterday to two 27-year-old New York real estate investors, Robert Futterman and Jerry Tenney, by a St. Louis syndicate, the Grand Olive Continental Co. Purchase price was announced as more than $2,000,000.

It was the second major purchase here for Futterman and Tenney, who have been in the real estate field for about five years. In June they bought the Metropolitan Building, 508 North Grand boulevard, for a reported $1,250,000.

The 23-story Continental Building was completed in 1930 and is among the newest large office buildings in the city. Most of the space is leased to national firms for regional executive sales offices. It was bought by the local syndicate in 1946 from the Kansas City Life Insurance Co.

Financing of $1,500,000 on the building, in connection with yesterday's purchase, was placed with New York Life Insurance Co.

The Dolan Co. will continue to manage the building under the new owners.

Officers of Grand-Olive Continental Co. are Abraham Levin, president; David Shepley, vice president; Mrs. Rose Pollock, treasurer; Ben Poslosky, secretary, and Natallie Lefkowitz, general counsel.

RUSSIANS OFFER JAPAN 2 ISLES FOR PEACE PACT

Parliamentary Delegation Visiting in Moscow Confers With Top Soviet Leaders.

MOSCOW, Sept. 22 (AP)—A Japanese parliamentary delegation visiting here has been told Russia is willing to make minor territorial concessions to Japan in return for "minor considerations" in the peace treaty now being negotiated in London.

At the same time, Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev asserted to the Japanese in a surprise conference at the Kremlin last night that the Japanese government is stalling the London negotiations.

M. P. Mitamura led the Japanese and Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin the Russian group in the meeting. What "considerations" the Soviet Union wants as the price for territorial concessions have not been disclosed, but Khrushchev specifically mentioned returning Habomai and Shikotan islands to Japan.

Both are between Japan's northernmost island, Hokkaido, and Soviet-occupied Sakhalin. Habomai is within sight of Hokkaido and its occupation by the Russians has been a constant source of friction. A number of Japanese fishermen have been picked up by the Soviets for trespassing in Habomai's waters.

Mitamura and Masaru Nomizo, another of the visiting Japanese, made a trip this week to the Camp Ivanovo region to see former Japanese service men being held by the Russians.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Nomizo commented that the camp's inmates seemed cheerful and healthy.

The delegation split 1 into three groups today, one heading for Warsaw, another for Helsinki and the third for Peiping. The Warsaw group will travel to Peiping later. The Japanese group arrived here Sept. 2 at the invitation of the Supreme Soviet. They have been touring and talking with various Soviet officials.

The Japanese delegates refused to discuss the question of their countrymen still held in the Soviet Union and would not say whether their fate was mentioned in the conference with Khrushchev and Bulganin.

Japanese Express Surprise on Soviet Islands' Offer.

TOKYO, Sept. 22 (AP)—Foreign Office officials today expressed surprise over the Soviet offer to return to Japan the Habomai and Shikotan islands under "certain conditions."

They questioned the Russian methods in making known this plan to the press, rather than to the Japanese delegation to the London conference on a Russian-Japanese peace treaty. Japanese officials here were skeptical also about the so-

RUSSIAN GROUPS GIVE U.S. STORM VICTIMS $25,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Russian Red Cross and Red Crescent societies have donated $25,000 for the sufferers from flood and hurricane in the eastern United States.

Sergei R. Striganov, charge d'affaires at the Russian Embassy, presented the gift to the American National Red Cross yesterday. He said this is the first time in recent years that a Soviet humanitarian organization has contributed to on in this country.

The Russian groups also gave money recently for earthquake relief in Ecuador and flood relief in India.

The Russian gift brings to $291,800 the cash contributions from foreign countries to help the victims in the recently storm-damaged areas in six New England and mid-Atlantic states.

called conditions which were left unnamed yesterday by Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev in Moscow.

One official denied Russian charges that Japan is stalling the London negotiations, which have been temporarily recessed.

GRANITE CITY MAN FATALLY HURT BY AUTO IN RAIN

John Konarek Sr., a retired boilerhouse worker, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile near his home, 1501 Edwardsville road, Granite City, in last night's rainstorm.

Konarek, 77 years old, died at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Granite City, at 9:10 p.m. The driver of the car, who identified himself as Jerry Cornelissen, 2400 block of State street, Granite City, told police he did not see Konarek, who was pushing a cart loaded with corn across Edwardsville road in the 1400 block.

Tariff Cuts Proposed on Many Imports From Autos to Monkeys

Proposals Will Be Negotiated at Geneva
Next January in U.S. Talks With 25 Non-Red Nations.

By JOHN SCALI
WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The United States offered today to consider new tariff cuts on nearly two billion dollars of foreign imports.

The cuts would include items ranging from automobiles to monkeys and would be part of a drive to expand world trade. These new tariff concessions will be up for negotiations next January in Geneva at a big new tariff-cutting conference with representatives of 25 non-Communist nations.

Far-Reaching Parley.
The conference, the fourth since the end of World War II, shapes up as the most far-reaching since 1947 when friendly countries started their joint campaign to knock down world trade barriers.

The State Department, in its announcement on the Administration's plans, stressed that foreign countries will be asked to match American concessions by opening up their markets to more American exports.

The United States hopes to obtain, through the forthcoming negotiations, "new concessions of benefit to United States trade."

Demands Kept Secret.
While keeping secret the concessions foreign countries will be asked to grant, the department made public a list of some 900 categories of products whose duties the United States would consider lowering.

The most important imports included on the negotiating list were Scotch whisky, tobacco, automobiles, electrical equipment, manganese, tungsten, aluminum, nickel, copper, steel, olive oil, wines and ale.

The entire list covers $1,772,000,000 in imports, according to 1954 figures, or 17 per cent of total imports last year.

In addition to negotiating general tariff cuts, the Eisenhower Administration will seek to grant specific concessions to countries affected last month when the American tariff on bicycles was boosted. These countries include Britain, the chief supplier of foreign bicycles on the American market, West Germany, France and Austria.

A State Department spokesman emphasized that not all items listed would necessarily have their tariffs cut.

Formal Hearings.
Whether lowered duties will be offered will depend, they said, mainly on the views of domestic producers, importers and other interested persons who will be asked to make known their views at formal Government hearings before negotiations begin.

These hearings, before an inter-governmental committee on reciprocity information, will begin Oct. 31 with witnesses testifying in person or in written briefs.

The tariff concessions granted by the Eisenhower Administration at the Geneva conference will be the first to be carried out under the new trade agreements act, passed by Congress last July, after hot debate.

As finally approved, the law allows the Administration to cut existing tariffs 15 per cent lower than the rate in effect Jan. 1, 1955. The 15-per-cent reduction, however, must be stretched out over a three-year period with a five-per-cent reduction taking effect each year.

State Department officials said they intend to negotiate on the entire 15-per-cent package at the January meeting, rather than have a separate conference in each of the next three years on five-per-cent cuts.

'Sensitive' Items Omitted.
The published list of imports where tariff cuts will be considered did not include many items whose duties have been previously cut, often with vigorous protests from domestic producers.

Some cotton cloth imports were listed, but none of the textile items which might have roused a storm of protest from American textile mills. Absent also were these so-called "sensitive" items: Watches, agricultural products, tuna, fish fillets, sugars, glass, earthenware, tableware, coal tar dyes and rubber-soled footwear.

These items, on which domestic producers may object, however, were included: Chocolate, carpets, sheet and plate glass, more expensive types of earthenware, bone china, fire brick and olive oil.

State Department officials said no concessions will be granted which imperil domestic industries or hurt plants manufacturing items essential to national defense.

Here is a list of the most important items on which duties might be cut, including the total amount of trade involved, and the main supplier countries:

Copper—More than $300,000,000. Chile, Canada, South Africa and Rhodesia.
Tobacco—$71,000,000. Greece, Turkey and Cuba.
Automobiles — $45,000,000.

OFFICER OF CLOSED BANK
INDICTED ON 25 COUNTS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 22 (AP)—Roscoe D. Coon, vice president and cashier of a desert town bank that closed July 25, has been indicted on 25 counts of embezzlement, misapplication of funds and false entries.

The Joshua Monument National Bank—the only one in the desert community of Twenty-nine Palms—closed after an audit showed a shortage of $678,000.

Coon, who owns homes at suburban Altadena and Twenty-nine Palms, was arrested at the Del Mar race track where he had a racing stable valued at about $150,000.

7 DANISH EDITORS VISIT RUSSIAN LABOR CAMP

MOSCOW, Sept. 22 (UP)—Seven Danish newspaper editors revealed last night they had been permitted to visit a Soviet labor camp and interview prisoners.

It was believed to be the first time the Russians had allowed anyone from the West to visit a labor camp.

The editors said they talked with both political and criminal prisoners. They declined to give details of the interviews, saying they intended to write full reports for their newspapers.

Erik Seidenfaden, a Copenhagen editor, said, however, that the camp was "better than we expected and it clearly was not arranged especially for us. They couldn't have built it in a day."

The Danes said the official Soviet news agency Tass arranged the visit for them. The camp was near Kiklova, 75 miles north of Moscow.

MOTION TO DISMISS CHARGE OF ABORTION IS FILED

A motion to dismiss a charge of abortion pending against Mrs. Mary K. Vugrich, former St. Louis county midwife, on grounds she had "been led to believe" she would not be prosecuted was filed in circuit court at Clayton today.

Mrs. Vugrich, who now lives in Illinois, said she was "compelled to testify" in the state's ouster hearing against Sheriff Arthur C. Mosley and also appeared as a witness before the county grand jury. She said she "had reason to believe she had not waived immunity" and also to expect she would not be prosecuted. Her testimony involved her alleged payment of $1500 to Deputy Sheriff Hugh Bresnahan to escape prosecution for an illegal operation. Bresnahan was indicted on a bribery charge.

Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz said today no assurance was given Mrs. Vugrich by his office relative to prosecution. He recalled that her grand jury appearance was arranged by Circuit Judge Noah Weinstein, who refused to comment today. The abortion charge is set for Oct. 3.

BULGANIN SAYS RUSSIA WILL FREE 23 FRENCH CITIZENS

MOSCOW, Sept. 22 (UP)—Soviet Premier Bulganin said today 23 French citizens jailed in Russia will be freed "before completion of their terms."

Bulganin told a group of French parliamentarians that the first 11 would be turned over to French authorities in Berlin tomorrow. Bulganin, with Soviet party chief Nikita Khrushchev present, spoke to 19 visiting members of the French parliament in the hall of Catherine the Great in the Kremlin Grand palace. The conversation lasted three hours. Bulganin said the French prisoners all were serving sentences for "crimes against the Soviet Union."

WOMAN'S DEATH IS RULED RESULT OF NATURAL CAUSES

The death of Mrs. Lorenzo G. Hill, whose body was found with that of her husband last Friday in their apartment at 5522 Delmar boulevard, resulted from natural causes, a coroner's jury found yesterday. It previously had been established that Hill, 54-year-old pharmacist, had died of an asthmatic attack. Mrs. Hill, 47, had a heart condition and it was thought the shock of her husband's death, several hours before hers, may have caused her death.

UNIVERSITY ACTS TO FIRE TEACHER IN RED INQUIRY

Key Witness in Communism - In - Government Investigation Denounces Decision.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22 (AP)—The executive committee of American University's board of trustees has recommended that Prof. Herbert Fuchs, key witness in a congressional investigation of Communism in government, be dropped from the law faculty. The university is on a 76-acre campus in the northwest section of Washington.

The professor, repeating that he quit the Communist party in 1946 in "complete disillusionment," said today he would fight the ouster move. He described it as a surrender to fear of adverse publicity and said it "denies the doctrine of conversion and forgiveness."

President Hurst R. Anderson of American University confirmed the board committee's action in response to inquiries, and said it would be submitted to the full board for approval at a meeting Oct. 28. The proposal is to keep Fuchs on an inactive status, with pay, as he has been since shortly after his appearance before the House Committee on Un-American Activities in June, until his appointment runs out next June. After that, Anderson said, he will not recommend reappointment.

Fuchs's testimony to the House group three months ago has not been officially made public, but committee members said he told of Communist party activity from 1934 to 1946, including membership in three party cells in the Government. That was before he joined the university faculty, first on a part-time basis in 1949 and later as a full-time law professor in 1950.

At first, committee members said, he refused to name others with whom he was associated in Communist activity, but later gave details. Fuchs said today he gave the fuller testimony partly at the urging of American University officials.

His testimony recounted activity in a Red cell which he said he joined shortly after coming to Washington to take a job with a special Senate committee investigating the nation's railroads in 1936, and later in cells at the National Labor Relations Board and at the War Labor Board. Chairman Walter (Dem.), Pennsylvania, of the House committee, has said the inquiry, with public hearings opening in January, will be one of the group's most important ones.

When accounts of Fuchs's testimony were published in July, President Anderson said he felt that "a member of the Communist party should not be employed in any capacity in an American educational institution" but that the question over Fuchs was this: "Was he a party member or worker when employed by the American University or and is he now a party member or worker?"

Anderson said that on the basis of information he had the answer was no in both cases and added that he was known at the school as "an intelligent loyal and devoted teacher."

"He made a serious mistake in the past, which he has recognized and declared," Anderson said then. "The American University therefore would support his right as a citizen to pursue his chosen professional activities."

Fuchs called the trustee committee's action a repudiation of Anderson's stand of two months ago.

SPIED FOR U.S., SAYS FREED AMERICAN

Walter A. Rickett Claims
He Warned of Chinese Entry Into Korea War.

TOKYO, Sept. 22 (UP)—Walter A. Rickett, who was released last week by the Chinese Communists, said today he is "definitely not a Communist" and claimed he risked his life to supply information to the United States Government.

The former Marine intelligence officer was released by the Reds Sept. 16 after four and a half years in prison. He arrived here from Hong Kong last night en route to his home in Seattle, Wash., and reunion with his wife whom he hasn't seen since his arrest in 1951. Mrs. Rickett was freed by the Reds earlier this year and has been living with her parents in Yonkers, N.Y.

Rickett said that as early as September 1950, he relayed information that one Chinese Communist army was moving up from South China to Manchuria to intervene in the Korean war. He said he gave the information to Ted Youde, third secretary of the British negotiating team then in Peiping.

Denies Meeting Rickett.
Press reports from London quoted Youde as saying that he never met Rickett, who went to China with his wife in 1948 as Fulbright students.

Rickett said that Gen. Douglas MacArthur, then supreme commander of the United Nations forces in Korea, "must have known about this (the troop movement), because the British were passing along all my intelligence information then."

Rickett claimed that from the time Chiang Kai-shek's troops surrendered Peiping to the Communists, "I gathered political and economic information and gave it to the American consul in Peiping."

He said the information concerned the "Communist food supply, their attitude toward foreigners and a lot of other things." After the American consulates withdrew in May 1950, he said he passed his information on to the British and "really began collecting military information about the time the Korean war started."

Not Bothered Until Arrest.

Rickett said he wasn't bothered by the Communists until his arrest on July 25, 1951. He said he refused to confess to the spy charges the first "six or seven days because I thought they (the Reds) would use it as propaganda."

He said he changed his mind "because they had me cold." "They knew what I was doing and I thought if I confessed I might get out," he said.

Rickett said he was subjected to "systematic, unrelenting and searching interrogations," sometimes day and night during the first month of his detention.

Rickett will leave Friday for the United States.

Chile Copper Mine Strike.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 22 (AP)—The Chile Exploration Co.'s copper operation, Chuquibambilla, was paralyzed yesterday by a strike of 5300 miners and office employees. The company termed employee wage demands excessive. The American-owned company is a subsidiary of Anaconda Copper.

MAN, WIFE PICKET PULLMAN PLANT, CAUSE STOPPAGE

BESSEMER, Ala., Sept. 22 (AP)—A man-and-wife picket line halted operation of the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing Co. plant today.

The shutdown came when workers refused to enter the plant while it was being picketed by E. S. McClain and Mrs. McClain.

About 300 to 400 workers milled around the plant entrance this morning. Some told reporters "this is not a strike. We're just respecting a picket line."

The Pullman Standard plant is working on orders for freight cars totaling several million dollars.

MACMILLAN PUTS SPY CASE BLAME ON TOP OFFICIALS

British Foreign Secretary Says Cabinet Ministers Must Bear Responsibility.

LONDON, Sept. 22 (UP) — Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan said today cabinet ministers, not government workers, must take the blame "if there are mistakes" in Britain's handling of the Burgess-MacLean spy case.

Macmillan said that as Foreign Secretary, "I am responsible and I have no doubt I shall be blamed."

In his first comment on the case of the vanished diplomats, Macmillan did not refer to the men who held the Foreign Secretary's job when Guy Burgess and Donald MacLean disappeared in 1951 and during the period of investigation which followed.

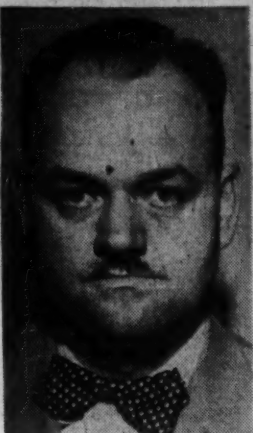

Socialist Herbert Morrison was Foreign Secretary when the two Foreign Office men went behind the Iron Curtain. Sir Anthony Eden, now the Prime Minister, succeeded Morrison when the Conservative party won the 1951 general election a few months later.

The case since has become the subject of heated press criticism of the Foreign Office. British newspapers have demanded an investigation and the Foreign Office has promised to issue a white paper tomorrow explaining the situation.

Macmillan spoke of ministerial responsibility, a basic tenet of the British constitution, in answering newsmen's questions at a Foreign Press Association luncheon.

He was asked: "Is anybody at

DANIEL J. NACK

the Foreign Office to be blamed for the Burgess-MacLean affair?"

"We are served by the most loyal and efficient foreign service at home and abroad," Macmillan replied. "I would like to make it doubly clear that if there are mistakes, they are those of the ministers."

It would be a disservice "to the most splendid, loyal men," he said, "if our ministers were to try to shelter from that responsibility."

Eden Against Public Inquiry. Earlier, informed sources said Eden has decided against a public investigation of the Foreign Office's handling of the case.

The sources said Eden and his cabinet, at a two-hour meeting yesterday, decided not to yield to clamor for a public inquiry into alleged Foreign Office foot-dragging.

An investigation will be held, they added, but it will be conducted in private.

The Foreign Office has been under steady newspaper attack since Sunday when it was revealed that Burgess and MacLean were known to be Communist agents before they vanished from the country in May 1951.

NEWSPAPER ADS STIR DISPUTE IN ELECTION BOARD

Member Daniel J. Nack Complains His Name Was Omitted — Doherty Explains.

Ill feeling among members of the St. Louis Board of Election Commissioners came to a head yesterday in a noisy dispute over newspaper advertisements of the state-wide referendum election to be held Oct. 4.

Daniel J. Nack called in reporters to complain that his name was being left off advertisements certifying the ballot to be submitted to the voters. Chairman Michael J. Doherty asserted that it would be improper to include Nack among Election Board members to be listed in the attestation at the bottom of the advertisements, because Nack had refused to approve the advertisements.

In the ensuing wrangle, all the board members — Nack, Doherty, William E. Buder and Isaac Orr — were shouting at the same time.

The dispute centered around the ballot heading, which reads "constitutional ballot," although the two propositions being submitted make no change in the state constitution. Measure No. 1 proposes a state cigarette tax of 2 cents a package, and Measure No. 2 proposes establishment of a program to provide more liberal aid for schools.

Toberman's Explanation. Secretary of State Walter H. Toberman has announced that the state election laws require the "constitutional" caption in submitting such measures, even though the proposed legislation would not become a part of the constitution.

When the official ballot was submitted to the Election Board on Sept. 16, Nack questioned its validity and wanted to defer the decision on advertising it until an opinion was obtained from the city counselor's office. His motion was not seconded, however, and when a motion to approve the ballot was presented, Nack refrained from voting.

On being advised later by the city counselor that it was obligatory for Election Board members to attach their names to the ballot advertisement, Nack sought to have his name added to the other three, but there was no second to his motion.

Started Two Years Ago.

There has been ill feeling between Nack and the other board members since a redistricting of constables' and magistrates' districts about two years ago. Nack asserted yesterday that none of his motions has been given a second for a long time.

In a heated exchange, he accused Chairman Doherty of failing to carry out a board directive calling for tests of two types of voting machines by the engineering schools of St. Louis and Washington Universities.

Doherty replied that the board had subsequently expanded its investigation of voting machines to study additional types.

ECONOMIST SEEKS BRANCH PLANTS FOR PUERTO RICO

Peter R. Levin, economic consultant to Puerto Rico's Economic Development Administration, was in St. Louis today to talk to industrialists here and encourage them to consider locating branch factories in Puerto Rico.

Levin said his agency makes a study for each manufacturer to determine whether a Puerto Rican branch would be economically worthwhile.

Adalberto Carrasquillo, Puerto Rican industrial representative to the St. Louis area, said new industries are not required to pay federal or local taxes for a 10-year period, as an inducement to locating there. The local tax exemption does not apply unless the manufacturer maintains his United States plant at full operation, he said.

2 IN CHICAGO NAMED IN EAST SIDE HOLDUP

Paramount Club Victims Identify Men as Part of Robbery Gang.

Two men under arrest at Chicago were identified last night as members of a gang of five robbers who early last Saturday obtained about $2500 from 30 customers in the Paramount Club, Negro night club in East St. Louis, police announced.

Four victims, taken to Chicago by East St. Louis police, identified Willie Abrams, 23 years old, and Eddie Baker, 29, described as former convicts. The witnesses returned to East St. Louis today with Detectives William F. Johnson Sr., and James Suttles, Negro officers.

A badge belonging to, an East St. Louis policeman was found in the apartment where Abrams and Baker were arrested. Abrams, who denied he was ever in East St. Louis, said he found the badge in a trash can in Chicago, but failed to point out the place. The badge was reported missing by Patrolman James Gigger, a Negro, who said he had placed it in the glove compartment of his automobile.

Baker was quoted as saying he was "invited" to take part in the holdup by several other members of the robbery gang, who had looked over the premises several weeks ago.

He said the group arrived on the East Side last Friday night from Chicago and parked their automobile near the club. Following the holdup they returned to Chicago, where Baker received $800 as his share, he related.

Abrams, who is suspected of having shot and wounded a Chicago policeman, and Baker are held at Chicago for questioning in other holdups. A detainer has been placed against them in the East Side robbery.

Gigger's report of the manner in which his badge left his possession is under investigation. Capt. Trannie Polk, in charge of Negro officers on the East St. Louis force, said he was seeking to learn if Gigger was a victim of the holdup men, and whether the robbers interrupted a large dice game. Gigger has been a policeman since 1947.

CAMPAIGN MEETINGS SET THIS WEEK BY UNITED FUND

Several campaign meetings of the United Fund are being held this week, starting today, Edwin M. Clark, organization chairman of the campaign, announced.

Section chairmen of the industry and manufacturing division were to meet today at Hotel Statler with the division chairman, Powell B. McHaney. Volunteer solicitors of the large firms division were to meet at the Racquet Club, 476 North Kingshighway.

William B. McMillan, chairman of the large firms division, said volunteers will receive instructions for establishing the United Fund's new chapter plan in the 171 companies which are their responsibility. Another meeting for those unable to attend will be held next Wednesday. County division, headed by Mrs. Lee I. Niedringhaus, will hold its session tomorrow at Deer Creek Club, 9861 Litzinger road, Ladue.

DUBOIS URGES CO-ORDINATED POLICE ACTION

He Denies County Department Seeks to Take Over Municipal Forces, However.

The immediate problem of the new St. Louis County Police Department is to impress on residents of incorporated and unincorporated parts of the county the need for co-ordinated police action, Police Superintendent Albert E. DuBois said yesterday.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Downtown Lions Club at Hotel Statler, DuBois said:

"The real difficulty is to get across to the incorporated cities the fact that the County Police Department is not trying to 'take over' existing municipal police forces."

"However, establishment of a uniform crime reporting system with a central clearing house for information is vitally necessary to enable proper marshaling of forces to fight crime."

DuBois said that, so far, only one of the numerous municipalities in the county has written in stating they wished to co-operate on crime reports. This was the Village of Charlack in the northern part of the county.

During a question-and-answer period, DuBois was asked about reports that the new department was in a state of "utter confusion."

"There naturally was some confusion when the new police department took over the sheriff's law enforcement duties July 1, because quarters were not ready and we even had to inventory equipment while it was in operation," he said.

"But, if I remember correctly, those who charged 'utter confusion' were members of the department who walked out. Within two or three weeks of the time they left, the confusion was gone, too."

The St. Louis CIO Industrial Union Council last night reaffirmed its endorsement of the nonpartisan county police department and called upon all municipal police departments in the county to support and co-operate with the county department "for the betterment of law enforcement."

In a statement announcing its action, the CIO council asserted the overwhelming support given the charter amendment creating the county police agency was proof that county residents "wanted politics out of police department affairs."

"However," the statement continued, "there were those who for their own selfish reasons did not want to lose the political influence wielded by the old elective system of law officers. It is appalling to see the nonpartisan police force attempt to operate as intended

Polite Briton Is Changed Man Whenever He Gets on Wheels

English Highways on Saturday Afternoon Are a Terrifying Jungle of Bicyclists and Little Speed Cars.

By ERNIE HILL
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Radio. Copyright, 1955.
LONDON, Sept. 22—The average Englishman is the most polite and long-suffering bloke in the world. He will stand in line to get a bus, to eat lunch, to purchase a pork chop and to wait for a seat in the movies. He will queue for anything and patiently wait his turn.
But put him in an automobile and he loses all inhibitions. He becomes a fiend on wheels.
Britain's highways on a normal Saturday afternoon are a terrifying jungle of bicyclists weaving along three abreast, high-powered little speed cars cutting figures-of-eight and wild-eyed motorists zipping from lane to lane and completely snarling traffic.

London's chief of police and two advisers, currently touring the United States studying traffic problems, are learning that many of these driving idiosyncrasies are strangely peculiar to England.

Amazed by U.S. Discipline.
Col. Arthur E. Young, London police commissioner, has been amazed at the discipline showed by American motorists in keeping to traffic lanes, and well he should be.

English drivers pay no attention to lanes. They straddle the white line so they will be in position to zip into either lane depending upon which is moving faster. This is accepted driving technique and only fools and foreigners get in one line and stay there.

Motorcyclists with wives and babies in sidecars streak down the wrong side of the road to get around bunches of traffic. The fatality rate for motorcyclists is very high.

Parking in crowded downtown areas is only now becoming a serious problem. "No parking" signs have been put up in hundreds of crowded streets in the last three months. Nobody pays a bit of attention to them.

Police Must Wait.
The police are required to wait until a motorist returns to his car. Then they give him a ticket personally. Policemen sometimes wait three hours to nab one motorist while hundreds of others get away.

Trucks and chauffeur-driven cars are allowed to violate all the laws on the books. Truck drivers are sacred because it is presumed that they are doing important business. They leave trucks parked in the middle of streets and wander off for a cup of tea, knowing they are immune.

Car owners with chauffeurs—and there are thousands in London—are considered men of such importance that the police rarely bother them. A chauffeur-driven car could be parked in the middle of Piccadilly Circus. The police would assume that it was a Cabinet minister on vital work and never say a thing.

Reverence for Livery.
There is a feudalistic reverence for anyone with a liveried chauffeur. As a result, it is the average citizen who gets all of the tickets and the hard times from the police.

A familiar sight in a crowded "no parking" street is this: Five trucks are parked at various random angles, their drivers gone off for the morning. Four large touring cars are parked with chauffeurs sitting reading newspapers. In the middle of this is a policeman, book in hand, writing out a ticket for one protesting motorist who has parked his small Austin among these giants of the byways.

American cars are most impractical off Britain's major highways. The lanes that appear on the maps as secondary highways are barely wide enough for two to pass. You are asking for it if you go more than 25 miles an hour because the lanes wind and curve. Originally, these lanes were made by cows wandering home at milking time.

Magnificent Plans.
Each succeeding British government draws magnificent plans for a set of super-highways to criss-cross Britain. These plans with drawings and maps are run in popular magazines, and the problem ends here. Nothing will be done about them for two reasons: They cost too much and the English really prefer lanes that wind through the scenic countryside.

"Nothing," said one Englishman, "could be so boring as those straight stretches of American highway. There are no turns, no scenes, no magnificent views. It makes motoring so dull."

Fresh Idaho PRUNES*

ITALIAN

No other fruit offers so many opportunities for making tempting desserts and salads. Best of all—Idaho FRESH Italian PRUNES can be enjoyed all year long for no other fruit is so easy to preserve. Here are the simple steps.

CAN 'EM!
Wash firm fresh prunes. Prick with a large darning needle or sharp-tined fork to help keep the fruit from bursting. Make light or medium syrup—1 cup of sugar and 4 cups of water for light syrup; 1 cup of sugar and 3 cups water for medium. Syrup: Stir together sugar and liquid (fruit juice may be used, as desired). Cook until sugar dissolves. Keep syrup hot until needed, but do not let it boil down. 1 to 1½ cups syrup is needed for each quart of fruit.
Add prunes to boiling syrup, not more than 2 layers in pan. Remove pan from heat not more than 2 minutes after adding fruit. Cover. Let stand 20 to 30 minutes. Pack into hot jars. Reheat syrup to boiling. Pour over hot prunes, leaving ½ inch head space. Run knife between fruit and jar to remove air spaces. Add more syrup if needed. Wipe threads and sealing shoulder of jar.
Adjust covers according to jar manufacturer's directions. Process in boiling water bath 15 minutes. Remove. Cool. Label. Store in dark cool place.

FREEZE 'EM!
In syrup: Boil for 5 minutes 1 cup sugar to each 3 cups water. Chill. Select firm ripe prunes, free from blemishes. Wash in cold water, halve, remove pits. Pack in freezer containers as closely as possible without crushing. Cover fruit with chilled syrup, leaving ½ inch head space. Adjust cover. Freeze at once, after labeling.
In sugar: Spread prunes in shallow pan. Cover with sugar, using 1 cup sugar to 6 to 10 cups prunes, depending on desired sweetness. Use spatula or wooden spoon to gently turn fruit over and over until each half is coated with sugar. Fill freezer container. Shake to pack fruit closely. Seal. Label. Freeze at once.
To use: Thaw at room temperature or on refrigerator shelf. Frozen Idaho Fresh Prunes will not discolor after thawing; may be kept several days in the refrigerator. Use as fresh fruit in serving or in favorite fresh prune recipes.

NOTE: Idaho FRESH Italian PRUNES are naturally sweeter, require less sugar when canning or freezing.

MARCIANO TOO STRONG FOR MOORE, SCORES KO IN NINTH

WILL ARCHIE RETIRE? 'ARE YOU KIDDIN'?'

By Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Archie Moore was still popping off in his dressing room after he had been knocked out by Rocky Marciano in the ninth round of their scheduled 15-round bout at Yankee Stadium.

Far from downhearted, Archie laughed and joked with his questioners who crowded about him.

"I hope everybody that saw the fight enjoyed it as much as I did," was his surprising statement.

In answer to a question as to whether he planned to retire, Archie let out a roar of laughter and said:

"Are you kiddin'?"

Somebody in the back of the room complained to Archie that he couldn't hear what he was saying. Then Moore obligingly stood on a chair.

Ready for Rematch.

He thanked all the men who worked in his corner and said he would be glad to have another chance with Rocky if Marciano were willing to go again.

That was undoubtedly inspired by the huge sum of money which Archie will realize from the bout for he'll get 20 per cent of all net receipts which should amount to a pretty penny. Marciano, of course, gets twice as much.

Moore insisted that he had not been hurt in the fight except for the badly bruised eye and he said Rocky was the strongest fighter he ever had met.

"Maybe he doesn't hit as hard as some other fellows, but he hits hard enough," Archie said. Marciano was rather subdued, though naturally pleased at the outcome of the bout.

He said that his mother and his wife both want him to retire but he doesn't think he will and said he would be glad to fight Moore again if there is a demand for a rematch.

The champion said he was dazed but did not blank out when he was knocked down in the second round.

"Charles, Walcott hit harder," Rocky also stated that he thought that both Ezzard Charles and Joe Walcott hit harder than Moore.

Marciano paid tribute to Moore's gameness and remarked that he thought he had him after the sixth round and was surprised that Archie fought back as hard as he did in the next round.

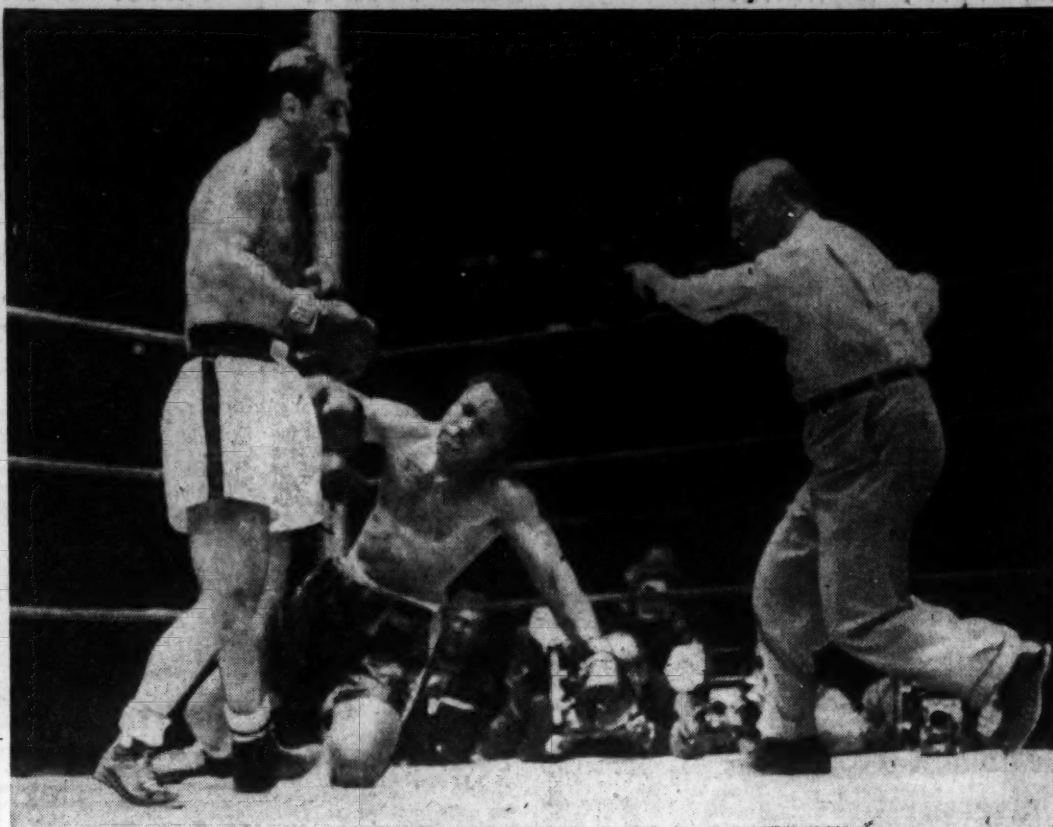

"He was also very tricky in there," said Rocky, "but I expected that."

There was one of the worst jams in the press section in history as 700 reporters and commentators covered the bout. They came from all sections of the country as well as from Europe and it seemed as though all of them, plus many others, tried to crowd into the dressing rooms of the boxers.

Moore Reaches End of Rocky Road

Appearing to sense that his night's work is done, winner and still heavyweight champion ROCKY MARCIANO has an expression of elation as Challenger ARCHIE MOORE sinks to the canvas in the ninth round of the title fight at Yankee Stadium. 'Right in Fourth Was Turning Point'—Kessler

By W. J. McGoogan
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Harry Kessler, only St. Louisan ever to referee a world's championship fight in New York City, was very thrilled and surprised at the assignment.

He knew that he was under consideration, as were several other referees, but he did not get the nod until he reached Yankee Stadium.

Harry didn't have too much work to do in the ring, for the fighters took care of themselves very well.

Charley Johnston, manager of Archie Moore, and "Cheerful" Norman, his trainer, complained before the bout started that Rocky Marciano had too much vaseline on his face but

Yankees Clinch Tie For Flag by Beating Nats for 8th in Row

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (INS)—The New York Yankees are ready to apply the coup de grace in the American League pennant battle.

Casey Stengel's Bombers enjoy a breather along with everybody else today but open their final four-game series in Boston tomorrow needing only one victory to clinch the flag.

They assured themselves of at least a tie for the hotly-disputed prize last night when they defeated Washington, 7 to 3, for their eighth straight—their longest winning streak of the year—while second-place Cleveland lost at Chicago, 7 to 2.

The defeat dropped the dying Indians 3½ games back, with three games left to play with the ax-swingers from Detroit. One more Cleveland setback, or Yankee win, as the case may be, would give the Yanks their sixth title in seven years and a fifth World Series meeting with Brooklyn.

Thus have the Yankees broken up a tight pennant fight, which saw the lead change hands eight times in the last two months, by winning 13 of their last 15 in the searing September stretch.

The Yanks rolled up a 7-to-0 lead in five innings against Charlie Dressen's cellar dwellers but then sounded the alarm for two more pitchers as the Nats scored three in the seventh.

Bill Skowron's run-scoring triple in the third actually proved the margin of victory but a three-run homer by Billy Martin, his first circuit clout since hanging up his Army uniform, was the big blow.

Bob Turley had a two-hitter through six innings before lack of control got the best of him. Five double-plays helped him notch his seventeenth win.

Chicago southpaw Jack Harshman all but shut the door on Cleveland by spacing five hits to beat the Tribe for the fifth time this season. The Sox drove Bob Lemon to cover by scoring five runs in the eighth inning.

The New York Giants clinched third place in the National League by taking a double-header, 7-2 and 7-3, to sweep their four-game series with Pittsburgh. The Giants' Willie Mays was carried off the field on a stretcher with a sprained left hip and back after crashing into the bleacher ledge trying for a catch of Dale Long's 460-foot drive in the second inning.

He was taken to a hospital for X-rays but Dr. Anthony Palermo said the injury was not serious and Willie probably would play tomorrow.

Gus Bell drove in eight runs, four on a home run, as Cincinnati drubbed Milwaukee, 14 to 5. Ted Kluszewski hit his forty-seventh homer for the Reds and Johnny Logan hit a grand-slam for the Braves.

Champion Floored in 2nd Round, Then Batters Archie; 61,574 Fans At Fight, 400,000 in Theaters

By W. J. McGoogan
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Archie Moore's advertising campaign, plus his ability as a fighter, earned him a chance at the heavyweight championship of the world. But he didn't have the goods he advertised and was knocked out by Rocky Marciano in one minute, 19 seconds of the ninth round at Yankee Stadium last night before a crowd of 61,574 who paid $948,000, to witness a title match which will rank with the great ones of all time.

In addition many others, perhaps as many as 400,000, saw it on the closed theater television circuit.

No matter where you saw it or heard it, however, it was a thrilling battle all the way. It was not a one-sided contest, as the champion was on the floor for a count of four in the second round from Moore's right-hand chop.

And Archie was down three times before the knockout, twice in the sixth round for counts of four and eight and again in the eighth round when he was on the floor as the bell rang ending the round after he took a count of six.

Champion Misses Badly.

Moore, the better boxer, made the champion miss badly but his knockdown in the second round aroused Rocky's fire. So the champion went to work slugging at Archie, keeping on the pressure until it proved too much for Moore who, at nearly 39, is eight years older than Marciano.

Once the action got under way, the huge crowd which nearly filled the stadium stood nearly all the time, the spectacle was so exciting.

The bout was refereed by Harry Kessler of St. Louis. It was the first time anyone from that city ever refereed a heavyweight championship bout in New York.

Harry did a good job, too, although he didn't have too much to worry about. He had to break the fighters out of a clinch and once he warned them about using their heads carelessly. Another time he warned Marciano to keep his punches up when it appeared that some of Rocky's blows were straying into foul territory.

Aside from that, the two men did all the work and they were busy just about every minute they were in the ring.

Moore became Marciano's forty-ninth successive victim in his professional career and the forty-third by a knockout. The defeat stopped Archie's victory string which had reached 21 in succession. He, of course, retains his world's title in the light-heavyweight division.

There were many times when Marciano looked his usual crude and awkward self. And he wastes more energy and Rocky Piles Into Archie.

When Rocky had Moore hurt a couple of times, instead of trying to land one decisive blow, he just piled into Archie and threw punches with reckless abandon. Some of the punches hit Archie on top of the head, some of them on his arms and shoulders. Rocky kept everlastingly at it, however.

Rocky was ahead on the cards of the three officials before the bout ended in the ninth round.

Kessler had it five rounds for Marciano, two for Moore with one even. Judge Harold Barnes had it 5 to 3 for Marciano and Judge Artie Aldala scored it seven for Marciano, one for Moore.

Marciano's ponderous fists made all those counts immaterial, however.

At the finish the champion had a slight cut over his left eye and his nose bled a little. Moore's right eye was closed tight with a var-colored lump as large as a golf ball.

Champ Keeps a Promise.

The champion, who weighed 188½ to 189 for Moore, started out as he said that he would, attempting to end the bout as quickly as possible because he looked upon Moore as a very dangerous rival every minute they were in the ring together.

Rocky landed two or three very good punches in the first round, but Moore managed to fend him off.

Then in the second round, Moore's right-hand chopping punch caught Marciano as he rushed in and the champion went to his knees. He didn't seem to be badly hurt for he

Rocky to Fight Again in June, Manager Says

NEW YORK, Sept. 22 (UP)—

ROCKY MARCIANO, jubilant after his knockout victory over Archie Moore last night, said today he had "no plans to retire now."

The unbeaten champion, who made his sixth defense of the heavyweight title before 61,574 in Yankee Stadium, explained that his talk of retirement following the fight was merely "thoughts about it because of the pressure that was being put on me by members of my family."

Marciano told a large brigade of sports writers, cameramen and television representatives, "I expect to defend my title again whenever my manager, Al Weill, sets the date."

Weill said "there will be no defense until next June."

got up and fought back as Moore tried hard to land a finishing blow.

Marciano returned to the attack at the start of the third round as he kept whaling away at Moore with both hands. However, Archie managed to slip many of the punches and got in some good blows himself, particularly with his left hand, which he was working like a plane.

In the fourth round, Marciano backed Moore against the ropes and pounded away with both hands. Few of Rocky's blows landed cleanly and he took a hard right himself at the end of the round.

Rocky was bleeding slightly from his nose and the cut over his left eye when the round was over.

Rocky Presses in Fifth.

Marciano never gave Moore a chance to attack in the fifth round as he kept after Archie and backed him against the ropes as much as possible.

The pace was telling on Moore. That was easy to see and in the sixth round he finally hit the canvas from a combination left and right to the head. Archie took a count of six, got up and fought back. Then he surprised onlookers by coming back stronger than ever in the seventh round, even though his right eye was almost closed.

Moore carried the attack to the champion. Once Archie slipped to the canvas, was up without a count and Kessler ruled

It was only the second time in a 49-bout career that Heavyweight Champion ROCKY MARCIANO had been knocked down when ARCHIE MOORE floored him for a fourth count in the second round of the title fight. Only other time Marciano was knocked down was in 1953 when he won the title from Jersey Joe Walcott.

Marciano Retains Title

It a slip and not a knockdown. Marciano bled from the nose and the cut over his eye again in the round as he backed Moore into the ropes and to slug him with both hands.

The champion kept on the pressure in the eighth round, punishing Moore's body severely. He slammed a left and right to Moore's body, then knocked him to the floor with a smashing right hand to the stomach. The count reached six as the bell rang, but Moore was hurt.

Physician Asks a Question. Dr. Vincent Nardiello of the New York State Athletic Commission asked Archie during the intermission if he wanted to "throw it in," that is, quit.

Archie replied that he wanted one more desperation shot at Marciano.

But Moore was too far gone. He could hardly see out of his right eye and his body pounding which he had taken was just too much. Marciano pounded with rights and lefts until Archie went to the floor. He tried hard to pull himself up at the count of eight, but his legs wouldn't answer and he slumped back to the canvas, a thoroughly knocked-out man.

Plenty of Gamesmen. But in defeat Moore lost nothing. He made one of his very best showings for an important bout and certainly displayed all the gamesmen which anybody could ask.

It was a match which will go down as one of the hardest fought in the history of the heavyweight division. Even though Marciano fought in his usual style, which is not that of a finished boxer, he again proved that he can get up off the floor and win as he did the night he won the title from Jersey Joe Walcott in Philadelphia.

The bout did not start until almost 10 o'clock (St. Louis time) in order not to conflict with the telecast of the Bobby Dykes-George Johnson bout in Miami, Fla., under the direction of the International Boxing Club, which promoted the heavyweight title bout, too.

Marciano was the first in the ring, wearing a blue robe with a hood over his head. The night was quite cool.

Moore came into the ring

After-Fight Quotes

FLOYD PATTERSON, light-heavyweight sensation who may challenge Marciano in a few years, after watching the fight in a San Francisco theater: "He (Marciano) is the hardest puncher I've ever seen. Like Archie says, he has lots to learn. I'd hate to see him then."

ROCKY MARCIANO: "It was a short right-hand that put him away. I knew that was the ball game."

ARCHIE MOORE: "I made my mistake when I tried to rush Rocky off his feet (after flooring the champion). I should have tried to stalk him systematically. His consistency overpowered me."

JACK DEMPSEY: "Rocky will be an even better champion with a few more fights under his belt. . . I'm convinced he could have finished him sooner than the ninth round if he would have fought more to the body instead of the head. . . If he takes my advice, he'll fight more often."

shortly after Rocky and wore a flashy black robe trimmed in gold. His trunks also were black, trimmed in gold. Rocky wore white trunks with black piping.

Maybe Archie was thinking of the colors of the university of his former home state (Missouri) in his choice of colors. It is doubtful if the postponement of one day had any effect on the boxers or on the size of the "gate."

The I.B.C. reported that it opened business with $700,000 in the morning and lost $700,000 in when the gates were opened at the stadium.

About 15,000 55 bleacher tickets went on sale at 6:30 p.m. (St. Louis time) and the bleachers were packed in every spot which had a view of the ring. Many seats were blanketed out by motion picture and photographer stands erected on the field.

A number of ex-heavyweight champions were introduced—among them Exzar Chapp, Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Max Baer, Joe Walcott and Jim Braddock.

Ray Robinson, former middleweight champion of the world, also was introduced with the statement that he would fight Carl (Bobo) Olson for the 160-pound crown in Chicago Nov. 4.

It had been rumored for some time that this match had been made, but this was the first official announcement.

'Right in Fourth Was Turning Point'—Kessler

Harry paid no attention to the beef.

Grease on Both Sides. Later Kessler said that he noticed that Rocky had some grease on his face but it appeared to be about the normal amount for a heavyweight fight.

Resides, Kessler pointed out, Archie had grease on his hair. "That was a great fight, though," Harry said in his dressing room as he pulled off his ring clothes. "It was no one-sided contest. They both threw fine combination punches and their stamina was fantastic. The way they stood up under bad beatings."

"I gave Marciano five rounds with one even and two for Moore," Harry said. "I thought Moore had the second, when he knocked Rocky down, and then, surprisingly enough, the seventh, the round after which he went down the first time."

"I warned the boys once about using their heads and also cautioned Rocky to keep his punches up. That was all. It was as clean a fight, I think, as I ever refereed."

"It seemed to me that the turning point of the match came in the fourth round when Marciano landed a tremendous right-hand smash, high on Archie's head."

Kessler gives all the fees he receives for refereeing fights to charities, splitting them up among Jewish, Catholic and Protestant funds.

Handled Moore-Maxim Bout. He has refereed in this state for a number of years and in St. Louis, of course, for many more. He handled the bout at The Arena in which Moore won the light-heavyweight title from Joe Maxim, Dec. 17, 1952.

Harry's business takes him to New York every week and he commutes by air between St. Louis and New York about 50 weeks out of each year.

"The commission here gets in touch with him when he is wanted to referee a Friday night fight so that he'll be sure to stay over, then he takes a plane home Saturday morning. He lives with his family in Ladue."

Rain Upsets Work Schedule At Missouri

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 22.—Don Faurot, agricultural school graduate turned coach, has nothing against rain, but he wishes it could improve its timing.

He was all set to send his Missouri Tigers through a stiff offensive scrimmage when the deluge hit yesterday. So squad members studied pictures, but got out to a soggy field for a brief, than intended workout just before dark.

The missed drill will be made up this afternoon, but not as rigorous a plane as had been intended. It will be the final practice before the Tigers leave tomorrow by air for Ann Arbor for Saturday's game with the Michigan Wolverines.

Fred Allen's outspoken verdict on Thom McAn shoes' looks and fit Comedian and author of "Treadmill to Oblivion" wore Thom McAns in 30-day trial, now tells all the facts.

Fred Allen's report, in his own words:

WHEN I received my notice to serve on the Thom McAn Shoe Jury, I was prepared to find the defendant guilty.

All I knew about Thom McAn was that they sold shoes priced so low, I was convinced they had to be made out of dried mousehide and colored cellophane.

My feet are not dogs

The average man abuses his feet. Unlike his nose, ears and eyes—which get the best of everything and live like kings—his feet live like dogs (which they are frequently called).

Man's feet carry him all through his life with never a gesture of appreciation or an occasional kind word.

Far from behaving like the average man, I had been pampering my feet, buying shoes that cost $25 and $30.

I answer Thom McAn's summons

And then I received my summons to join a jury to try Thom McAns. I did. At the Thom McAn store I found a greater variety of styles than at expensive shoe shops.

The Thom McAns I selected fit perfectly, feel as comfortable and look as snappy as the shoes I have been wearing all my life.

An actor has to look his best from top to toe. With Thom McAn taking care of the toe, all I have to worry about now is the top.

I keep my friends guessing

I have shown a number of friends my new shoes and asked them to guess what they cost. Not one has guessed correctly yet. They do a double-take when I tell them the Thom McAn prices—mostly $7.95 and $8.95.

I always say "you live and learn" and if you live long enough you will learn to wear Thom McAn shoes for three reasons—to save money—to improve your appearance—and to insure your comfort.

I have only one complaint. When I walk down the street these days, I cannot pass a Thom McAn store. My feet insist on taking me inside.

Fred Allen

P.S. The "jury fee" I got from Thom McAn has enabled me to make extra donations to Camp N.Y.D.A., Jewish Theatrical Guild, and St. Malachy's Actors' Church of N. Y.

For '56, Ford brings you the greatest safety news in a generation. At the same time, Ford brings you a car so new in power, so stunning in style, so fine in concept you'll agree it's your soundest new-car buy.

Ford's safety news is new Lifeguard Design—the result of more than two years of testing and research by Ford to learn and do something about the main causes of serious accident injuries.

In cooperation with universities, medical associations and safety experts, Ford learned that most serious injuries were caused by drivers being thrown against the steering post, occupants being thrown forward against hard interior surfaces, or being thrown out of the car.

To provide extra protection against these hazards Ford developed the new Lifeguard features described at the right. They combine to bring you the first major contribution to driver and passenger safety in automobile accidents.

When you visit your Ford Dealer's and learn Ford's full Lifeguard story . . . when you see Ford's many "safety firsts" . . . you'll know that Ford has done something definite and important for the protection of you and your family.

But there is still more wonderful news! Now, Ford brings you the successor to the V-8 engines . . . the modern deep-block Y-8

. . . developed by the organization that has built more V-8's than all other makers combined. Ford's advanced deep-block design means extra-smooth, extra-quiet "GO" . . . contributes to longer engine life . . . makes for greater savings.

Ford creates fresh styling news too! It has breathtaking Thunderbird beauty . . . delightful new colors . . . rich new Luxury Lounge interiors . . . and quality workmanship throughout.

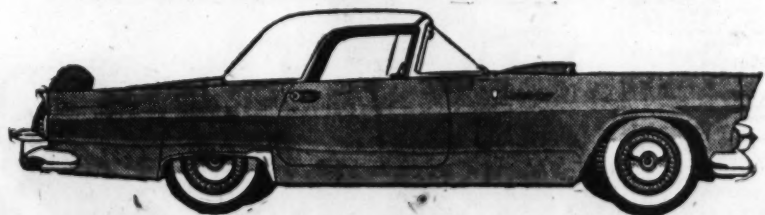

In added protection . . . responsive performance . . . brilliant styling . . . and inherent quality . . . you're certain to agree that Ford is the fine car at half the fine car price.

ARCTIC SUPPLY MISSION

A Military Sea Transportation Service LST is unloaded of its cargo of fuel drums in Barter Island harbor, near the Arctic circle. The LST was one of a convoy of Navy and MSTs vessels which left Alaska last month carrying supplies and building equipment for the construction of Dewline, a series of distant early warning radar stations across the top of the world. The Navy announced the successful completion of the gigantic supply mission yesterday. —United Press Telegram from United States Navy.

MOUNTED PATROL IN BUENOS AIRES

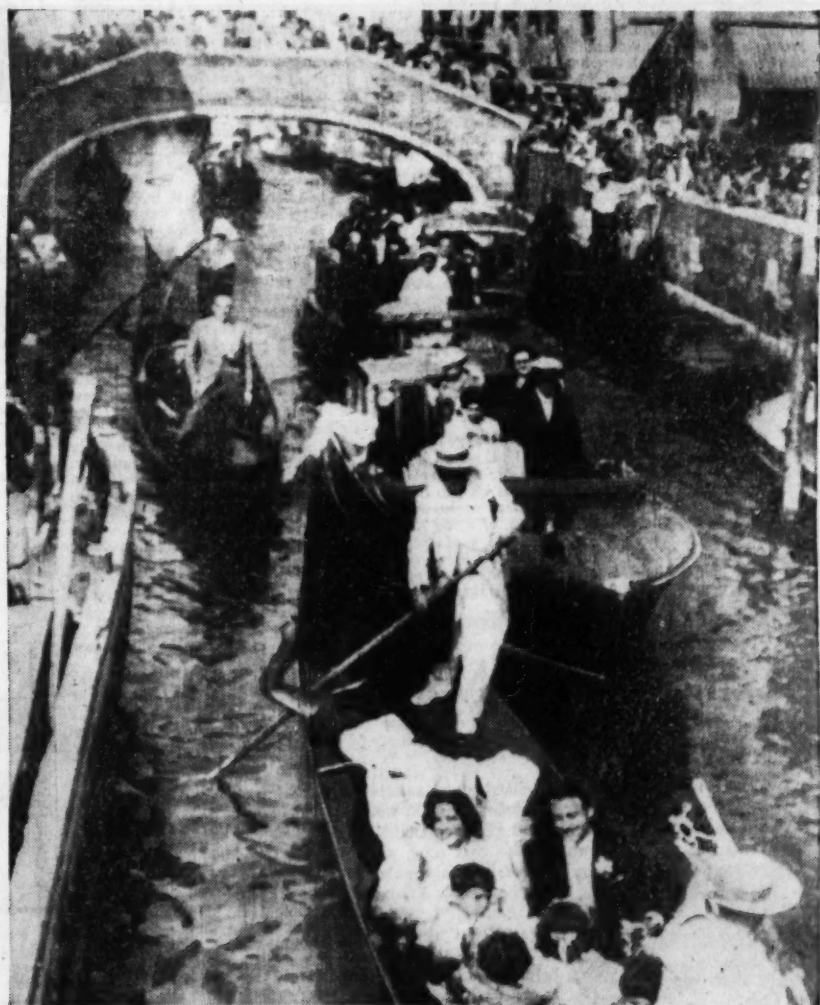

Mounted police taking up positions in a Buenos Aires street yesterday as they watched for signs of violence in the revolt-torn capital. The city had been tense but generally free of violence since the revolt began last Friday. Tanks were used to blast out 400 to 500 heavily-armed diehard supporters of the ousted President in the city yesterday, and the headquarters of the National Alliance, a strong-arm organization loyal to Peron, was wrecked by tank guns. —Associated Press Radiophoto.

HURRICANE TORN IN MEXICO

Street scene in Tampico, Mexico, where small boats have replaced automobiles in wake of Hurricane Hilda which struck the area last weekend. Torrential rains which fell for 10 days before the storm added to the hurricane damage by sending streams out of their banks in the area and many rivers were still rising today, adding to the difficulties of workers struggling to restore facilities in the city where 15,000 were left homeless by the storm. VENETIAN BRIDAL PATH

Prince Alfonso Hohenlohe-Langenburg, 31, and his 15-year-old bride, the former Princess Virginia Ira Fuerstenberg, leading bridal procession in gold-trimmed gondola after their marriage in Venice, Italy, yesterday. Thousands of cheering Venetians and tourists lined the canal banks as the couple rode away to a giant reception. The marriage, which united two families whose ancestors were princes of the Holy Roman Empire, was Italy's wedding-of-the-year. —Associated Press Radiophoto.

LAST CHARGE

Officer Marvin Hullett fires pistol at steer as it charges to within a few feet of him at Charlotte, N. C., Tuesday. Cornered after leading a dozen policemen on a two-mile chase through a residential district, the 750-pound steer turned on the officer and was felled by his bullets. The animal, which had escaped from a slaughterhouse truck, was finally killed by another officer. —Associated Press Wirephoto.

IN ACCORDANCE with a custom established many years ago, the new Queen of Love and Beauty, who is to be crowned at the Veiled Prophet ball Oct. 4, will be guest of honor at her own party, the annual Queen's Supper, shortly after the pageantry of coronation. For the twenty-sixth time the party will be held at Hotel Jefferson.

At the stroke of midnight, after her majesty's subjects are seated, the Queen, her special maids of honor and escorts of their own choosing will make their formal entrance to the Gold room and will be seated as usual at a specially decorated table on the stage at the north end.

The entire room will be dotted with tables of six, eight, 12 or 14 guests on the main floor and balcony of the Gold room where a string ensemble will play supper music. An orchestra in the Ivory room will provide music for dancing.

Supper will begin with minted fruit and continue with turkey Jefferson with wild rice; potatoes rissole and cranberry mold salad and will end with special Veiled Prophet ice cream, petits fours and coffee.

In the interval between the ball and supper the new Queen and her special maids will attend a brief reception in the private parlors of the hotel for their families and a few close friends.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:
PLEASE tell me what to do. I have been married and divorced and now live with my widowed mother. About a year ago I met a very nice man at a party and he seemed to like me right off. He took me home that evening and we sat in the car and talked for a long time. I told him about my divorce and he said he was separated and was getting a divorce. He called me the next day to go out with him but I was busy. Then he called again and finally I agreed to go to dinner with him. I liked him very much. But last week I saw him on the street with a woman and he saw me but didn't even speak. The person I was with happened to know him and she said that was his wife. She was surprised when I told her he was separated because she knows the family pretty well and she said she was sure that wasn't true. I feel like an awful sucker but I'm crazy about him now. Do you think he could be telling me the truth and maybe is planning to leave his wife?
WORRIED.

If I were you, I wouldn't hang around to find out. Now that you've seen the handwriting on the wall you'd better clear out of his life in a hurry and see that you don't get fooled by this one again. It's an old, old story, and you'll only be miserable if you fall for it. If he comes around again, let him know you have no intention of going with him as long as he has a wife. Don't be guilty of hurting her even if he's willing to be a first-class heel.

Dear Martha:
MY BROTHER WORKS in a big office and one evening he brought another fellow home with him to do some work. We had dinner together first and I really fell for the other man and he seemed to like me. He called me a few times and asked for a date but when my brother found out about it he hit the ceiling. He won't tell me the reason. Do you think it's fair for him to tell me what man I can date?
SIS.

Just be grateful you have a brother with enough gumption and concern for you that he won't let you date someone he can't approve of. Men have a strong sense of loyalty to one another so even if he refuses to explain, his request that you not date this man should be warning enough.

IN ANSWER TO BILL: Checks are not displayed with other wedding gifts. Instead, write the amount on a plain white card—without the name of the donor—and place it among the gifts.

Send today for Martha Carr's free list of baby names, including several hundred for both boys and girls. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Rewarding Pleasure

By Angelo Patri

ANYTHING a family can do and enjoy together is delight doubled. Aside from the pleasure family participation offers, unity of the group, a priceless quality of life, is cultivated. Reading aloud is one of the easiest, cheapest and most rewarding of such pleasures.

Now that the evenings are longer, the family members are likely to be together longer after dinner and if father or mother, or one of the children, or the whole group taking turns, will read aloud an interesting story, as worth while an hour of entertainment as one could wish is shared by everybody present.

GOOD BOOKS are easy to come by these days. To own them is, of course, the ideal thing—but failing that, there are libraries to lend them, friends to loan them and the occasions that come to every family when gifts of good books are in order. They might seem expensive to those not in the habit of buying them, but compared with entertainment of other sorts that are taken for granted, they are cheap. How far would $3.50, or even $4, go for the family's entertainment? A good book can be bought for less than that and can be used for a lifetime of enjoyment.

The book that is to be read to and with the family is a matter of personal taste. Just so it is one that the whole group can listen to and enjoy. Did you ever try reading Benet's "John Brown's Body" aloud? It needs to be read that way to bring out its beauty. Try it. Ever read Sandburg's "Life of Lincoln" aloud? Open it anywhere and read aloud, and the audience will be fascinated. Read the "Book of Ruth" to the family, especially if there are girls in the group—and see their eyes shine with the enchantment of it. For the boys, try "Treasure Island" done in your best style.

OUR DAYS with the social, industrial changes and the speed of them have carried away from many most valuable ways of life. The family which should be a solid unit of strength, spiritual as well as material, is a collection of individuals—friendly, perhaps, but not the old "One for all and all for one" it once was and should be. Anything that ties the family together in peace and harmony and affection is to be used to the full. Reading aloud a good book is one easy step toward that end.

Going to church together is another activity to be honored. Belonging to a larger group, sharing a common feeling and a common experience is enriching to the soul and it is the soul of the family that we must now nourish and cherish with every means at hand.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

I WOULD like very much to know if I am wrong about the following matter: My son has been going with a girl he met at college for the past year. While they were not engaged, we knew they were serious about each other. About a month ago, my son drove down to her home town to attend her brother's wedding at which she was a bridesmaid. At the wedding reception their engagement was announced and a formal announcement put in the paper the next day. My husband and I felt very hurt about this and think that her parents should have informed us of the announcement beforehand. I would appreciate your opinion on this matter.

You should certainly have been informed in advance, not necessarily by her parents but by your own son.

DEAR MRS. POST: Is it ever proper for a woman to ask a man whether or not he is married? It is easy enough to tell whether a woman is married by her wedding ring, but men who wear wedding rings are in the minority and therefore one cannot tell by this.

Answer: There is nothing unusual in asking this question.

St. Louisan Designs a New Hand Mop

Mrs. Samuel Liberman Saw the Need, Thought Up Self-Wringing Device

By Clarissa Start

MUCH of the work done by a housewife around the home is interesting, creative, and satisfying. That done with a mop usually is not. This was the view of Berenice Liberman, wife of Samuel H. Liberman, city counselor of St. Louis, as she tidied up their apartment one Thursday night.

Moreover, Mrs. Liberman reflected, while most of the floor mops used around a house are equipped with self-wringing devices so the wielder of the mop does not have to handle them, the hand mops used for sink, washstand and toilet clean-up are not. Mrs. Liberman, a fastidious as well as meticulous housekeeper, thought something ought to be done about it.

MRS. SAMUEL H. LIBERMAN DEMONSTRATES THE WRINGING DEVICE ON HER MOP.

Her chores finished, she decided to take a nap but she couldn't sleep for thinking about the mop. She got up and thumbed through the yellow pages of the telephone book, searching for mop manufacturers. Under several headings, she noticed the Lighthouse for the Blind and recalled that they made excellent brooms and other objects. A few days later, she was keeping an appointment with Kenneth Fischer, Lighthouse manager.

"We discussed various kinds of mops and assembled some of them," she recalls. "We talked about materials and decided the wringing device couldn't be metal because that would scratch. We were thinking of the plastics when he was called to the phone and in looking around me, I noticed some of these unbreakable bathroom glasses made of a soft material called polyethylene."

When Fischer finished his phone call, Mrs. Liberman pointed out to him that if you removed the bottoms from the glasses, the resulting cuff would make a good squeezer. Fischer thought the idea had possibilities and gave her some cellulose yarn and polyethylene to take home and experiment with.

ONE of Mrs. Liberman's hobbies has been the making of silver jewelry so she got out her jigsaw and tools and began turning out a mop. She decided the cellulose yarn worked perfectly, also decided there should be two sizes of mops, one for cleaning and one for dishwashing. Although her samples were not exactly right in size, the idea struck Fischer, as being a practical one and a short time later, the Lighthouse turned out workable samples. Mrs. Liberman added some more suggestions—a brass ring instead of an iron one to make the mop rust-proof, a hole in the handle so it could be hung conveniently on a hook.

Sample in hand, Mrs. Liberman called on houseware buyers Vincent Zupan at Famous-Barr and promptly sold an order. She has expectations of selling her mop, to be called Protecture Hand Mop, not only locally, but possibly to a chain of hotels and other buyers on a national scale.

"If the item does become a national seller, we hope to work through groups such as the Lighthouse for the Blind in other cities," Mrs. Liberman says. "This is an excellent opportunity to give employment to the blind and the best thing about it is that it's being done not on the basis of compassion, but because they do such good work."

It was not until she had a finished product that Mrs. Liberman got up courage to tell her husband (whom she calls "Hal") of her invention. She was delighted that he didn't tease her about it but tried it out and pronounced it a success. The nicest compliment she's had, she believes, is when her daughter-in-law visited her and said, "What a darling mop, where can I buy one?"

THE Libermans, who live in an apartment at 6203 Rosebury avenue, have two sons, Lt. Pierce Liberman, who is in the United States Air Force and lives with his wife at Dayton, O., and Sam II, a student at Amherst College. Mrs. Liberman, a graduate of Washington University, is a pianist who once taught music at Central Institute for the Deaf, and has been active in work connected with the St. Louis Symphony and Friends of Music. She is also a trophy winning golfer.

It is the latter activity which may influence her next invention.

"I was talking to Mr. Zupan one day," she relates, "and he kiddingly said, 'What are you going to do with all the ends you're cutting out of those cups?' Because of the mechanics involved it turned out to be simpler and less expensive to take the bottoms out of the cups than to make the sides separately."

"That's been worrying me," I told him, "but now I have an idea—for another invention, a golf gadget that will use the leftovers."

The Dean Speaks Up

The Danger of Conforming Too Much

By Adele Starbird

LIFE is difficult for those who are not cut out with a cookie-cutter like a gingerbread man. Society is like Procrustes, the highway man, who, according to the Greek story, waylaid travelers and bound them to an iron bed which was too short for some and too long for others, a condition which he remedied by pulling their legs out of their sockets in the one case, and cutting their legs off in the other case. Society forces most of us to conform to a pattern, and often it does violence to the personality in the process.

However, a certain amount of conformity is good and necessary. It marks the difference between a barbarian and a civilized man. It is a passport enabling one to circulate freely. It makes for smoothness, convenience, and inconspicuous living.

should have stayed at home. A participant in any game, whether tennis, checkers, or social life, either plays according to the rules, or is dropped from the game.

WHERE YOUNG PEOPLE are concerned—and this applies to rural towns as well as to cities, to high schools and small colleges as well as to large universities—the great danger is that they will conform too much, and that they will conform to the wrong standards in behavior and thought.

Whether they go away or stay at home, they are subjected to mass pressures to conform, to allow themselves to be cast in the buttonhole of the average. And the average is never good enough. Mediocrity is always pretty dismal.

David Riesman, in "The Lonely Crowd," describes American culture as "other-directed," directed by mass opinion. The crowd equates the successful life with popularity, not with excellence. In "Death of a Salesman" that was precisely the equation of the tragically befuddled salesman.

The student has heard so much about success and popularity at home, in articles, on the radio, and even from the pulpit, that he is bewildered. He is tempted to accept the mask which means the loss of his own personality and standard. He is tempted to submit to the dictation of his inferiors.

What this country needs are individuals, sturdy nonconformists on essentials, students and faculty and salesmen who are willing to risk their popularity for a principle.

There are always some like that, wayfarers who have managed to elude Procrustes. I think there would be more if they were warned in time.

TO REFUSE to conform in external matters is a kind of exhibitionism. It shows a lack of balance. An American banker might choose to go to work wearing a red feather in lieu of a hat, draped in a blanket instead of the conventional business suit. There's no law against it. But he wouldn't do it twice, because he would have lost his job after his first appearance. The public demands that its bankers be conservative.

Aneurin Bevan wore a bright blue lounge suit to the Queen's garden party where all other guests were in formal attire. His gesture of defiance was neither democratic nor independent; it was merely boorish, "inverted snobbishness," as friend wrote to me after the party. Since Bevan objects to royalty and to formality, he

Current-Glazed Smoked Pork Butt

Ingredients: One boneless smoked pork shoulder butt (one and one-half to two pounds), whole cloves, one-half cup currant jelly, two tablespoons tarragon vinegar.

Method: Cover pork shoulder butt with water in a kettle; bring to a boil. Simmer according to time given on wrapper of butt; this is usually 30 to 45 minutes per pound. Drain butt; insert whole cloves, about 1 inch apart, over entire surface. Melt currant jelly and tarragon vinegar in small saucepan over low heat; beat with fork to break up lumps of jelly that do not melt. Place butt in shallow baking pan. Spoon a few tablespoons of the melted jelly over the top and sides of butt. Broil about four inches from high heat just until browned, basting once; watch closely because this will probably take only a few minutes. Reheat remaining jelly and serve as a sauce over ham slices. Makes enough ham with jelly sauce for two to three servings.

Cleaning Process
After you have finished using a paint brush or roller, remove as much of the excess paint as possible by brushing or rolling over paper. After most of the paint is out of the tool, use a solvent or water to finish the cleaning process.

They are valuable for supplying, with sugar and fats, the fuel and energy needed for our daily activities. For this reason they are sometimes called "protein spacers."

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER TWELVE

IF ONLY she didn't know him so well, Donna thought miserably but they had been engaged for so long she could read Arthur's mind as if it were sending out printed bulletins. She felt like a rejected wife concealing her secret sorrow with attempts at flippancy which deceived no one. How much should she take? When did the current ideal of sportsmanship deteriorate into being ridiculous?

Anger flared in Donna as she realized that Arthur didn't care what she thought. Yet why should he? A man had a right to be absorbed in the woman he had married only a week ago. The fault was Donna's for putting herself in a position where she had to be a witness to it.

And this was only the beginning, if she remained in the business where she would be forced to see him every day. She should have let him refund the money she had invested. He had offered to do so when he had announced his intention to marry Enid but Donna knew he had already borrowed to the limit of his credit.

His plans had been based on the assumption that she was going into it with him, and while Peter Grant was the partner, they needed Donna to take care of the book work and as the project developed, oversee the decorating. Arthur wanted her to remain. He had sighed with relief when she told him his marriage to Enid would not change her plans.

"I hoped you'd feel that way," he said gratefully.

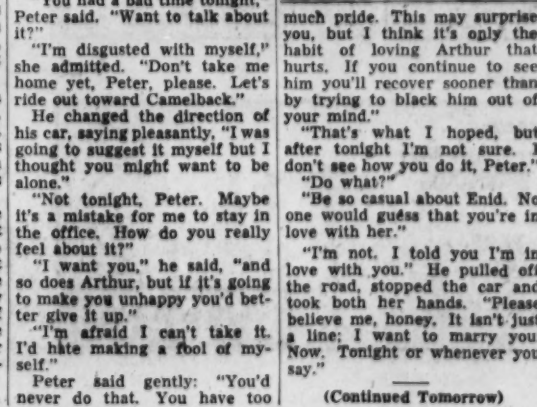

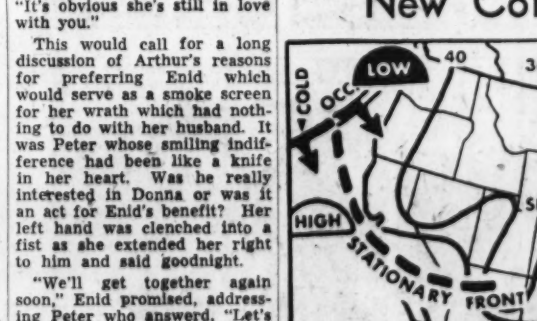

YET the real reason was not because he needed her. Donna admitted desperately. It was because it made it possible for her to see him every day. No matter how much it hurt she would continue to be a part of his life.

Tonight, witnessing his ardent performance as a husband, Donna doubted the wisdom of

Uncle Ray's Column

LONG ago, in the land known as Assyria, the king sometimes went for a walk. When that happened, he was followed by his guards, and by two servants who had special duties.

One servant used a sort of loose brush—an object which looked like a feather duster—to try to keep the flies from landing on the royal nose. Most of the rest of the king's face was covered with whiskers. A tall, rounded hat fitted down over his forehead.

Another servant held an umbrella over the monarch. The chief purpose of the umbrella was to guard against too much sunshine. On rainy days—which seldom came in Assyria—the king and his family stayed inside the palace.

We usually think of an umbrella as a protection against rain, but the very name means "parasol," also comes from the Italian language; it arose from words meaning "to ward off sunshine."

Some chariots were fitted with umbrellas during the great days of Assyria, 2600 years ago. An old picture of Sennacherib shows him in a chariot which had an umbrella fixed in place.

In ancient Egypt the kings were guarded from sunshine with umbrellas, and the same was true in ancient Greece. In Greece it was a widespread custom for women of well-to-do families to walk under umbrellas which servants held over their heads.

The same custom was followed by Roman women. In open air theaters the Roman women were protected from sunshine by umbrellas, also from rain. The men in Rome, however, felt that it was hardly proper to use umbrellas.
